PREFACE

The matter in this volume, substantially, as may be seen from the Table of Contents, a reprint of articles contributed to the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society in the years 1927-1934, had been attentively revised, with incorporation of some new items, prior to the outbreak of war in 1939: and the revision has continued since. But an accumulation of new observations and emendations has necessitated the preparation of a third volume, which is to accommodate also a concordance of document numbers, a Tibetan vocabulary and plates. An Introduction and an Index of Subjects and Proper Names have also been prepared. Pending publication of Volume III it is hoped that the analytical particulars given in the Table of Contents here may be found utilizable.

In regard to the cross-references in this volume it may be noted that where they point to expressions in the Tibetan texts the normal page-numbers are supplemented, taking as a full form, e.g. "p. 208 : 43.2". What follows the colon (:) is always the serial number prefixed to the text, while what follows the dot (.) is the original line-number inserted in the text. Where on the page there is only one document the serial number is omitted, and where the document is quite short the line-number is omitted: hence, simpler forms, e.g. "p. 125 : 7", or "p. 22.6". The same particularizations apply to the translations, which usually cite the line-numbers of the corresponding text.

Grateful thanks are due to the authorities of the India Office, and now the Commonwealth Relations Office, for permission to use and publish the manuscript material and for a liberal subvention already accorded to this work: and to two now retired Librarians, Professor C. A. Storey and Dr. H. N. Randle, C.I.E., and their staffs for constant kindness and help.

1. The Ha-za

AMONG the Tibetan MSS. recovered by Sir Aurel Stein from the now famous hidden library of Tun-huang (Ch'ien-fo-tung) is a roll of thin paper inscribed on one side with a part of a text of a Buddhist sūtra in Chinese. The reverse contains a Tibetan document, which, as we may infer from many similar instances, was inscribed later. The Tibetan text, which consists of 254 lines of writing (plus the lower half of a preceding line) is a chronicle, covering without interruption a period of seventy-six years. Each entry commences with the name of the year according to the twelve-year cycle, and then appends a brief resumé of the leading events, usually ending with the phrase "[so] one year". The text contains a large number of names, names of peoples, places, and persons, including royalties, generals, and ministers, Chinese envoys and Turkish khagans; and the whole conveys a lively impression of Tibetan activities during the period, especially of incessant campaigns against all co-terminous states, the Chinese, the Hbrog (nomads), and other tribes of Tibet. Of special interest for Indian history are the indications of Tibetan domination in Nepal.

As this text, of which an anterior portion<sup>1</sup> exists in Professor Pelliot's collection in Paris, is to be edited in full by M. Bacot, who, after its cataloguing by Professor L. de la Vallée Poussin, was the first to study it, we propose here to make only a few citations relating to the Ha-za people, the subject of this chapter. It should, however, be mentioned that on the strength of various correspondences, e.g. :—

widow of Sroñ.btsan.sgam.po = A.D. 681 (Bushell, JRAS: 1880, p. 438);

year 39: reception of the Chinese princess Kim-śen Kho*ñ*-co (i.e. Chün-ch'êng), as wife of the Tibetan king Khri-hdus-sroñ = A.D. 710 (Bushell, p. 457); year 56: capture of the Chinese town of K'ya-cu (An-hsi) = A.D. 727 (Bushell, p. 462); year 68: death of the queen Kim-śen Kho*ñ*-co = A.D. 741 (Bushell, p. 438);

the initial year of the India Office MS. is fixed as adjacent to the year A.D. 672 and on the whole most probably coincides with parts of 672 and 673. This year having been an Ape year, the years A.D. 636, 648, and 660 will also have been Ape years; the other years of the cycle fall, of course, into their places; and we shall thus eventually be able to obtain approximate dates for various documents from Chinese Turkestan which make mention of cyclic years.

The Ha-za people occupy in history a position of considerable obscurity. A tribe of "inner dwarfs" bearing the name Se-ha-ta appears in the Tibetan chronicle of Ladakh; and Professor A. H. Francke, in editing the chronicle (Antiquities of Indian Tibet, ii, pp. 71 and 279), identified them with the people of Lahul, who themselves claim the designation. The name Ha-za appears, according to Professor Francke, in Padma-sambhava literature, and, as belonging to a kind of fairies, also in Bon-po writings.<sup>1</sup> Finding it in the documents from Chinese Turkestan, Professor Francke was tempted to refer it there also to Lahul (JRAS. 1914, p. 46, and Ancient Khotan, p. 1162). References to Western Tibetan countries are, however, hardly to be expected, and in point of fact rare, in those documents; and Professor Francke's suggestion was promptly countered by Professor Pelliot (Journal Asiatique, 1914, ii, p. 124, note), who had previously (ibid., 1912, ii, pp. 520-3) adduced strong reasons, including actual testimony, for identifying the Ha-za with the Tu-yu[k]-hun, a people well known in Chinese history (see

Professor Cordier's Histoire, index) and located by Professor Chavannes in the mountains to the north of the Koko-nor lake in north-eastern Tibet. Previously (JRAS. 1926, pp. 311-12) we have ourselves, perhaps without sufficient regard to Professor Pelliot's evidence, proposed an identification of the Ha-za with (practically) the people of the Shan-shan kingdom, south and south-west of Lop-nor. The means of settling this question exist, perhaps, in the Stein documents, and we propose therefore to cite the references to the Ha-zas which have been found therein. Many of the passages have a general interest in relation to the geography, history and culture of Chinese Turkestan.

I. Chronicle, II. 33-5: Year 13 (Ape) = c. A.D. 684:—

Hdun . ma . Dbu . ru . śod . kyī . Re . skam . du . bsdu . ste |
 Khu . Hdus . tsan . dan . Rñegs . Khyi . ma . re . dan |
 Ha . za . gsum . mehid . śags . ltshal . zin |

"The assemblage having been gathered in Re-skam of Dbu-ru-śod, the Khyu Hdus-tsan, Khyi-ma-re of Rñegs, and the Ha-za, these three, sent letters of complaint (protest ?)."

Dbu-ru-śod (smad), a district in Central Tibet (vol. i, pp. 279, 281). Khu is a tribal designation. Rñegs also is the name of a district. The exact force of the expression mehid-śags, which recurs in the documents (see Tibetan Index, below), is not certain; it might mean merely "letter", "statement"

<sup>2</sup> In view of the irregular spellings in the documents and the numerous words not hitherto recorded the translations are offered, especially in the case of fragmentary phrases, with some amount of reserve. In most cases, however, we have confirmatory evidence from other documents.

2. Chronicle, ll. 49-50: Year 18 (Ox) = c. A.D. 689:—

 śiñ | Btsan . mo . Khri . bañs | Ħa . ža . rje . la . bag . mar .
 gšegs |

"The Btsan-po (Khri-ḥdus-sroñ) residing at Thaŋ-bu-ra in Ņen-kar, the Btsan-mo (princess) Khri-bañs went as wife to the Ħa-ža king."

The name Khri-bañs seems to have belonged to more than one Tibetan princess: for an earlier one see below (pp. 13-5).

3. Chronicle, l. 62: Year 22 (Snake) = c. A.D. 693:—

Rtsaŋ . cen . poñi . Ħbrog . bskos . nas | blon . che . Khri .
 ḥbrin . Ħa . ža . yul . du . mcis . par . lo . gcig |

"After levying the Ħbrog (nomads) of Rtsaŋ-cen the Great Minister Khri-ḥbrin went into the Ħa-ža country —so one year."

The Great Minister Khri-ḥbrin is perhaps identical with the Ch'ingling of Bushell (pp. 447, 451, 453, etc.). He died, by suicide, in A.D. 698-9 (Bushell, p. 485, Chronicle, l. 75). His father, the Mgar Stoŋ-rtzan (= the Tungtsan, or Zutungtsan of Bushell, pp. 446-7, 453), was a great minister under Sroñ-btsan Sgam-po and his successor, dying in A.D. 667. One of his brothers, Btsan-sña, is the Tsauhsijo of Bushell, p. 447. Rtsaŋ-c[h]en, which is several times mentioned in the Chronicle, cannot be located with certainty.

4. Chronicle, ll. 68-9: Year 24 (Sheep) = c. A.D. 695:—

blon . che . Khri . ḥbrin . Ħa . ža . yul . du . mcis . śiñ |
 śo . dañ . g-yul . sprade . Rgya . mañ . po . bkun .

"The Great Councillor Khri-ḥbrin having gone into the Ħa-ža country, at Rgya-dur in Stag-la a battle was fought with the Chinese general Wañ-žaŋ-śo, and many Chinese were slain."

Stag-la and Rgya-dur are not as yet located with certainty. The Chinese general Wañ-žaŋ-śo may be the Hwang Jênau of Bushell (p. 454).

5. Chronicle, ll. 70-1: Year 25 (Ape) = c. A.D. 696:—

Btsan . po . Zrid . mdaḥ . na . bžugs . śiñ | blon . ce . Khri .

hbrñ . gyis | Ha . za . yul . gyi . Sil . gu . cin . gyi . Ho .
kol . du . Ha . zahi . mkhos . bgyis

"The Btsan-po residing in Zrid-mdah, the Great Councillor Khri-hbrñ levied the Ha-zas in Ho-kol of Sil-gu-cin in the Ha-za country."

The places are not known (see below pp. 17-8, 28); but it seems likely that Ho-kol implies a river valley. Sil-gu-(cin) which recurs in No. 6, and in which cin probably = Chinese chén, "mart", may be connected with the Shih-wu-fou in the Śa-cu region (Sir A. Stein's Seriandia, p. 610 and map).

6. Chronicle, ll. 140-2: Year 43 (Tiger) = c. A.D. 714:—

blon . chen . po . Khri . gzigs . gyis . bsaluste | Bruñ . pa .
Rdo . bphan . koñ . ni . hynñ | Tshes . poñ . Tre . goñ .
behug . stö | Hbon . da . rgyal . dañ . zañ . Btsan . to . re .
Lhas . byin . gyis | Sil . gu . cin . gyi . Ho . khol . du . Ha .
zahi . mkhos . bgyis.

"The Great Councillor Khri-gzigs having assembled the conference, the Bruñ-pa Rdo-bphan-koñ was dismissed and Tre-goñ of Tshes-poñ was appointed. The Hbon-da king and the uncle (minister) Btsan-to-re Lhas-byin levied the Ha-zas at Ho-khol in Sil-gu-cin."

Dbahs Khri-gzigs became chief minister in the year 34 = c. A.D. 705 (Chronicle, l. 102). His full name was Khri-gzigs-zañ-ñen ("uncle-relation" ?). The Hbon-da king, who recurs in the Chronicle,<sup>1</sup> is perhaps king of a subdivision of the Ha-zas, the Hbon Ha-zas, who are mentioned below. The name Btsan-to-re we shall meet again. In the expression "uncle-minister" (zañ-blon) the word "uncle" should not be corrected to "noble" upon a supposition that a Chinese syllable is represented by zañ (see p. 321, n. 1). In a polyandrous country the position of "uncle" has special aspects: and we need not understand an actual relationship of that kind. In the exchange of courtesies and treaties with China the avuncular relationship seems sometimes to imply only a past connexion of families by that relationship; and we can recall the use of the word "cousin" in Old English. It is conceivable that the Hbon or Dbon Ha-zaa were really "nephew" or "grandson" Ha-zaa on the above lines and that the Dbon (below, pp. 29, 32) country came so by its name. On Tshes-pou, = Tshe-spon, see vol. i, p. 271, n. 3.

7. Chronicle, ll. 190-3: Year 56 (Hare) = c. A.D. 727:—

Btsan . po . dbyar . chab . srid . la . Ha . za . yul . du

"The Btsan-po having gone in the summer to the Ha-za country to assume sovereignty, on the way, the Dbahs Sum-po-skyes attempted to evade orders (bkah-gyod) . . . The Hbon Ha-za chief and the uncle dbon (nephew?) resigned (exchanged?) their posts. The Dbahs Stag-sgra-Khoñ-lod was appointed Great Councillor. The Ha-za for the most part sent presents."

The rather strange-looking word dbahs (Chronicle, ll. 102, 170, 190, 192, 196) recurs infra, p. 9, 38, etc. In a Tibetan history (Rgyal-rabs-gsal-bañi-ne-loñ) (Lhasa Expedition, F. 1, fol. 30b, l. 3) the form dbas is found. In Vol. I, p. 302, the term is clearly a tribal or clan name.

Bya-sga (dgah) in the sense of "a present" occurs elsewhere (No. 11, ll. 4, 33, No. 13, l. 4). Another Stag-sgra-Khoñ-lod is mentioned in No. 11, l. 51, below.

8. Chronicle, ll. 216-17: Year 63 (Dog) = c. A.D. 734:—

9. Chronicle, l. 220: Year 64 (Hog) = c. A.D. 735:—

Blon.chen.po.Cuñ.bzañ.Ha.ža.yul.du.mehis.par.lo.
göig |

"The Great Councillor Cuñ-bzañ being in the Ha-ža country—so one year"

Cuñ-bzañ-Hor-mañ, of Hbro in Mdo-smad, became chief minister in the year 57 = c. A.D. 728. Concerning other Cuñ-bzañs see below (p. 16).

10. Chronicle, l. 238: Year 71 (Horse) = c. A.D. 742:—

"At Khu-ñe-Mon-gañs the minister Mañ-po-rje levied the Ha-ža."

The term mañ-po-rje is properly an honorific, meaning "mighty chief", and in the documents it and the feminine mañ-mo-rje are found variously employed. In some cases, however, it was a standing designation, no doubt of feudatory chiefs. The person denoted in the present instance can hardly be the Khu-Mañ-po-rje Lha-zuñ, who in the year 31 (Chronicle, ll. 87-8; A.D. 702) joined in levying the "Three Horns" and in the year 34 (ll. 101-2, A.D. 705) was first made chief minister and then, being incriminated, was replaced. That personage may be the Ch'ünangpuehü of the Chinese history (Bushell, p. 455). Possibly the present Mañ-po-rje is his son.

Khu-ñe Mon-gañs is clearly in the Ha-ža country. It is possible that Khu-ñe is equivalent to the khramiya, kuhaniya, etc., of the Kharoṣṭhī documents, which seems to have a local sense without being exactly a place-name. Possibly it means something like "citadel" (see Acta Orientalia, vol. xii, p. 61, n. 5). Mon-gañs, looks as if it meant "ice (-country) of the Mons", concerning whom, see pp. 288-299. In gañs, however, it is possible that we have really not the word for "ice", but another word, usually written gan or ganz, which we shall discuss elsewhere.<sup>1</sup>

11. This document (now vol. 69, fol. 84) was one of the trouvailles of Sir Aurel Stein's third expedition. Its exact provenance is not stated. It is fragmentary, having lost at the right hand about two-fifths of its width, and on the average about 16-17 akṣaras at the end of each line. Some lines, especially at the commencement, are far more defective, and many are illegible, or hardly legible, at the beginning and elsewhere. The document measures in height 49 cm. and in breadth on the average about 14 cm.: the entire width of the writing would appear from similar rolls to have been about 25-6 cm. The obverse was originally devoted to a Chinese text, no doubt a Buddhist sūtra, whereof twenty-eight fragmentary lines, originally about 20 cm. in width, are preserved. The Tibetan text, fifty-five lines of writing, is in a rather small and cursive hand, well formed, such as is found in a number of other documents from Śa-cu, and which may be associated with the Shan-shan and Śa-cu regions. It shows affinity to a rather larger form of writing which we have previously (JRAS. 1926, p. 508, n. 1) assigned to the same regions.

This document may be deemed to be, despite its fragmentary condition, one of the most interesting that Chinese Turkestan has yet yielded. Its feminine inspiration is apparent: the preoccupation with domestic interests, the ceremonies, the residencies in various palaces, the meetings of relatives, especially women, the marriages of Maga Tho-gon Khagan, and, apparently, the births of his daughters are recorded with an appreciation which would not otherwise be in keeping. And the inspiration emanates evidently from Queen Khri-baṅs, the mother of Maga Tho-gon Khagan, who herself figures prominently in the narrative.

Fortunately, there is no difficulty in dating the events recorded. The marriage of the Tibetan king Sroṅ-btsan Sgam-po with the Chinese princess Mun-śen Khon-co (Wén-ch'êng), recorded in ll. 22-9, is assigned by the Chinese to the year A.D. 641 and by the Tibetans to A.D. 639 (Bushell, p. 444; Csoma Körösi, Tibetan Grammar, p. 183). The fact that in the document the latter year (639), which may be taken as either correct or at least for this Tibetan document valid, is a "Dog" year accords well with our identification of the first year ("Ape") of the Chronicle with A.D. 672. For upon that supposition a "Dog" year should coincide with the year A.D. 638, and the difference between 638 and 639 may be merely calendrical. The period covered by the document (Horse-Tiger years) corresponds accordingly to A.D. 635-43.

Who then are Queen Khri-baṅs and her son Maga Tho-gon Khagan? The queen is evidently a Tibetan lady of Sroṅ-btsan Sgam-po's family; and we have already, in the larger Chronicle, had mention (p. 4) of a Tibetan princess Khri-baṅs, who in the year 18 (A.D. 689) was married to the Ha-za king. Another (?) Khri-baṅs is recorded in a literary document. The name is therefore recurrent in the royal lineage of Tibet.

But this Queen Khri-baṅs is evidently in special connexion with the Ha-zas. Her son, however, bears two distinctively Turkish appellations: for this is true not only of Khagan, but also of Maga, which is apparently the same as the Môho (Iranian Baga?) which the Chinese apply to certain Turkish rulers during the period about A.D. 700 (Chavannes, Documents Chinois sur les Turcs Occidentaux, Index). The middle name appears to be doubtful; for, while it reminds us of the great ruler Ton-ngo Khagan, who died in A.D. 630 (Chavannes, p. 25, n. 3), it corresponds more exactly to the phrase tho-gon, occurring as a surname in a Tibetan document from Śa-cu (infra, pp. 367-8). If we should overlook that difficulty, it might seem possible to conclude either that the husband of Khri-baṅs was himself a Turk, or that out of compliment to the Turks his son received Turkish titles (see Vol. III, p. 76).

There is, however, another possibility which seems to deserve serious consideration. Professor Pelliot has shown (Toung-Pao, 1920-I, pp. 328-30) that the Tu-yu[k]-hun established near the Koko-nor used both the title khagan and another, mo-ho, which he regards as a form of the Mongol aboya "maternal uncle". If so, it seems natural to inquire whether the Tho-gon which we have between the two titles is not the name of the Tu-yu[k]-hun king Mujung No-ho-po, who was installed in A.D. 636 (Bushell, p. 448; Chavannes, p. 189, n.; Cordier, vol. i, p. 417), i.e. almost the very year in which our document seems to relate the accession of a young prince. But, though Mujung may well represent Maga, it is not at all likely that Tho-gon can in any way be reflected in the name No-ho-po. One or two further points may be noticed here: (1) Since Khri-baṅs is probably a sister or aunt, or at least a near relative, of Sron-btsan Sgam-po, it may seem unlikely that she should be queen among the Tu-yu[k]-hun, who were at this period the great rivals and enemies of the Tibetans. This objection may not hold good in the face of general experience and of the particular fact that according to Chinese testimony (Bushell, p. 449) "the Tu-ku-hun and the Tufan families were originally allied by marriage". But the part played by Khri-baṅs and her people in the welcome of the Chinese princess Mun-śen Khon-co seems hardly reconcilable with our knowledge (Bushell, pp. 443-4) that the marriage of the princess to the Tibetan king had been frustrated in A.D. 634 by the intrigues of the Tu-yu[k]-hun, who had then (in A.D. 635) been disastrously defeated by Sroñ-btsan Sgam-po's armies; (2) the name of one of Maga Tho-gon Khagan's daughters, 'A-lye-bañ-dig (l. 40), has more a Turkestan than a Mongol appearance, and the last syllable dig at least, which recurs in the case of a second daughter (l. 49), is perhaps a Chinese word tig, which actually occurs at the end of female names (p. 72, infra) as translation of the Sanskrit Śrī; in fact, bañ-dig looks very like wañ-tig "Rājya-śrī".

Hesitation on such grounds must, however, yield to the consideration that the places and residences named in the document are all probably included in the area of the Tu-yu[k]-hun kingdom, which in its widest extension covered also the Śa-cu and Shan-shan regions (see now Maps 30-3 in Professor A. Herrmann's Atlas). They are the following:—

(a) Mdo, North-Eastern Tibet, and the districts Cog-ro and Hbro, which are known from the Chronicle, and also from the Bkah-hgyur and Bstan-hgyur colophons and from other sources.

(b) Mu-to-lyin and Glan-ma-luñ, stated to be on the [Upper] Hoang-ho: on Glan-ma-luñ see the Itinerary JASB. 1882 (p. 45, no. 60).

(c) Tsa(Tsha)-śod, "Lower Tsa," probably in the Śa-cu region: see pp. 28-9.

(d) Sra-bal (So-fang?), with G-yañ-can fort, which may be Yung-chang (Liáng-chou district), and Lyon-jeñ in Bde, which can hardly help being Liung-ch'eng, in the Si-ning district, both probably within the Tu-yu[k]-hun dominions.

(e) The Dboñ country and Rboñ-yo-du in Tsog. (On these, and on Sra-bal, see pp. 25-7 and Vol. III, p. 23.)

(f) Se-toñ, certainly in the Shan-shan (or Śa-cu) area: see pp. 161-4.

Moreover, the name Tho-gon may be simply explained as the original of the Chinese T'u-huen, the usual designation of the Tu-yu[k]-hun in T'ang times (see Professor Pelliot in Journal Asiatique xi, vü (1916), p. 118, and T'oung-pao, 1920-21, pp. 323 sqq.). Stated to have been originally a dynastic, not tribal, name, it appears very appropriately in the designation of the prince Maga Tho-gon Khagan, whose personal name may have been No-ho-po.

The other persons mentioned in the document do not seem to be at present identifiable. But in several cases the forms of the names may be paralleled. A Cuñ-bzan of Hbro became in A.D. 728 chief minister of Tibet, as has been noted above (p. 7); and another is mentioned in documents from Mazār-Tāgh (north of the city of Khotan) (p. 384, c. iii, 001); parallel to the Btsan-to-re of l. 23 we have in the Chronicle a Btsan-to-re Lhas-byin (ll. 85, etc.) and a Snañ-to-re Skyi-zun (l. 85), and at Mazār-Tāgh a Tshañ-to-re; Btsan Sgra-ya-sto (l. 32), the šan-blon of Hbro, recalls the šan Rgya-sto of the Chronicle (l. 125).

The phrase skah-ton (l. 20), which we have rendered by "review", is certainly some performance connected with military exercises; and in the Chronicle (ll. 6, etc.) it is found associated with a rtsis or army census. Sud-pu occurs as a tribal name in a document from Śa-cu (p. 70, n. 1) and also in other documents (Chronicle, l. 237; M.T. c. i, 0068): cf. Vol. I, 271, n. 1.

Rin-lugs (lus) (l. 51) seems in some places (Chronicle, ll. 187, 254; M.T. xxviii, 0036) to mean "courier" or "commissioner", elsewhere "usage" or "decision" (see Index). Sku-bla (ll. 21, 31, etc.) can hardly have here the natural sense of "exalted body": it seems to mean "magnate" or "grandee": it recurs, often with gsol-ba, in M.T. i, 25d, iii, 6, and elsewhere: see Index.

1. 2. Lha. Hbrug. brtsan, sa.

(ll. 1-3) "To My Lords Councillor Gtshug-bzer and Councillor Legs-sgra: respectful letter of His Highness Hbrng-brtsan. He prays for the perpetual happiness of your respected Highnesses. In the written letter, wherein you inquire concerning his health, you have been pleased moreover to send instructions. (ll. 3-5) Upon comparison of the grain of the Ha-ka-steg farmers, thirty loads, with the number vouchsafed by My Lord Councillor Legs-sgra from his residence, Councillor Brtan-bzer has sent by letter instructions to deliver at Sa-cu what is owing. (ll. 5-6) The Sa-cu grain official has previously remitted that of 'Im-ka-cin and of Dzehu Tshin-tshin. The Steg farmers also have sent payment, and the signed letter of payment has come. (ll. 7-8) Or else it has been already received, and the receipt is coming down. With respects to the grain official and Councillor Brtan-bzer we beg to undertake that hereafter, when the grain is brought to account, there shall be no shortcoming."

Lha Hbrug-brtsan's residence.

The situation here seems to be that the Hbrug chief, who clearly is in possession of Ha-za Steg, 'Im-ka-cin and Dzēhu Tshin-tshin, has received from the Tibetan minister, Councillor Brtan-bzer, a letter requiring him to deliver to the Tibetan officials at Śa-cu a residue of his tribute of corn. He has sent the corn and now notifies the Śa-cu Tibetans, who have furnished their superior with the statistics. They shall, therefore, not be expecting delivery at Śa-cu.

This letter proves that Ha-za Steg, 'Im-ka-cin and Dzēhu Tshin-tshin were under a single ruler, who was a tributary of the Tibetans. Ha-za Steg is, therefore, in the same general region as Śa-cu, where are the headquarters of the Tibetan Residents. The termination cin in 'Im-ka-cin is obviously the same which we have seen in the Ha-za "Sil-gu-cin in Ho-khol" (p. 5) and which is probably the Chinese chên, meaning "mart". It can be shown that Dzēhu<sup>1</sup> is probably a tribal, or titular, designation, well known at Śa-cu; and it may be conjectured that Tshin-tshin of the Dzēhu is some place named on the maps.

It is worthy of note that the seal of the Hbrug ruler, and the titles which it contains (tshan-lon, Lha-Hbrug-brtsan), should be in Tibetan language. For we cannot suppose that by race or name he was a Tibetan.<sup>2</sup> Other Hbrug persons are mentioned in documents from Mirān (xxiii, 00*b*, etc.); and clearly their country, which we must now identify with the Śa-cu region, is the Bug-cor<sup>3</sup> or "Bug Province" mentioned by the side of Dru-gu-cor or "Dru-gu Province" in a narrative from Śa-cu itself (infra, pp. 278-9) and in the Chronicle, I. 162.

The meaning of the word steg, which does not appear in the Tibetan dictionaries, is obscure. Stegs occurs in the senses (1) "bridge", (2) "support", and—since st and th correspond in Tibetan—it is perhaps connected with they, which also means "support" and is used further as a rendering of the

Sanakrit yāna. Since we have it also (p. 28) in another local designation (Tsa-bo-steg), it probably bore a local sense, and we may perhaps regard it as meaning literally "road", so that Ha-za-steg, will mean "the [district along the] Ha-za road". Two other words in the document are likewise of uncertain sense. One of them, stsañ, we have conjecturally rendered by "grain", because for "harvest" or "crop" we seem to have in the documents a different word (rkya)<sup>1</sup>: it is frequent in the documents (see Index). The other, word mñan, which in ordinary Tibetan means "curse" (mñah, which might be a variant, means "power"), may have the sense of "authority" or "official",<sup>2</sup> Bul-rgya, apparently = "receipt", is found elsewhere (pp. 41.7, 43.5, etc.), and mar-thal "arrives below" (cf. phar-thal "get through") recurs in No. 18, p. 31, infra.

(ll. 1-2) " By councillor Lha-b $\bar{d}$ er and the uncle Legs-bzañ, from Bde-sum-tshal in Hdun-tsa-za, in the summer of the Dragon year, sent, seal attached, letter to the uncle Tiger (military) officer Rma Gyu-goñ.

(ll. 3-6) On careful examination of the amount of the grain from the Śa-cu district for the summer of the Dragon year, the grain has fallen short to the extent of many loads. Of this if we exclude that previously remitted and what was variously bestowed as presents and that previously owing which is retained by the lord of the district and that not belonging to Kham, the deliveries are out of conformity with the orders which were associated with a fixed date. Instructions requiring a further remittance are hereby sent. (ll. 6-9) In connection with the tah's present demand for the Śa-cu grain connected with a fixed date a letter has been sent to the general, requiring that there be no long postponement of the collection of the grain from the autumn crop of the Dragon year. It is also requested that those engaged in storing the grain should send it in as means of dispatch present themselves."

Bde-sum-tshal (l. 1) " Wood of the Three Bdes " is not otherwise known; but names of quite similar formation (Sum-cu-bo<sup>1</sup>) are not uncommon, and place-names ending in tshal " wood " are the most common of all. The Rma prefixed to the name of the addressee G-yu-goñ (l. 2) indicates, no doubt, that he originated in the district of the Rma, or Upper Hoang-ho, river. But, since the tribute demanded is that of Śa-cu, where the letter was preserved, he must have been in charge of that region.

The document emanates from an assemblage of ministers, which, as we know from the Chronicle, usually took place once in the summer and once in the winter.

(ll. 1-4) “ . . . The noble lord, equal to a theophany, has favoured us with his instructions. In the next place, we propose to start. (ll. 4-6) The previous letters of instructions having reached us in the upper country, we came to —. When the alternatives were being considered by the persons present, including from uncle councillors downwards, I put into consideration the Ha-za country and Kva-cu town, two possibilities. (ll. 6-8) Upon our coming together, these people taking various sides, we could not make a decisive choice and so are not going down. In the meanwhile, reflecting upon their stupidity (?), we were lost in grief. (ll. 8-13) With some supposed leaders we deliberated upon the three alternatives. In the course of these people's habble, it had not previously been mentioned, but a recommendation was made, more or less as follows: 'It is proper to proceed at once to Rta-zor, to the residence of the uncle Great Councillor. Going to the great man, there is no harm in presenting a request and asking for an interview (dbyons ?). At the time of the interview, it is proper that he should give a decision as he may think fit. If that is not possible, you can [merely] inquire as to his health'. (ll. 13-14) When the hermit merely made some indifferent inquiries as to health, attentively . . . (ll. 15-17) and at our coming together at Bde-gams, these men, one after another, asked, 'Your hands not being tied, please send a writing.' What is a little advice ? (ll. 17-19) We two here, an aged mother of a family and a younger son, a child, are we or are we not anxious ? We beg that the best of the ascetics at Śa-cu should send us precise instructions in writing."

This letter is evidently addressed to a high ecclesiastic or religious authority at Śa-cu. It mentions the Ħa-ža country and Kva-cu (An-hsi) as two alternative destinations: apparently it is written from the upper country. We should therefore envisage some place in the mountains where the alternative would present itself. The situations of Rta-zor and Bde-gams (in Mdo-amad) are not known.

(ll. 5-10) If having been decided to establish next year anew . . . Ha-za . . . and the order having been sent from the palace, our grandfather Led-koñ died beforehand. Yet, in consequence of his having previously sent in a large contribution (in payment for the post ?) the noble Councillors, out of regard for the unrealized purpose, issued orders with his (Led-koñ's ?) name that one of Led-koñ's family, according to competence, should be appointed Thousand-commandant of the newly established chin as a whole (tham-tin = thams-cad, "entire"). We, the family, being at the time some youths and under the tutelage (?) of His Excellency, the Bde Councillors appointed Khye-stug. (ll. 10-17) Khye-stug having after five or six years died, now upon that opportunity the Councillor Koñ petitions. His Excellency does not allow the contribution paid by the family to be quoted by Councillor Koñ as a private service. The case is that one of our grandfather Led-koñ's family should, according to competence, be appointed, and he is not mentioned by name; over and above which, as regards this "should, according to competence, be appointed", we brothers being of the family of Led-koñ and not incompetent; and the leading officers of New Khar-tsa-chin, intelligent men, come for the summer solstice and persons not belonging to (g-yon-khrin "wrong judgment" ?),<sup>1</sup> having, at the earnest request of our father Ma-ko-cañ, kindly sent a petition: we being of the family of Led-koñ and competent, and having presented a highly useful contribution,<sup>2</sup> are entitled in common to the issue of this order. (ll. 17-29) Whomsoever of us His Excellency on the present occasion should appoint, he being competent, it is highly convenient: it is agreeable to the Dbon Ha-za chief, and the

Ha-za Councillors have in addition to kind recommendation given a testimonial to our competence. Considering this and his recommendation to appoint us by name as commandant of the 1,000, and the special pleas proffered above, be pleased to appoint us commander of the 1,000. In one petition of Councillor Koñ, he pleads, "appoint my elder brother Klu-bzer Commandant of the 1,000 of Old Khar-tsa-chin." This is not on the part of His Excellency a grant to our father's family in general. If the special contribution made by our father Ma-ko-can is placed by His Excellency to the credit of Koñ, does it constitute a kindness to us, our father's family in general? In regard to Councillor Koñ's petition, it is pleaded under the idea that the family of Led-koñ cannot be pushed in at the door by His Excellency (?). If His Excellency has hereto no objection, then, in view of the order given to appoint us, and the recommendation of the leading officers in common, and the application to this occasion of His Excellency's recommendation to appoint us, the family of Led-koñ, according to competence, and the courteous request of the Dbon Ha-za chief and the Ha-za councillors, and the reasons which His Excellency has for deciding as to the competence or incompetence of our unworthy selves, and these special representations composed according to the measure of our ability; if His Excellency will spare a moment to these and will turn them over in his thoughts, may he be pleased to consider our appointment.

(ll. 30-5) Respectfully presented petition of Councillor Koñ: According to the above statement we have the leading intelligent officers of New Khar-Tsa-cin, and the persons not liable to wrong judgement . . . , the testimonial of the Ha-za chief as to actual competence and the orders issued. . . . My grandfather 'O-dol-cu and (dan, lo, stug, spad ?), being appointed commandant of 1,000 at New Khar-tsa-cin, on hearing of the . . . commission, petitioned at once and immediately (hphral-du) sent specially by messenger a great deal of silver. Even if he did not do well therein (?), yet no offence was committed. (ll. 35-8) Orders having been sent to make New Khar-tsa-cin a starting-point and appoint from the family of Led-koñ a commandant of 1,000 for the whole (tham-zin) Thousand

District, in due succession my father Khye-stug, son of 'O-dol-cu, was appointed. To my grandfather 'O-dol-cu, moreover, occasion (thabs, complimentary ?) gold was sent. Afterwards to my father, Khye-stug, also fine silk was sent. In view of the kindnesses successively received, if no offence or fault is found in me, a decision should be made. As regards the courteous petition of the Ha-za chief, he pleads competence on the part of four persons, Khye-dpal and the others, belonging together to the family of Led-koñ. (ll. 39-44) Equally of the family of Led-koñ, 'O-dol-cu and Ma-ko-can, two brothers, were appointed commandants of 1,000 for New and Old Khar-tsa-cin respectively. That by His Excellency our elder line (?) was appointed nominally over the Thousand District of Khar-tsa-cin, but really over the whole (tham-zin), appears from the order itself. . . . That Khye-dpal does not belong to . . . since it appears from the actual statement . . . the grant is falsely pleaded. An order invalidating the false plea should be sent.

(ll. 44-6) Respectfully presented statement from Khye-dpal: Our grandfather Led-koñ being a great friend, the responsibility of having placed in their hands . . . subjects was granted to three generations of Gser people (Led-koñ, his sons and grandsons), and he was appointed mayor (chan-khyur) commandant of 1,000 for New Khar-tsa-cin. Kind communications (mchid-dzin) in respect to (?) our grandfather, save on these two occasions, there are none. (ll. 46-8) We, brothers, uncles, and nephews having received nothing (ma-nos-te: or mnoa-te "having reflected" ?), beg for a kind decision for or against (pham-rgyal). Originally our grandfather Led-koñ was favoured along with three generations of Gser people with the mayoral (chan-khyur) command of the 1,000 of New and Old Khar-tsa-cin, two Ha-za Thousand Districts. (ll. 48-50) Our grandfather 'O-dol-cu and his junior Ma-ko-can, two brothers, were severally appointed. As commandant of 1,000 for Old Khar-tsa-cin the junior Ma-ko-can was chosen. He having died, in due succession Khye-dpal's senior, Klu-bzer, is now chosen. As commandant of 1,000 for New Khar-tsa-cin. . . .

document is concerned may be represented more or less accurately as follows:—

On the death of Ma-ko-cañ Councillor Koñ claims for his brother Klu-bler the appointment as successor. The obscurities which remain are due partly to the fragmentary opening of the document and partly to the infirmity of the Tibetan language as regards the distribution of speakers: it is not clear who are the spokesmen of the first plea. For our present purpose, however, these matters are secondary. The important points are geographical and historical.

The document comes from Sa-cu and is, no doubt, addressed to the chief Tibetan representative there, or is a dossier (yig-tash, l. 1) of a communication to the Tibetan prime minister. It relates to official appointments to two places in the Ḥa-za country, old and new Khar-taa-cin, occupied by the Tibetans. That a Ḥa-za country was adjacent to the Śa-cu territory we have already seen.

The name Khar-taa-cin may contain two words meaning "mart" or "town", the first khar (mḥkar) being Tibetan, and the second cín (chén, "mart") Chinese. One of them, at least, is an addition, and this will be the Chinese element, since the existence of a place Khar-taan in the Śa-cu region will be proved below. But Khar-Taa might mean "the town Taa" or "town of the Taa people", and clearly then it should be associated with—

(1) Tsha-dod, "Lower Tsha" mentioned above (p. 15).

(2) Tsha-stobs, a district in the Śa-cu region (infra, p. 60).

Tsa occurs (infra, p. 116) as a clan-name at Śa-cu.

The manner in which the Dbon Ha-za chief and his council are cited is interesting. Value is attached to their recommendation, but the appointments are not in their hands. This means that they were local authorities in whose territory were the places under Tibetan occupation.

Two of the persons mentioned as governors of the towns are designated by what are clearly place-names, 'O-dol-cu and Ma-ko-cañ (with cañ = Chinese ch'êng, "city"). That such was a common practice in Turkestan has, it is hoped, been proved (Festgabe H. Jacobi, pp. 47 sqq.): the present case is interesting as indicating, by contrast with the names of the other members of the family, that dignitaries were specially liable to be thus designated. It may be remarked (1) that the place-name Ma-ko-cañ is perhaps represented by the Makucama of the Kharoṣṭhi documents and is, in fact, Mo-kao-hsiang, the district of the Tun-huang cave-temples (L. Giles in BSOS., vii, p. 551); (2) that the family name Gser is perhaps identical with the Ser of Śa-cu (infra, p. 116).

The language of the document is formal and long-winded, with many repetitions and clichés, such as sten-du "over and above", dan-sbyar-na "as regards", byun-ba "what arises from". It is very modern in its official or legal parlance. On chañ-khyur (ll. 45-6, 48) see Vol. I, p. 27, n. 4.

"While those Ha-zas who depend upon the crops are engaged in ploughing, send soldiers in fixed number."

This is evidently a message to the commandant at Mirin. Whether the Ha-zas in question were the local peasants or whether, as is now usual in Tibet, they travelled with their yaks or oxen from place to place—which seems more likely, as giving a reason for the supervision of the soldiers, who would prevent brawls—a not remote situation of the Ha-za country is implied. Chode is for chod-de and thon is imperative of gtan.

"When the farmers of the Ha-za Upper 10,000 district appertaining to China have put together the separate grain ("five bre" 1) from each several crop, the 10,000 officers, having combined it with the barley of the Drug-cun, should despatch some, according as sheep are available, to Gnag."

This document, found at Mirān, emanates probably from the authorities in Tibet, and it further establishes the adjacency of the upper 10,000 Ha-za district to Mirān, since it comes within the purview of the officials there. But this district "appertains to or adjoins China",<sup>2</sup> that is, by way of history or suzerainty, since at the time it is clearly under Tibetan control. Probably, therefore, it was previously under the supervision of the Chinese officials in Kva-cu or Sa-cu, or in the Shan-shan country.

On Drug-cun, misunderstood to mean Dru-gu-chun "the little Dru. gu"—see pp. 40, 274-5.

Gnag is clearly identical with the Nag-šod "Lower Nag", often mentioned in documents from Mirān (see pp. 125-7 and Index): in fact, it is evident that Nag or Gnag, was a form of the name Nob itself (see p. 188 and ZDMG., 91, p. 14, where Great and Little Nag are named); and obviously, considering the destination of the corn, it is either in the Ha-za country or on the Lop-nor side of it.

As regards the language of the document, we have taken stsha as equivalent to the rtshā or stshā which we have found elsewhere. This is quite in accordance with the general variations of spelling, as is the writing dña, with subscript ñ, for dañ : cf. the frequent bñre for bñer.

The important point here is the adjacency of the Ħa-ža country to Tshal-byi, which, as will appear infra (pp. 119 sqq.), was a district 450 li to the south of Chariklik (Nob). For the rest, the translation is in part doubtful owing to the defective text and to the uncertainty of the meaning of some words, e.g. ye-myig, stshus-la (? = tshur-la "hither", "until now"), or = hchus "crooked". Rtsis-mgo "head, or total, of account," occurs in the Chronicle (l. 52) and in pp. 140, 446, also in Vol. I, p. 29, n. 4; and that rjes-ñan means "bad omen" is proved by the occurrence elsewhere (M.I. xxvii, 21, l. 12) of byams-pañi-rjes "good omen".

Having brought over the Ḥa-ḥas appertaining to the Chinese country, he detached (?) from China the subjects generally and gave China a fright."

That the Ḥa-ḥa people is here mentioned (Col. Waddell had read za-za, p. 1258) was suggested with reserve by Professor Pelliot in 1912 (Journal Asiatique, ii, 1912, p. 522, n. 5). All doubt is removed by the phrase Rgya . . . gtogs-pa, which we have now found in the same connexion (above, p. 30): and we may also adduce the testimony of the Tibetans themselves, who have furnished Sir Charles Bell with a translation naming "Hasha" (Tibet Past and Present, 1924, p. 273). That the Ḥa-ḥas were the instruments in the Tibetan aggressions upon China is in accord with known facts. For in the Chronicle the Dbon Ḥa-ḥa king plays a prominent part in the campaigns against the Chinese. Now we are told of the Pailan, the western neighbours of the Tang-hsiang (and Tu-yu[k]-hun), that after their conquest by the Tibetans (c. A.D. 635) "their warriors were usually placed in the van of the invading armies" (Bushell, p. 528). This might suggest an identification of the Ḥa-ḥas with the Pailan; but in Tibetan no "Pailan", or "Ting-ling", people has been traced.

Khar-tsan can hardly be other than the Ḥa-ḥa town Khar-tsa-cin, with which we have already met (above, p. 28). In Mazār-Tāgh (a. iv. 0017, p. 192) we have Khar-tshaḥ.

This document, despite its very defective state, evidently refers to some loss inflicted by an enemy (? Hor, Turks) and orders from the general in Little Nob to send an officer with some troops (dmag-tsam-zig) into the Ha-za country (?). It brings the Ha-zas into the range of the Nob area.

The above are not all the passages containing a mention of Ha-zas (see Index); and we may adduce the fact that the Royal-rabs-gsal-bañi-me-loñ credits Mañ-sroñ-mañ, grandson of king Sroñ-btsan Sgam-po, with a Ha-za mother—btsun . mo . Ḥa . za . bzaḥ . Kho . hjo . mod . Khri . dkar . ti .

"he having taken to wife a noble Ḥa-za lady, named Kho-hjo-mod-Khri-dkar-ti-śags, there was born a son Mañ-sroñ-mañ-btsan."

But the other references are without geographical implication. What we have so far definitely ascertained may be summarized as follows:—

Geographical.—Ḥa-za country was certainly adjacent on the one hand to the region of the Shan-shan kingdom (comprising Cerchen, Charklik, and Mirān) and on the other hand to the Śa-cu district. It included places named Sil-gu(-cin), 'Im-ka(-cin), Khu-ñe Mon-gans and Old and New Khar-tsa(-cin), which is probably identical with the great city-mart (khrom-chen-po) of Khar-tsan in the Śa-cu region.

Historical.—The Ḥa-za (or some of them) originally "appertained to China". In the time of Sroñ-btsan Sgam-po they were in friendly relations with the Tibetans; and later on certain Ḥa-za chiefs, called Dbon (or Ḥboñ or Ḥbon) Ḥa-zas, figured prominently in the Tibetan armies which warred with China, particularly in the campaigns in the Śa-cu and Kva-cu region, wherein we know the Dbon Ḥa-zas and the city Khar-tsa(-cin) to have been comprised. It is probable, therefore, that the Tibetan routes to Shan-shan and Śa-cu lay through Ḥa-za country. The Ḥa-zas were sometimes at variance with their Tibetan allies or suzerains, and we hear of Tibetan officials and the Btsan-po being in their country in A.D. 693, 695-6, 724, 727, 735, and 742 and of a revolt in 734.

Cultural.—More than one passage mentions Ḥa-zas in connexion with agriculture, and this applies both to Mirān (Nos. 16-17) and to Śa-cu. We may now add a passage from a document from Mazār-Tāgh, north of the city of Khotan (to be quoted hereafter in full), where a Ḥa-za is mentioned as conveying "grain":—

stsan, hdren | Ha.ža. G-yu. brtsan. gyis |
 " Grain-conveyor the Ha-ža G-yu-brtsan."

It seems possible that the Ha-žas descended from the upper country with cattle or yaks to assist in the ploughing and harvest of the districts of Chinese Turkestan.

Of Ha-ža personal nomenclature the only at present citable examples are the above-mentioned G-yu-brtsan, the name of queen Khri-dkar-ti-šags, and that of the writer of another document (Ch. 77, x, infra, pp. 66-7), who describes himself as a "humble Ha-ža" (Ha-ža-hun-po), and is called Khri-legs. The names of the two Hbon-da chiefs Khri-zuñ and Btsan-zuñ contain an element zuñ, which recurs in the name of Khon-zuñ of Cog-ro and in those of the Kluu chief Lha-zuñ and others; it may be simply Tibetan. It therefore appears that all the Ha-ža names which we know, if we put aside as doubtful a certain Žag-ldom (Fr. 61 = vol. liv, fol. 17), are of a Tibetan character; which, however, might be by way of translation or adaptation. The place-names Khar-tsan, Khar-tsa(-cin), Im-ka(-cin), Sil-gu(-cin), in Ho-khol, and Khu-ñe Mon-gaṅs also present a Tibetan or Turkestan appearance: with Sil-gu (= river-gorge = Ho-khol ?) we may compare the name of the fort Sta-gu in the Mīrān region and the Haṅguya of Khotan. The people's own name rhymes with Bru-ža; if it is really represented by the Ajha of the Kharoṣṭhī documents, the date of the latter would perhaps exclude the Tu-yu[k]-hun.

It is now time to adopt an attitude towards Professor Pelliot's identification of the Ha-žas with the Tu-yu[k]-hun (Journal Asiatique, 1912, ii, p. 522; 1914, ii, p. 144 and n.). This identification seems in part unquestionable, since it depends upon actual equivalence in certain documents. But it hardly accords with the geographical and historical facts adduced above, since the Tu-yu[k]-hun seem to have lost all significance after their overthrow by the Tibetans in A.D. 663 and 670, and their later country does not appear to have extended so far westwards as to include the hinterland of Śa-cu, Mirān, and Charklik. It seems possible therefore that in the literary equivalence Ha-za = Tu-yu[k]-hun there is a confusion of two peoples who jointly at one period occupied the mountain background contemplated from the Shan-shan kingdom, the Lop-nor region, Śa-cu, and Western Kan-su. In this question are involved the name A-ek'ai, which Professor Pelliot has found (T'oung Pao, 1920-1, pp. 330-1) actually assigned to the Tu-yu[k]-hun, and which seems a good equivalent for Ha-za; also the equation Drug-gu = T'ü-chuch = Turk of Professor Pelliot (loc. cit.) as against the Drug-gu = Tu-yu[k]-hun of Colonel Waddell (JRAS. 1909, pp. 935-7). Moreover, the situation of the Sum-pa also comes into the question (Pelliot, T'oung Pao, loc. cit.). It may be that Professor Pelliot is entirely right; but it seems worth while to proceed to an examination of the Tibetan passages referring to the Drug-gu.

The above observations, published in 1927, may now be somewhat strengthened and in part amended. The references to the Ha-zas in later Tibetan literature; it may be questioned whether the (probably apocryphal) visit of Padmasambhava to the Ha-za country is proof of the existence of such a kingdom in his time; and even the mention of Ha-zas in the Vimalaprabhā prophecy (Vol. I, pp. 192-4, 226) as taking part in invasions of Khotan during the eighth century A.D. may be not too seriously regarded. But our documents have shown that a Ha-za state was in relation with the Tibetans down to the middle of that century, that it was adjacent to the Śa-cu region and also to Tshal-byi. The city of Khar-tsan, which was a Ha-za city, is clearly placed in the Kva-cu region (supra, p. 21), and the location of another city associated with the Ha-zas may now be stated with some confidence. For the Se-to-ña or Se-ton of the document given above, No. 11 (see pp. 10-11) can hardly be other than the Rtse-thon, Rtse-hthon, Rtse-hton, Rtse-mton, which will be cited below (pp. 160-1). In the Mirān documents it is mentioned six times, and it was clearly under the military supervision of the Tibetan officers in that fort. This being so, we can hardly hesitate to identify it with the Ts'i-t'uen, located by the Chinese (see Chavannes, ap. Stein, Serindia, p. 1431) as the first place reached on a westward route from the south of Lop-Nor. Thus the Ha-za country overlapped in part at least with the old Shan-shan kingdom and may be taken as including that area in the seventh and eighth centuries A.D.

As regards the situation implied in the document No. 11 supra, it must now, it seems, be admitted that the lady Khri-baṅs, who speaks of residences on the Hoang-ho river as well as in the Ha-za country, may be a Tu-yu[k]-hun queen and that her son Maga Tho-gon Khagan can be the "Mujung No-ho-po", who according to the Chinese accounts succeeded to the throne in A.D. 636. As we have pointed out, the Ha-za kingdom was conquered and appropriated by the Tu-yu[k]-hun in A.D. 445; and though it may have been affected by Turkish interference at later times (Chavannes, Les Tou-kiue (Turcs) Occidentaux, p. 57), it may well have remained in the position of a dependency of the Tu-yu[k]-hun, since the Turks did not usually oust, but merely dominated the rulers of the minor states within their sphere of influence. The manner in which the Ha-za chief is mentioned in the document suggests that he was in friendly relations with the family of queen Khri-baṅs, and it is likely that he represented a younger branch of the Tu-yu[k]-hun dynasty, which had ruled the Shan-shan kingdom, as a dependency, from the time of its subjugation. As regards the part taken by the Tu-yu[k]-hun queen, herself a Tibetan by birth, in welcoming Mun-śeñ Koñ-co, the Chinese wife of Sron-btsan Sgam-po, we can see that the Tu-yu[k]-hun ruling family, even if it had jealously intrigued, as the Tibetans believed, against the marriage, could not, in view of its own relations with China and its family connection with the Tibetan royal house, act otherwise.

On the whole, however, it seems probable that the *Ha-za*s with whom Queen Khri-hbañs was connected were the appanage state described by Sung Yün, and that the places in the Koko-nor region were visited in virtue of a family connection. This explains the reference (ll. 54-5) to the return into the Ha-za country, which otherwise she had never left, and the prominence of the place Se-ton in her narrative.

The existence of the separate Dbon or Hbon-da Ha-za state in A.D. 659 is proved by the mention (in the Chronicle) of the death of a Ha-za Da-rgyal in that year, and so again in A.D. 694: neither of those years witnessed the death of a member of the main Tu-yu[k]-hun dynasty. The early adhesion of this Ha-za state to the Tibetan interest is asserted in document no. 19, confirmed by the prominence of a Fëntayen (Bushell, JRAS. 1880, p. 459) = Hbon-da-rgyal, as a leader of Tibetan armies.

The name-form Tho-gon, current, as we see, in the dynasty itself, appears also (infra, pp. 366-7) applied in the Ša-cu region to private individuals. In regard to the Chinese A-chai = Ha-za it should be noted that the same appears as the name of a Tu-yu[k]-hun king of c. A.D. 417-430, who was the first to establish himself in Ša-cu (Bichurin, Istoriya Tibeta i Khukhunora, i, pp. 78-80), and may have received the name of the Ha-za people.

2. The Śa-cu Region

(A. Places; B. Clans and Nomenclature; C. Paper and Copying of Manuscripts; D. Monasteries and a Historic Foundation)

IN this chapter we have collected a certain number of documents whereof the subject matter has at least some special connexion with the Śa-cu district. A good portion of the matter contained in the previous chapter may be regarded as no less apposite here, and the reader, comparing the two chapters, may find on the whole little dissimilarity in the contents, except that in the former case we have adhered closely to the Ha-za people. In order to show some system in the papers, the references in which we are naturally not in a position to restrict, we have grouped them under four heads, representing the chief purpose of their selection, namely (A) Places, (B) Clans and Nomenclature, (C) Paper and Copying of MSS., (D) Monasteries and a Historic Foundation.

As before, the transcription of the texts is intended to be exact; but in the scripts it is generally difficult, or impossible, to distinguish between tu and du, nor have we anywhere sought to discriminate the reversed superscript i, which is an optional variant without significance. The translations are still provisional,<sup>1</sup> and the notes are kept within a minimum.

<sup>1</sup> The reasons for this are partly: (1) the fragmentary condition of the documents; (2) the fact that Tibetan words, monosyllabic at the best, are irregular both at the beginning and at the end (also in the middle); (3) the numerous words and expressions not known from dictionaries; (4) the lack of indication of proper names; (5) the syntactical vagueness of the language, the interpretation of which (as in the case of English) depends mainly upon familiarity. After these qualifications it seems advisable to state that, apart from the doubts admitted in detail, experience seems to justify some confidence in the renderings. Subsequently the linguistic accretions may be studied.

1. 1: Rgya, perhaps an error for rkya, "crop."

From this fragment it appears likely that the Śa-cu division consisted mainly of two thousand-districts (stoñ-sde), Stoñ-sar and Rgod-sar, those, in fact, of which we mostly hear elsewhere. But below (pp. 45, 58) we have Sñin-tsoms, Spyi-tshogs and Tshas-stobs.

(ll. 1-3): "Rgod-sar division. Account of Cañ Ka-dzo. Cañ Kun-tse, agent to Byi-btsan, the corn official of the old year, having measured the corn of the old year at wheat two less a half loads and four bre, the orders of the chief (rtse-rje) were that it should be delivered in the autumn of the Hog year. (ll. 3-5) There was a change in the lists, and in the middle spring month of the Hog year there came a letter stating that some corn had been granted by the General to the Thub-brtan abbot. Thereupon the superintendents (gñer-pa 'the persons in charge'), Dar Rgyal-ma and Tre Mye-slebs and the others, made the levy. (ll. 5-7) Two less a half loads and four bre of wheat were delivered to Byi-brtsan, the corn official for the old year, on the eleventh day of the middle spring month of the present year. (ll. 7-8) In witness of Byi-brtsan's receipt seal having been given the attestation

Notes

L. 1: tshan: see p. 91 below.

Concerning śsañ = "corn", mīnan = "government", "authority", see pp. 19, 341.

gñer "to be in charge of", "to be placed in charge of", and gñer-ḥgum (bkum, khums) "to carry out a charge" are among the most common expressions in these Tibetan documents, whether on paper or on wood. For examples see the next documents and pp. 19, 79, 358: 40, etc.

L. 2: khal "load" is no doubt technical = Sanskrit vāha.

L. 4: We understand "the Thub-brtan abbot" to be connected with the previously mentioned Byi-brtsan.

As regards the intervention of "the General" (dmag-dpon), cf. the document given above (pp. 19-20).

L. 6: lan = "year", as often (e.g. p. 75. B 7, 137.1).

L. 9: In (conjecturally) interpreting chags as "measure" or "weight" and chags-rgya (in the addendum) as "record of measure or weight" we may appeal to the expression chag-khons "basket for measuring grain", chag-tshad "correct measure", tshags "a sieve", tshags-tu "a bag attached to a sieve", tshags-dam-po "strict care", tshags-tshad "to test properly". The word śad usually denotes the vertical line used in punctuation; and, in fact, some of the documents seem to show lines of such a kind appended to signify numbers. In this connexion the word guan, which should mean "pressed", may possibly denote "confirmed" or "reinforced": or were the signs actually "impressed" upon the measures or bundles or parcels? As regards the persons, see the consolidated list (pp. 113 sqq.).

The subject being similar to that of No. 2, and the persons partly the same, little comment is needed.

(Endorsement)

[1] "Hand of the husband, Leñ-ho Liñ-lug. Hand of Khehu Bzañ-goñ [2] in writing. Finger-size-mark of Son Sam-ñañ."

It will be seen that Leñ-ho Liñ-lug, whose surname, recurrent at Ša-cu (see p. 115), is possibly identical with the Ling-hu known from Chinese sources (Chavannes, Documents Chinois, Index), is described as "of Rgod". This is, however, hardly sufficient to prove that the Ša-cu itself was in the Rgod division.

Concerning the names (e.g. Šib-tig = "Ten-beauty," daša-šri), see pp. 71-3 and the list, infra, pp. 113 sqq.

Deb-tse (l. 2) seems to occur in a Bstan-hgyur colophon (Cordier, Catalogue, II, p. 328); aug-yig-tshad in p. 143, etc.

[ll. 8-11] Please send a signature that . . . is not to be delivered"—upon this petition . . . to be delivered is sanctioned,—to this effect Bkañ-Councillor Btshan-bñer and Councillor . . . sent, bearing a signature."

This document refers apparently to a capture of Śa-cu by the Tibetans, a subsequent revolt, instigated, no doubt,

by the Chinese, and a recovery of the place and its retention during a peaceful period of ten years. The event may be that related from Chinese sources by Bushell in JRAS., 1880, p. 514. The writers reside in the palace Hon-can-do, which therefore must have been situated not too far from Ša-en. From a colophon in the Bstan-hgyur (Cordier, Catalogue, II, p. 487), again, we know that Hon-can-do was in Skyi, a district several times mentioned in the Chronicle, ll. 81, 88, 110, 115, to which further we may assign the following places (the authority is added in brackets):—

Byar-lins-tshal (ibid., ll. 96, 197, 251).

Dra-tshal (ibid., 133, and therefore also Dra-ḥi-Gro-pur, of Dra, ibid., ll. 66, 154, Dra-ḥi-Zar-phur, l. 157).

Gliḥ-rins-tshal (ibid., ll. 59, 101, and M.I., viii, 46, M. Tāgh, iii, 0016). Phyi-tshal (Brit. Mus. MS. Or. 8212 (187), l. 19).

Lhas-gaŋ-tshal (ibid., ll. 110, 115, 119, 125, 182, 193, 210).

Rise-gro in Dra (Brit. Mus. MS., l. 10).

Šo-ma-ra (ibid., ll. 201, 207, 245).

Zar-phur (ibid., l. 157, Dra-ḥi-Zar-phur).

It seems possible that Hon-can-do, which itself is mentioned in the Chronicle (ll. 81, 88, 111, 115, 120), may mean "Hon-city-land", the Hon being a people known from Buddhist literature and from the Chronicle (ll. 12, 52, 73).

l. 3. chab-srid-la-bśdōs-te: For the phrase see Index.

l. 5. mdab-non-pas "by a great effort (or strong rally)" (1). spus-bthuis: The phrase has been found above, p. 24.31.

aman-yon "beneficial gift" occurs also Vol. I, p. 29, n. 1.

7. Ch. 73, iv, 14 (125, vol. 68, fol. 29, paper; c. 25 × 8.5 cm.; now attached to a literary MS., wherewith it has no connexion; ll. 5 of ordinary dbu-can script).

Notes

L. 1: Since the document seems to begin here, Bog-yas must be the name of the great city (or is Leñ-cu the city of Bog-yas?); and since Bog is a tribal designation, and we have elsewhere (pp. 294, 407) a reference to a Bog-yul "Bog district" (or read Bod?), it seems that we must recognize a district of this name somewhere in the region of Leñ-cu.

L. 2: tahi-śi. Is this the ts'e-che "prefect" of Chavannes, Documents, pp. 60, 72, = Uigur cigñi (Pelliot).

L. 3: Dañ-to-kun is certainly a place; see the next document and p. 316.

L. 4: dor-po-peḥu: A dor-po is, no doubt, a person in charge of a dor "yoke of oxen (or yaks)". Peñu is unknown so far, except as = Chinese pao "a gem" and in names, Peñu-tse, etc.

Gir-kis: a mention of Kirghiz has been previously cited (JRAS. 1927, p. 282).

Sgyes-pa, perhaps = sgyechu-ga "bagman". Nañs occurs M.I., viii, 43, thabs.ma.nañs.par.zind, p. 158, q.v.

S-g-cur may be the Sug "province" (if cur = cor, chor, Turki cur, noted supra, pp. 8 and JRAS. 1927, p. 283).

Gño-za is a man of the Gño tribe or clan (see consolidated list, infra, and cf. Gños Ho-se in M.I., xlv, 7).

8. Ch. fr. 61 (747, vol. 54, fol. 17, paper; c. 26.5 × 17.5 cm.; ll. 12 of a rather peculiar, clumsy dbu-can script, with short lines (śad), more often than, but sometimes hardly distinguishable from, points, separating the syllables).

Notes

This document being cited only in order to verify the place-name Dañ-to-kun, elicited supra (p. 49), and presenting difficulties owing to uncertainty regarding the numerous proper names, the remainder may be reserved for a subsequent treatment. ### Notes

It will be seen that the translation of this interesting, but unfortunately imperfect, document becomes in the latter part very doubtful and in fact conjectural. But the general sense is clear, and the geographical information is valuable. The route laid down is from Little Nob (Mirān) to Kva-cu (An-hsi); and it is evidently contemplated that it should be the direct mountain route and not follow the desert edge via Shan-shan. The document supplies two important facts, namely first that, as has been intimated above (p. 31), and will be more abundantly shown later, the Tsal-byi command included Mirān, and secondly, that the town of Khar-tsan (for this is clearly the name to be completed in the lacuna) was attached to An-hsi. As regards the other places mentioned, the Upper Tsog district (side), the Nan-rna district and Hbrog-Shuhs (the Nomad Shuhs), Tsog has been noted above (p. 11), and with Hbrog-Shuhs we may compare the Rgya-Shuhs, Chinese Shuhs, of M. Tagh, c. iii, 0043 (pp. 276-7)<sup>1</sup>: perhaps the word is connected with Tibetan luh "a valley" and means "the people of the Valley". Nan-rna has not yet been found: since the word is used in the sense of a "messenger" we might translate "Boñ La-ku of the messenger division (side)".

The expression rad-pa (l. 6) occurs not very infrequently in the documents: that it means a travelling party (bgrod ?) appears from several documents, e.g. p. 141. 3-4, rad-pa-gsum-mjald-te "three parties (caravans) met", pp. 61, 205,

371, 378. M.T. i, 0027, M.I. iii, 21. Khor is perhaps for khyor "handful": see pp. 112, etc.

[ll. 1-2] "After that, in the lifetime of the Btsan-po Khri Sron-rtsan, the Khyuñ-po family was destroyed, only a certain Zu-tse being allowed on that day to escape (?). Afterwards Zu-tse petitioned in the presence of the Btsan-po, [ll. 2-4] 'In the lifetime of Gnam-ri, the father of the family, called up, I was treated by himself as a subject, forsooth. By the father even I was not even looked at, nor even trampled under his feet (disciplined). By the son Btsan-po I was regarded with the eye and disciplined. I petitioned. 'Be pleased to invite your aged relative to pleasure, drinking, and feasting in Khri-boms.' [l. 5-B l. 1] The Btsan-po Khri Sron-rtsan assented to Zu-tse's petition. Following upon that, he sent orders to the palace Ma-hdri-ba, holding (suñ ?) the Mgar district. Coming to Zu-tse at the city of Khri-boms, the Mgar . . . saw him. Zu-tse was attached to the council of that Mgar and was in favour. [B ll. 1-3] After that, in the lifetime of the Btsan-po [Khri] Sron-rtsan, Myañ Žañ-snañ, a clever man, being outwitted (dku-hpel ?) by Zu-tse, petitioned in the hearing of the Btsan-po. Zu-tse killed Žañ-snañ and [remained] in favour.<sup>1</sup> [B ll. 3-4] The chief of To-yo-chas-la, Bor Yon-tse, having revolted, Zu-tse brought To-yo-chas-la and all the rest of northern Žañ-žuñ under the hand of Khri Sron-rtsan and [remained] in favour. [B ll. 4-6] Among the councillors of the Btsan-po no one before even had ever been more in favour than spun-sad Zu-tse. Zu-tse, it was said, is a wise man; he is very cunning and expert; he has a heroic soul; he has much sap (? chu-gañ 'water full' or = cu-gañ); he has a wide outlook (yañ-ba (expanse' ?); if any single man combines all that is to be combined, it is so with spun-sad Zu-tse."

Notes

1. 1. Khyuñ-po is a clan name; see above, pp. 44, 225, 249, and Vol. I, p. 277, n. 14. spun-sad we have translated as if it were °gsad or °bsad: if that is right, the subsequent recurrence of the phrase as an epithet of Zu-tse has the sense of "last of his family", or is for spun-spad = "kinsman" † Rgal "escape" (usually "surmount") is also a conjecture. Is ñi-ma-hder for ñi-ma-lder?

l. 2. We have taken bdag as "self", not as "I".

l. 3. Btsan-po-sras is evidently in contrast to (Btsan-po-)yab.

ll. 4 and 6. Khri-boms is mentioned also in the Chronicle (l. 35); also in M.T. a. iv, 00136, c. iii, 0063, and p. 461. °bom(s) (= bams) occurs further in Hgo-bom below (p. 87).

ll. 5-6. Mgar-yul and the palace Ma-hdri-ba (?) are not known to me. But in the Tibetan Me-loñ the famous minister, of Sroñ-btsan Sgam-po, Gar-Gdoñ-btsan, is called (fol. 21 a. 4 30 a. 5) Mgar, which is, no doubt, his tribal name. In the Chronicle we have Mgar Guñ-ston, etc. (ll. 4, 66, 67, 75), and in the Bstan-hgyur colophons Hgar (Cordier, Catalogue, i, p. 198, etc.).

B l. 1. glo-ba-ñe "intimate", "in favour", occurs in the Lha-sa inscriptions (1910, p. 1277, l. 22, p. 1279, ll. 73-4); so also glo-ba-riñs (p. 1276, l. 7, p. 1282, ll. 59 and 62) and p. 121, and pp. 23-4 supra and Chronicle, l. 67.

B l. 2. Myañ is a tribal name of frequent occurrence in the documents; see p. 305 and Chronicle, l. 250.

B l. 3. To-yo-chas-la is not otherwise known to us. Zañ-žuñ occurs elsewhere as name of Gu-ge; and since in Pu-hrañs, which is adjacent to modern Gu-ge, a place Do-yo, or To-yo, is actually named (Francke, Antiquities of Indian Tibet, II, Index), it is very possible that that locality is here meant.

B l. 6. tahogs-dgu contains dgu in the known sense of a plural or a collection.

Since Guam-ri is the name of the father of Sroñ-btsan-Sgam-po and also because of the ready admission of Zu-tse to favour with Khri Sroñ-btsan, it seems probable that Zu-tse himself was related to the royal house (cf. l. 5). The yab is perhaps the father of Khri Sroñ-btsan, not of Zu-tse. The latter is remembered in (Bon-po) literature. Khri Sroñ-

Notes

The agreement is a draft, as appears from the fact that in l. 1 a different document was commenced, and also from the gaps left in ll. 11-12 for insertion of the names of witnesses, etc. Concerning the phrases tal-cu, dam-goh-naz-byuh, brgya-la, we may refer to the notes on the similar document discussed infra, p. 145. #### Notes

For similar legal documents, see pp. 45, 62, etc. The designation Hgreñ-ro denotes, as we shall see below (pp. 99, 100), the country of the Hgreñ people of Mdo-gams. Professor Pelliot has pointed out that Mdo-gams, which is identical with, or a part of, Mdo-khams, north-eastern Tibet, was known to the Chinese of Mongol and Ming times as Tokan (i.e.
Do-gam): see Bretschneider, Medieval Researches, ii, pp. 203, 224. Hgreñ, he thinks, may be the native name represented by the term K'iang, applied by the Chinese to the Tibetans of Kan-su, Ssü-ch'uan, and Koko-Nor.

"Zir Rgu-cag-cuñ of the Good-Hor regiment having borrowed (?) from Ba Snañ-rma of the Hbroñ-border regiment one horse, its [marks are as follows] . . ."

Notes

Hbroñ-tsams (mtshams), Hbroñ-border, the name of which is parallel to that of Phyug-tahams (p. 62), etc. belongs doubtless, along with Hbroñ-stoñ, to the Hbroñ district of Mdo-gams, concerning which see infra (p. 459). The script also, though the document comes from the Khotan region, is probably one characteristic of that area. It may be remarked that Hbroñ is probably "the Yak country", just as Cog (Tsog)-ro may be "the Donkey country".

L 1, Zir Rgu-cag-d[h]uñ : "Rgu-cag minor of Zir"; but it may be "Cag-cuñ of Zir-rgu".

Bzah-Hor-gyi-ste : On this regiment see Vol. I (p. 299) and infra (pp. 292-3, 456).

(Rev.) "Submitted. I, son-brother, Pho-tahou wrote [this]."

There would be no purpose in a fuller translation of this document, which has been selected as showing clearly the system of the nomenclature. It is, as will be seen, simply a list of persons, who are alternately designated dgon and hphons. Most of the persons belong to the "Rgod-sar division (sde)"; but four are "god's servants" of Pho-kvañ-si and Leñ-ho-si respectively, these being, no doubt, the si (probably Chinese ssü "temple") of Pho-kvañ and of Leñ-ho respectively (since we already know Leñ-ho, p. 46).

The red-ink heading in ll. 8-9 shows that what follows is a district list (yul-yig) of one tshar, forty persons, belonging to the Rgod-sar division. But the expressions "right" and "left horn" suggest that it has a military significance. There are many indications that the Tibetan military system was territorial; and, in fact, we have mention of many regiments bearing the name of districts<sup>1</sup>; in consequence the word sde, "district" or "division", has most often to be rendered "regiment", and that is, no doubt, the meaning here. There are further indications: for besides the "horn" (ru) and its commander (ru-dpon), which occur several times—on the term tshar, "parish," elsewhere evidenced (along with its tshar-dpon), see pp. 169, 338, the dar-tshan "silk-badge" (mtshan) will very likely be the banner-bearer: cf. dar, "banner," Vol. I, pp. 277 sqq. Of the two alternating terms attached to most of the names, hphons and dgon, the former has the sense of "archery", so that the dgon should be the archer's attendant, a sense which, however, does not seem to be attested. We have, however, a person's (wooden) "card", which reads Dgon Mon-cuñ, i.e. "Mon-cuñ, a Dgon" (M.I. vii, 88a).

Coming now to the nomenclature, we find that most of the names have three syllables, of which the first is usually one which recurs and which in several cases (e.g. Cañ, Dzeñu, Li, Ser) we have already encountered. These, therefore, are surnames; and, not being for the most part geographical, they are clearly clan or tribe names. We have, therefore, in these papers a fair control of the ethnographical classification of the region.

Not to linger over the matter, and reserving any further comments for the combined list to be added below, we need here only remark that some of the names such as Śib-tig and Hbyeñu-tig are clearly Chinese; and it is natural to conjecture that the majority are so (perhaps this will be evident to Sinologists). The principle of repetition, as in Hva-hva, Tsheñ-tsheñ, Señu-señu, Kuñ-kuñ, Ja-ju, Kheñ-kheñ, is extensively followed, and in other cases the syllable tse seems to be in high favour as final element in the names. Concerning Ži-ñan see p. 73.

13. Ch. 75, iii (vol. 56, fol. 39; 25 × 52 cm.; ll. 35 of good dbu-can script, part of a carefully inscribed document).

[1] dge . sloñ . ma . Kvañ . ḡgam || Śa . cu . [pha] . Rgod . . . bañ . Śañ . za . Dzah . ch- || dge . sloñ . ma . L[a]ñ . c[a]ñu | Śa . cu . pha . Dar . phañ . sde . Beg . za . Hye . wi[ñu ?] | [dge.sl]o[ñ].ma . . .

It is needless to proceed with this lengthy document, which consists entirely of entries of the types:—

(a) Śa . cu . pha . Rgod . gyi . sde . Leñ . za . Señu . señu || dge . sloñ . ma . Theñi . cin ||

"Śa-cu, Rgod division; Leñ-za Señu-señu; bhikṣuṇī (nun) Theñi-cin."

(b) Śa . cu . pha . Rgod . gyi . sde . Then . za . Beñ . 'em || dge . sloñ . ma . Hbyeñu . ḡdzi || Śa . cu . pha . dge . sloñ . ma . Kvag . za . Ji . lim . gyi . bran . mo . Kvag . za . Tam . tam . dge . sloñ . ma . Thoñ . ceñu .

"Ša-cu, Rgod division: Then-za Ben-'em; bhikṣuṇī Hbyeḥu-ḥdzi; female servant of Ša-cu bhikṣuṇī Kvag-za Ji-lim, Kvag-za Tam-tam, bhikṣuṇī Thoñ-cēlu."

In a portion of the instances the "division" (sde) specified is not Rgod, but Dar-pa. In most cases the mistress of a female servant or slave (bran-mo) is described not merely as bhikṣuṇī, but as "bhikṣuṇī of Ša-cu or of a Ša-cu man" (Ša-cu-pha-dge-slon-mo). Two women are called "subject of the Ša-cu queen" (Ša-cu-pha-Btsan-moñi-ḥbans); five are servants of a bhikṣu, and about fourteen of persons not stated to be bhikṣus, but who probably are men; many are not servants at all, and one is granddaughter (tsha-mo) of a bhikṣu.

What then is the relation of the bhikṣuṇī to the person, probably always a woman, whose name precedes? The obvious interpretation is that the relation was some kind of guardianship. It may be suggested that the function was that of spiritual adviser or "pious friend" (kalyāṇa-mitra), abundantly exemplified (vol. i, see Index) in the case of members of Khotan royal families.

In any case we have a good number of feminine names, which may prove linguistically instructive. From evident instances, such as Hva-sim "Flower-heart", Men-tig "Prabhā-śrī", Tig-nem "Obtain-memory", Hva-lugem "Flower-mass", Bo-de-sim "Bodhi-hṛdaya (citta)", we infer that the majority will be recognizable as Chinese. These names of bhikṣuṇīs lack for the most part the clan-prefix.

The feminine names are partly of the same appearance as those in the other documents. In about a score of cases the second syllable is ñan. Instances such as Šib-ñan, Šib-lug-ñan, Šib-si-ñan, Sim-si-ñan, commencing with what we can prove to be the Chinese for "10", "16", and "14", suggest that ñan is nothing else than the Chinese niang "girl", perhaps used in large families, where the female children bore no special names.

A feature of the clan-prefixes is the addition of the syllable za to forms which elsewhere we find not so attended; thus in this document we have not Can and Sag, but Can-za and Sag-za. The phenomenon has presented itself before (p. 50): it is usual in the surnames of Tibetan women, being, in fact, merely a form of bzah "woman", "wife".

All the names will be found in the general list.

[ll. 2-4] "Councillor Rgyal-khyi and Councillor Ldoñ-bzañ having sent to ban-de Dpal-gyi-bzañ-po for a scripture (dar-ma), one division, complete with appurtenances,<sup>1</sup> on behalf of the city of Kva-cu, and that being now with the city, a signature of receipt has not come. The expense also has been already (bla) sent. [ll. 5-7] Whether a levy has been made or not made by the authorities to meet the expenditure upon material (rgyu) and costs (? dpyah "tax") (chad-du-bdas-sam-ma-bdas-par), we beg to receive a signature, one part, for the expense of material (rgyu?). If that is not granted, we beg to receive a signature for at once taking back the scripture and appurtenances.

[ll. 8-9] A donation having been undertaken sometime in the Horse year, arising from the previously made communication (?) it appeared that a Tibetan Ses-rab-hbum-pa (Śaṭa-sāhasrika-Prajñā-pāramitā) in eight divisions, and a Chinese Hbum-pa in six hundred chapters, three divisions, should be copied. [ll. 10-12] In accordance with a previous order to make the expenditure for a Chinese Hbum-pa, one division, and a Tibetan Hbum-pa, two divisions, the copying has been done. Upon finger-count in the store of Śa-cu, we beg to receive a signature of 2[u]ñ (acknowledgment ?) of the reckoning of the expenditure. [ll. 12-15] For the Chinese Hbum-pa, three divisions, and the Tibetan Hbum-pa, six divisions, the rations (tshal-ma = "wages in kind" ?) are some four hundred and seventy loads (khal) of corn. The donation is some sixty loads. As regards the cost of ink and paper, that not being sent beforehand, it was stated that when the scripture was in existence it should be sent. [ll. 15-17] With reference to the difficulty (? dkah . . ?), as the scribes have not obtained their rations, there being no donor, it is right that we should receive forthwith a signature for the expense. This agreed to, we beg to receive a signature, one, for the whole expenditure.

[ll. 18-21] The rations for the copying of the Tibetan Hbum-pa, eight divisions, having after that time by verbal order of some (?) . . . of the leading men of Śa-cu been diminished by half, copyists for the Chinese scripture up to eighty scribes and twenty revisors were sent, the leading men sending a letter to say that what was owing from (to) them should be the rations for copying the Chinese scripture

. . . sent. [ll. 21-3] Afterwards, Councillors Khoñ-bzer and the other authorities having entered upon power, we once more beg to receive a signature for obtaining . . . scribes copying Tibetan scripture.

[ll. 24-5] . . . copy a Chinese Tshe-dpag-tu-ma-mchis-pa (Aparimitāyuh-sūtra) . . . the copying having been done accordingly, one chapter . . . sanction the expenditure . . .

[B ll. 1-3] . . . at ten, when complete with appurtenances, the measure came to thirteen. The scripture in the possession of the city had volume-extent (glegs-thag 'volume tie'?) one full fathom. [ll. 3-5] Ten years more having passed, on weighing upon the scales, the volume-extent comes at present to two sañ and seven zo, not reckoning the waste. In regard to reckoning the waste, there were no orders (or 'there is no measure', chad or tshad-ma-mchis): we beg to report on the waste (or we beg to report the waste which has not been fixed or deducted). [ll. 5-7] First, where, through injury by worms, there was at the time of weighing unevenness to the hand (or is this = lag-mulsub-mos-sbyar-nas, 'upon comparison (measuring) with a finger of the hand'?), one zo was fixed (deducted); where there was rot from damp, one was fixed (deducted); where from the rotting thirty years, to a good eye, had passed at the time of reckoning, half a zo was fixed (deducted). [ll. 7-8] If at a fixed time, after an interval of fifteen days, the rotting had gone on, two zo were fixed (deducted).

[ll. 8-10] Reckoning (note 'the amount fixed or deducted for') those which, since their arrival, had been knocked about, trodden on, and cut and those which had lost more than a full span (measure) of the large finger (note 'one zo was fixed or deducted'), for each volume six zo were set off as waste. [ll. 10-12] First and last, as the sthavira's of the realm, and the heaven-descended Abbot and the lord chief and the others set off a waste upon a count on a fixed day (dam-zags), our humble selves, having received orders restricting us to sending in merely a private representation (sgo-yus), have discharged our task. [ll. 12-14] Will you have the kindness not to send orders invalidating the instructions of the authorities (mhan-gyi-mchid-sags) ?

[B ll. 15-16] The scripture, two divisions, to be copied in the Horse year having been sent to the Śa-ou envoy, the Chinaman, Śeg Tshen-tshen, a signature of receipt had not come. [ll. 16-17] Afterwards, stating that the scripture had already been paid for, whosoever had been the recipient failed to deliver even a private receipt at the residence of the donor. [ll. 17-19] Four years after it had been completed at Bde-gams, bande Khyam-zañ, being there on another business, was not able to secure the obtaining of a signature of receipt. [ll. 19-21] If the expenditure upon these two divisions of scripture (the divisions having been already counted) is sanctioned, we beg you out of the general expense to send the expense upon them, mentioning the name of Śeg Tshen-tshen. If the expense is not sanctioned, Tshen-tshen should return the scripture . . ."

Notes

A 1. 2. We translate rkyen (Sk. pratyaṃ) as meaning "on behalf of"; but in the next occurrence (B 2) the meaning "property" seems more apposite. In effect the latter meaning would here yield the same sense.

1. 3. bul-rtags = "receipt": see pp. 17, 19.

1. 4. god occurs frequently in these documents (and in others on paper and on wood) with the meaning "expenditure or price", which is given by the dictionary to gon; it usually means "loss".

1. 5. mhan- "the authorities"; see pp. 17, 19.

chad seems to mean either "sanction payment" or actually "pay".

l. 6. nam-gchig, "one part" or "one instance", seems to be used here, and l. 17 and elsewhere, of part or single settlements of accounts. Cf. Vol. I, p. 113, n. 6, and p. 23.21 and Index.

l. 7. bstu (from hdu). The meaning is to "send in", or "call in".

l. 8. sku-yon = "donor", the sku being an honorific.

l. 13. atsa = "corn": see pp. 17, 19.

l. 16. dnos, dnos-kyis, dnos-kyan = "at present", "forthwith". See Index.

l. 18. dphon-sna "chief leaders": see pp. 139, 345, and Index.

gleys-thags seems to denote the extent of the collection as merely measured. Gcal is from hjal, as p. 62.3

B l. 3. srañ = "scales", and also a certain weight. It also is a weight.

B l. 11. dam-zag[s] has occurred supra, p. 19.7; cf. p. 201 and M.I. xlv, 8.

B l. 12. khon-subs-te-stams-las-chad perhaps = "having strict (stams-las, cf. p. 123) orders to furnish as a stop-gap (khon-subs, a private representation": cf. p. 402, sko-yus-sdams-la.

B l. 13. mchid-zags: see p. 3 and Index.

B l. 14. thugs-rje-chir-gzigs, "how do we (you ?) regard the kindness ?", is a phrase recurring, pp. 202-3, 385.5.

l. 17. gñer-khums. Abundant evidence exists in the documents proving that, while gñer means to "be in charge of", gñer-hgum (past gñer-khums) means to "discharge a task", "deliver goods": cf. p. 42 and Index.

1. 19. gian-gdabs-na "on another business".

This document is clearly a monastery record of work of copying scriptures (dar-ma) executed on behalf of outsiders. In the actual instances the orders are given, it is interesting to see, on behalf of cities (Kya-cu and Śa-cu), whether by their actual officials (blon or dpon) or in respect of donations from private persons (sku-yon) for their benefit. The texts are either Tibetan or Chinese. Scribes are apparently supplied, and their payment is in kind, in rations (tsal-ma); the work is carried out under the superintendence of the monasteries, which upon completion deliver the volumes and send in their accounts.

We thus see under what conditions the hundreds of copies of certain favourite texts, brought by Sir Aurel Stein from the Tun-huang library, may have come into being. The next document will supply further particulars of the modus operandi. In the meanwhile it is interesting to observe that of the two texts here named, to wit the Sata-sūhasrika-Prajñā-pāramitā and the Aparimitāyur-dhyāna-nāma-sūtra, the former is represented by very numerous fragments and parts and the latter by many bundles of copies in the collections.

In the fifth paragraph (B ll. 1-14) we have a curious record of an inspection of the state of the volumes in a city library and an estimate of the damage due to worms, damp, and misuse. Mutatis mutandis, one could imagine that it referred not to a ninth or tenth century library in a Central Asian district on the Chinese frontier, but to a modern monastery library in Tibet, or, let us say, a library in Europe.

[ll. 1-2] "In the Horse and Sheep years. Allotment of paper among the scribes who copied the scripture Śes-rab-hbum-pa (Śata-sāhasrika-Prajñā-pāramitā), whereof the Prince (lha-sras) was donor.

[ll. 2-6] After reckoning in the presence of courier Stag-bzan Tsi-dam and G-yu-bzer Brtan-koñ the invoice of paper received and the acknowledgments of scriptures delivered, rejecting the waste remnant and fragments of volumes, report submitted to Councillor Rgyal-zigs and To-dog Councillor Btsan-bzer with full statement by name of the allotment of paper among the scribes.

[ll. 6-7] For the duty of arranging the committing these allotments of paper to some 50 individuals inferior and superior (rkan-dan-hog-sma?), of several divisions and accounts, the rub-ma-pa appointed from the first was Jelu Brtan-koñ. [ll. 7-9] He gave orders by letter that completion should be made by the third day of the first autumn month of the Ape year. The record of employment (gñer-yig) was entered in a list (or It was written in the register of employment that—).

[ll. 9-11] The superintendent on his part should be required to overhear opposition (no-zlog-phod): if supplies of paper<sup>1</sup> should be available, he should collect it at once; if supplies of paper should not be available, or if any persons should demand their own price, he should arrest one of their kin, senior or junior, and send him to prison, and he should be imprisoned in the residence of the donor. [ll. 12-13] The scribes must complete at once the supplies of paper entrusted to them: until completion has been made, their cattle, property, and so on of twice the value should be taken as security and deposited with the rub-ma-pa. [ll. 14-15] If the person in charge be not equal to opposition or should not have collected the allotments, the li-ceñ should punish him by whipping at the rate of ten lashes per roll (yug) of paper.

[ll. 15-17] The li-ccā people also, while each day and each year (time ?) referring (sñogs ?) for certainty (hphyan(h)-chad ?) to the residence of the donor, should take account of capability, great or small, of delivering the paper.

[B 1] Stoñ-sar division. Account of Leñ-ho Don-tahe. To Hva Stag-legs : in the Horse year, five rolls of paper, in the Sheep year thirty-six rolls were allotted. To Cañ Hig-tse . . . . .

The remainder of the document, B. l. 1-D l. 29, consists of the names of the persons keeping the accounts (the gñer-pas, no doubt) and of those to whom paper, and in some cases ink (snag or snag-tse), was allotted or promised (kha-bstan) for each of the two, Horse and Sheep, years. These names will be included in the combined list below. Once or twice (e.g. B 4, C 14) it is noted that the copy was passed (gtan-la-phab-pa), or a figure was modified upon a count (C 14, D 6), or a total (spyir) is stated (D 19). All the items belong to the Stoñ-sar division (sde) as far as C l. 1, where begins the Rgod-sar division, followed at D l. 1 by the Sñān-tsoms division, which is mentioned in M.I. vii, 32, Sñān-tsoms-kyi-hbañs, pp. 64 and 60.

Nan-lam, a place mentioned in the Lhasa treaties (JRAS., 1910, p. 1277, l. 22, p. 1281, l. 47), where Col. Waddell reads Tshe-nan(-lam), which he takes as referring to Singanfu; cf. also Chronicle, l. 84, and Laufer, Roman, pp. 215, 217.

Hgo-bom (l. 5 Hgo-hbom) has been mentioned above (p. 55), and the second element occurs in Khri-boms. The name of Kum-lum, which might here occur to us, is usually explained as Sku-hbum.

11. 2-3. Lha-luñ and Cog(Tsog)-ro are known, and the Bsam-yas and Hphrul-snañ monasteries are the famous early foundations, the latter at Lha-sa.

1. 3. gra = grva, see p. 843.

1. 4. Kam-bcu = Kan-chou.

Lan-hgro is mentioned in the Chronicle (ll. 174, 204, 237).

1. 5. Go-cu is not known (= Ho-chou, in Lan-chou region?).

Hgreñ-ro is, no doubt, the territory of the Hgreñ clan of Mdo-gams (p. 61).

Za-sna, ordinarily a phrase meaning "presence", occurs as a surname in the Chronicle, l. 208.

Śi-goñ-bu (= Si-ngan-fu?) has not been found.

18. Ch. 73, viii, 5 (705: vol. lxix, foll. 45-6, and vol. liii, fol. 11; 30 × 25 + 30 × 53 + 30 × 25 cm.; discoloured and fragmentary; ll. 15 + 31 + 15 of excellent dbu-can script; paragraphs separated by |'s and ॐ in red).

"Kham account of Bam Stag-zigs. Crop of Bam Stag, patron of the Dgañ-ldan-hbyun-gnas monastery. Crop of Leñ-ho Siñu-lañ, patron of the Dgañ-ldan-gnas-kyi-gñal-yas monastery."

The document again is therefore simply a systematically arranged list of monasteries receiving as income the crops of certain farms, with the names of the owners or occupants of the farms, who are styled yon-bdag (dāna-pati "donors" or "patrons"). Though we have only a fragment, the number of establishments, many of which may have been small, is sufficient to remind us of the fact that Śa-cu was the place of the "Thousand Buddhas"; and the system, though perhaps the produce only, and not also the ownership, of the estates, belonged to the monasteries, is agreeably analogous to the holdings of the Tibetan Buddhist church and of the endowments of religion and learning in mediaeval Europe.

The names of the religious establishments, which are grouped under the several accounts according to their initial syllables, may conveniently be reproduced in the same manner:—

The names of these monasteries exhibit, as will be seen, a certain sameness. They consist for the most part of combinations of well-known Buddhist or Indian phrases, such as dri-med (= amala, nirmala), rnam-dag (= visuddha), dgah-lan (= tuzita), rin-chen (= ratna), chos-grags (= dharma-kīrti), g-yuñ-hdruñ (= svastika), don-dam (= paramārtha), bsam-yas (= acintya), khams-gsum (= tri-loka), bla-med (= anuttara), byams-pa (= Maitreya), ñhos-grub (= siddhi). They are all Tibetan, but may represent Sanskrit or Chinese originals.

It remains to justify the translation of tshan, which has occurred already several times (pp. 40, 42, 83), by "account" and to explain the phrase "khram account".

Tshan cannot have the common senses of "class", "group", "a number of", or of "mark", "name" (mtshan), or of "office". The sense of "account" (cf. yig-tshan) fits the occurrences. For khram (going back to khra-ma "register", etc.) we may cite khram-kha "chart used in witchcraft", "cross marks cut into a piece of wood", and khram-shā "board on which the body of a culprit is stretched to flog him on the back". Remembering the numerous wooden sticks with combinations of lines and frequently with names and amounts, we can hardly hesitate to recognize in the khram-tshan these same tallies, such as were frequent in

[88a, l. 1] " In founding the monastery erected in [Bkra-śis-dhyar-mo]than the authorities of the realm of Mdo-gams pray that through the merit and blessing of this donation made in honour of the Three Jewels all the sins of His Majesty, the Btsan-po, together with his retinue of lords councillors, may have been cleansed, and that, their merits and wisdom being perfected, the state being established in a circle of concord, in the enjoyment of long life and of entire felicity on the part of gods and men, they may realize the attainment of supreme, perfect illumination.

[88a, l. 3] PRAYER OFFERED BY THE BDE COUNCILLORS AT THE FACE-WARNING OF THE DE-GA MONASTERY FOUNDATION.

To all the Tathāgatas of the Three Times living in the Ten Directions, infinite and limitless, and those, entirely free from restriction, possessing a non-existence and eternity without bounds, with honour and land seeking refuge in them, in reverence hail !

To the Exalted in the universe and in the beyond, possessed of omniscient wisdom, as many as abide in their state, to the Dharma, the Buddha and the Saṅgha, seeking refuge with them, in reverence hail !

From the time when Ho-lde Spu-rgyal came from the gods of heaven to be lord of men, and ever in other exalted bodies —with great dominion, good religion, and great science, a royal lineage unbroken as far as the origin of the land where the kingdom arose—with the kind sway of a sovereignty firm on all sides and great filled and encompassed the Eight Regions ; to us Hgreñ people, without and within, equally considerate ; by their influence and measures taming the high and proud and bringing them under the rule of right ; with joy and encouragement in both present and future extolling the humble and afflicted ; filling us Hgren people beneath the ends of heaven with perpetual kindness ; rulers of the Four Quarters of the great heaven, equal to the manner of the divine, their Majesties the Btsan-pos of Tibet, of divine descent—

[89a, l. 1] Furthermore, established in his place, the pure and, his high kingdom, above great rivers and at the foot of high snow-mountains, His Divine Majesty, the Btsan-po, in the counting of the generations of his line (not ?) equal to the manner of the gods, is beyond other kings manifestly great and permanent.

[89a, l. 4] At the time when, through his great compassionateness towards us Hgren people, the great authority of his government spread and flourished, protecting us with respect in a manner resembling heaven, there came into power certain exalted councillors of state, the Great Councillor, Uncle Khri-sum-rje, and the Great Uncle Lha-bzan-po, these two. Humbling the might of enemies and setting them in the bosom of the state, by the power and influence of their stern commands they tamed all the border kings, of China, the Drug, the Hjañ and others, till then venturing and making effort for dominion, and cut short their hopes. After long time, when righteous and prosperous kindness had engendered trust and encouragement, as though heaven were realized in men's minds, some several states, respectfully heeding the orders of the high councillors of Tibet, made this great concordat of states : whereby, to say nought of ephemeral good and happiness both in present and future, there is among friend and foe alike reason profound indeed for extolling and celebrating the bosom of the state. Through myriad millenniums, undiminishingly beneficial and welcome, may this great, publicly enacted concordat, known and witnessed by the Three Jewels and by all gods and Nāgas of the universe, stand for all time unimpaired and firm. The subjects of the several kingdoms, by virtue of the thus enacted great concordat, consigning to oblivion their sufferings during the time of arms, and being united at one time in a situation of felicity, through the great merit thereof may His Divine Majesty, the honoured Btsan-po Khri Gtsug-lde-brtsan and the great councillors of State, successful in righteous achievement, the Great Councillors, Uncle Khri-sum-rje and Great Uncle Lha-bzan and the rest, together with their retinue of High Councillors of Tibet, and all beings, cleansed from the double darkness, and fulfilling their store of merit and wisdom, finally in supreme, perfected enlightenment attain to consummate Buddhahood [90b, l. 2].

In respect of the choice of this place as site for the foundation of the monastery erected on the De-ga Turquoise-Wood Concordat Plain and for biennial convention of the three great kingdoms and for great foundations, the site being moreover one fully blessed by Āryas of old, may it furthermore, through a foundation in respect of such great good realized at one time, be even more manifestly of great merit and auspiciousness. And through the grandeur of those great merits may this monastery be perpetual in time, as long as sun and moon exist ; and on the part of His Divine Majesty, the Btsan-po Khri Gtsug-lde-brtsan, may there be long life, great dominion, and purposes accomplished according to his mind.

Whereas formerly, in the time when China and the Drug were not in accord and harmony with the State, the firm-helmeted prince and the wise, heroic councillors, in the ardour of their warlike skill, smote at the foe and by the mighty power of large armies laid low enemy cities, won battles, conquered countries, slew the people and so forth, may the sin of severing the lives of many enemy men and cattle and of taking what was not given be altogether dominated by the splendour and power of this great merit and be dissolved and washed away.

[91*b*, l. 1] In condevotion with the merit of this donation in honour of the Three Jewels and of the confession of sins and so forth supplication for insight, for tolerance, and for remission of the confessed is made equally with what is above set forth.

[91*b*, l. 2] PRAYER OFFERED BY THE GREAT CITY OF MKHAR-TSAN AT THE MONASTERY ERECTED IN THE DE-GA TURQUOISE-WOOD.

Whereas in the lifetime of the High Councillor of Tibet, the firm-helmeted Sgam-dkyel the Great,—for till then the three great kingdoms of China, the Drug, and the Hjañ were resolute in contending for dominion,—the firm-helmeted lord designed to issue command that by the heroic might of his jewel councillors the enemy should be made to come beneath his sway, in founding a monastery erected to celebrate, as long as tradition of human generations endures, that that design is willed to be dominated and is covered up by kind summons to righteousness, and in thereby setting a crown upon the state's supremacy, may the purpose in the mind of the prince Khri Gtsug-lde-brtsan have been accomplished; and may the harm done to the enemy by Great Councillor Uncle Khri-sum-rje and Great Uncle Lha-bzañ through great defeats of the hostile Chinese and Drug and other means great and small, and on the part of certain of the city of Mkhartsan, who, taking side with the stubborn heroic people of Tibet and being foremost of heroes in winning two great victories in a single year, on behalf of the venture for dominion on the part of the lord and people of Tibet went forward with a will to harm animate creatures, so that wounds were needs inflicted, may those wounds likewise be healed so that not a scar remains!—with this prayer the great city Khar-tsan has made donation.

(This repeats 91b, l. 2 as far "on behalf of the venture for dominion on the part of the lord and people of Tibet" and then continues) were willing to proceed with force in harming the enemy, may that without a remainder be healed!—with this prayer the great city of Kva-cu has made donation.

[93a, l. 3] PRAYER OFFERED BY THE COMMANDANT OF THE PHYUG-TSAMS THOUSAND, HIMSELF AND HIS SUBORDINATES.

Hail to the Three Jewels! Hail to the Buddha, to the Omniscient! Hail to the Dharma, to the Path without superior! Hail to the Sangha, to the Bodhi-sattvas who do not regress! Honouring the Three Jewels in order to the success of the efforts of ourselves and others, having dismissed all sins and consenting to what is meritorious, we turn and cleave to the Three Jewels. That by inspired design in the mind of the firm-helmeted High Councillor Thugs-akam the Chinese, the Drug, the Hjan and others, until then heedless of commands, were set at rest equally with the native people and bidden to seek a shelter both firm-helmeted and great; that a concordat was framed and inscribed upon a stone pillar; that after foundation of the monastery [here] erected the border cities are at peace and in the interior of the great countries happiness has been made to flourish—forasmuch as there has been no greater kindness than this, in token of reverential and kind commemoration donation has been made to the Three Jewels: through the merit whereof may the lord of Tibet with his retinue of councillors enjoy long life and authority on all sides, and in the Tibetan realm, while foreign enemy and strife are unmentioned and the year's wealth is perpetually assured in accordance with rightful ordinance, may there be mundane and super-mundane happiness and felicity in perfection.

PRAYER OFFERED BY THE DISTRICT HSBROM-KHON.

The lord stationed on high a god; the councillors of the state inspired; the rift of heaven through divinely inspired High Councillors embroidered with divine blessing; the cloven earth, knitted by the influence of the councillors, a heaven realized; enemies held fast by concord; on the frontier no hostile venture; in the interior<sup>1</sup> the yak not beaten (?)—not enough that thus merely the people of Tibet should be enjoying happiness and felicity: in the realms beneath the sun whatever lesser kings there are, uneasy though they were and apprehensive of loss of state, not being lowered in state, are happy. Great kindness such as this having come from the lord [and] councillors, divinely inspired benefactors, a time of universal happiness for the people of Tibet has risen like a sun. Like a flower abloom in the country of the Luck-Summer plain (Bkra-kis-dbyar-mo-than), in the De-ga Turquoise-Wood (G-yi-tshal), a monastery has been erected by Great Councillor Uncle Khri-sum-rje and Great Uncle Lha-bzan and their subordinates and ourselves and others, and furnished with means for the instalment of a brotherhood: through which benefaction may the lord prince Khri Gtsug-lde-brtan be of long life and firm helmet, may great Councillor, Uncle Khri-sum-rje and Great Uncle Lha-bzan attain their purposed ends, may the monastery of the lords councillors of Tibet be imperishable, like the sun, and of firm foundation, and may<sup>2</sup> we ourselves and<sup>3</sup> all creatures, cleansed from the darkness of generations, be born in the courts of the supreme god of gods, the Buddha, the holy Maitreya."

From this remarkable record, which by its elevated magniloquence<sup>2</sup> and the no less exalted integrity of its sentiment would have done honour to any religious foundation, we may derive an enlarged conception of what was possible to the Tibetan people, and its language, during their period of greatness. While the background is the rigorous intellect of India, we note an accent reminding us that dogmatic systems, when planted among fresh peoples, may be capable of a certain refflorescence. What, however, more appropriately here attracts our attention is the circumstance that the great religious and historic occasion should have been greeted by "messages" not merely from princes and ministers, but from cities and local bodies. This invites a readjustment of our notions of life in north-eastern Tibet and Chinese Turkestan during the eighth and ninth centuries A.D.

The occasion was not the famous concordat whereby the Tibetans and Chinese sought to terminate a struggle of nearly (A.D. 783), or more than (A.D. 822), a century and a half. An account of those treaties has been given from Chinese sources by Bushell (JRAS. 1880, pp. 487 sqq.), and the Lha-sa inscriptions relating to them have been published with translations and discussions by Col. Waddell. This is not the place for an examination of the question whether those treaty inscriptions are two parts of a single document, or the question of the Tibetan dynastic lists. What is important for us to note is that the Btsan-po Khri Gtsug-lde-btsan of the document is certainly identical with the Khri Gtsug-lde-btsan Mes 'Ag-tahoms, the husband of Kim-sen Khon co, whose reign extended from A.D. 705-55, and that the treaty was made during his lifetime. Since he was definitely the Tibetan king (Btsan-po) of the time, the term lha-sras twice (92.A 2, 94.B 2) applied to him must have the sense of devaputra, "Son of Heaven." Of the two ministers, Khri-sum-rje and Lha-bzan, named in the document, the former must therefore be identified with the Khri-sum-rje Rtsan-bzer frequently mentioned in the Chronicle (ll. 147-85, years 44-54 = A.D. 715-25). He was Councillor in A.D. 715, Great Councillor in 721, Great Treasurer in 723, and he died in 725.

Another person mentioned as having initiated a war movement against China is a certain "Skam-skyel (or ilkyel) the Great", also designated Thugs-skam. In the Lha-sa inscriptions (1909, l. 44, 1910, B l. 42) he has hitherto escaped notice as an adviser of the Btsan-po Khri-lde-Gtsug-btsan.

From the dates of the persons concerned it is clear that the treaty in question is that concluded in A.D. 730 (Bushell, p. 466), on which occasion were erected boundary monuments, including, no doubt, the stone pillar (edo-rins) mentioned in 93 B 3 (p. 97).

The monastery having been erected on the site of the treaty conference, in the region of the Koko-nor lake, namely the Ch'ihling, "Red Hills," about 60 miles (320 li) from Si-ming-fu and 430 li west of the town of Shihp'u (Bushell, pp. 530-1)—known to the Tibetans (Chronicle, B.M. MS., ll. 43, 47), as Skyi-bu, it is there that we must locate the "Turquoise-Wood" (G-yu-tshal), in the "Luck-summer steppe" (Bkra-sia-dbyar-mo-thaṅ), in the "Phyug-tsams Thousand-District", in "Hbrom-khoṅ territory", forming part of the realm of Mdo-gams. The Dbyar-mo-thaṅ is mentioned in a Lha-sa inscription (JRAS. 1910, pp. 1255-67, l. 33 of text B), and in the Geografia Tibeta (p. 55): probably it is the Yar (G-yar, G-yer)-mo-thaṅ, in Kham, mentioned in Ś. C. Das' Dictionary, and is related to the G-yar-mo-sgaṅ of the Geografia Tibeta (p. 41). The Tson-ka named in adjacency to Dbyar-mo-thaṅ in the inscription may very likely be the birth-place of Tsoṅ-kha-pa, who was born near the Kūn-bum monastery site. In the Chronicle also a Tsoṅ-ka is mentioned (l. 74). The fact that "messages" are received from the towns of Kya-cu and Mkhar-tsan illustrates the natural connexion which we have already (pp. 72, 78, 82) found between the Koko-Nor region and that part of Chinese Turkestan. The name of the monastery does not transpire; but it is, no doubt, the place referred to in the Bkaḥ-hgyur (Beckh, Catalogue, p. 74 and Bstan-hgyur (Cordier, i. p. 96) as Phyug-mtshams. Hbrom-khoṅ is not known; but cf. Hbrom-ston, M.I., xiv, 96.

Of the parties to the treaty, the Chinese, the Drug, the Hjañ, and the Tibetans, who are, no doubt, meant by the "four exalted kings" (mtho-bli-rgyal-po) of the treaty inscription (JRAS. 1910, p. 951, l. 47 of text), the Chinese and Tibetans demand no comment, and concerning the Drug something has already been said (pp. 18, 30, 36) and it is proposed to return to them later (pp. 267 sqq.). Of the Hjañ we have hitherto had no printed mention beyond the occurrence of the name in the Dpañ-bsam-ljon-bran (ed. Ś. C. Das, p. 4) and an entry in Ś. C. Das' Dictionary, where Hjañ-sa is explained as a "place-name in N.W. (read N.E.) Tibet". But we may learn from the Rgyal-rabs . . . me-lon (India Office Xylograph, fol. 31a) that the person Hjañ-tshā-Lha-dhān "son of king Khri lde-gtsug-brtan" (Ś. C. Das' Dictionary, s.v.), was so named, "Hjañ grandson," because the queen, his mother, Khri-ltsun, was a Hjañ mo, a Hjañ woman: and from the same history we may ascertain more of this people.<sup>1</sup> Since their frontier was probably adjacent to the site of the conference, we are tempted to identify them with the Tang-hsiang kingdom, which according to Bushell (JRAS. 1880, pp. 450 and 528, n. 12) was east of the Tibetans and south of the Koko-nor. We know that this kingdom was conquered by the Tibetans in A.D. 678 (Bushell, p. 450), and it is mentioned (ibid., p. 464) in connection with the treaty of A.D. 730. How far the designation Hjañ may have reached, it would be premature to speculate; but it has been observed by M. Bacot (Les Mo-so, p. 13) that "le nom des mo-so, Djung (Hdjang), est relaté dans l'épopée du roi Gésar (Gésar) et désigne un pays situé entre le Ling (Gling) et la Chine". It is possible that the Mo-so in their southern migrations took with them the name Hjañ.<sup>2</sup>

as might be indicated by the fact that the first surviving folio is numbered 35. But we naturally incline to believe that the "messages" from Mdo-gams (ll. 88.1-2) and Bde-gams (ll. 88.3 sqq.) were preceded at least by one from the Tibetan Brsan-po himself and perhaps by others. (See No. 21 infra.) Of the first "message" we have only the conclusion, and its source is for us therefore unknown.

The language of the document, in accord with its literary character, is regular and intelligible in a measure quite different from the fragmentary and business records with which we have hitherto for the most part been dealing. It presents many resemblances to the Lha-sa inscriptions, which in several passages may by its aid be emended or completed. The introductory account of the legendary king Ho-kde Spu-rgyal in the inscription at 1900, pp. 948-52, ll. 5-16 of the text, might almost be an extract from our document, which, however, is here, as everywhere, far more expansive and elaborate. The following notes include the analogies in the inscriptions published in Col. Waddell's articles:—

88 A, l. 1, etc., etc.: mjal-dum, cf. Lha-sa, 1909, ll. 3, 54, 63, etc., etc.

88 A, l. 3: De-ga = "of Bde." To understand "here (there) erected monastery" would be awkward, as the pronoun has no reference: moreover, De-ga, as a surname occurs p. 440: 24.

88 B, l. 2: lha-las-myihi-rjer-gsogs-te. Cf. Lha-sa, 1909, ll. 21-2.

89 A, l. 1: hphrul "theophany". The word means "magic" or "magical manifestation", and was probably a pre-Buddhistic term for the divine.

89 A, l. 2: sa-gtsah, etc. Cf. Lha-sa, 1909, ll. 20-1.

89 A, l. 1: Hgreñ-myi. Note that this definitely locates the Hgrea people in the Koko-Nor region, or perhaps makes them include the people of Mdo-gams as a whole.

88 B. l. 4: lephral-du "in the present".

89 B, l. 4: gəh-gəh "friends and enemies".

91 A, l. 3: skyema, literally "thirst".

91 A. I. 4: srog-dan-bral. The reference is to the two Buddhist prohibitions of killing and of appropriating what is not given (all adattādāna being "theft").

92 A. 1. 1: khebi-te-brjad. This is a good instance of the use of the form with te as a sort of infinitive after a word of saving.

92 A. 1. 1: sin-to-htshal "will to grasp", literally "wish grasped". The use of the past form with to after htshal is frequent in the documents.

92 A. 4. 1; la-lhod = la-thod "turban" (Ś. C. Das)? We correct kye to kyl in accordance with the passage below.

92 A, l. 4: g-yul-belog-gñis. The two great victories include perhaps the capture of Kva-cu in A.D. 727 (supra, p. 2). Concerning the part played by the city of Mkhartsan, see above, p. 32.

94 A, L. 4 : arid-la-myi-dlab-ciñ. The phrase occurs Lha-sa, 1911.C I, 64.

94 B. I. 3: nam-tar recurs in Lha-sa, 1910, C I. 48.

[1-2] "On the fourth day of the middle spring month of the Ox year, the prince (tha-aras) having become an exalted donor in perpetuity, lamp-oil was provided in the monastery(ies) of Śa-cu. [2-6] In the monastery Pho-kvañ-si on the evening of the fourth day the god's servant 'Im<sup>2</sup> Dam-then-ħdo presented five phul<sup>3</sup> of yu oil, resulting in one hundred portions of lamp-oil. On the evening of the fifth day 'Im<sup>2</sup> Dam-then-ħdo presented five phul of yu oil, resulting in one hundred portions of lamp-oil. (So on the sixth and tenth days 9 and 4½ phul, resulting in 180 and 90 lamp-lights respectively.)

[B1] . . . resulting in sixty portions of lamp-oil. Lā Kim-kañ presented seven phul of yu oil, resulting in one hundred and forty portions of lamp-oil. On the evening of the twenty-eighth day Councillor Gtshug-bzer presented seven phul and one and a half khyor, resulting in one hundred and forty-seven portions of lamp-oil. On the evening of the fifth day of the last winter month Wan Cvan-cvan presented seven phul of yu oil, resulting in one hundred and forty portions of lamp-oil. (The remainder of the document, B ll. 4-11, reports similar donations by 'An Žen-tse (for Councillor Lho-bzañ), the God's servant Hag Kñi-šəñu, and Cañ Kvañ-thoñ.) "

The facts ascertainable from this record of donations to provide illuminations in honour of the prince becoming patron of the Śa-cu monastery seem to be the following:—

(a) Pho-kvañ-si is a monastery, and the word si (Chinese, as suggested above) may represent, as Professor Pelliot has kindly suggested, the Chinese 寺 "temple".

(b) tha-ħbañs is, no doubt, "god's servant", not "king's servant".

(c) As the number of lamps is consistently proportional to the number of phul presented, namely in the proportion of 20 to 1, and as  $1\frac{1}{2}$  and 2 khyor provide for 7 and 10 lamps respectively, it follows that 1 khyor =  $\frac{1}{4}$  phul, which latter measure is defined as "a handful".

(d) The phrase "with a half-two" (phyed-dan-do) means not "two and a half", but "one and a half", corresponding to Sanskrit ardha-dvītiya, German halb-zwei, etc. (and analogously in the case of other units).

The expression "yu oil" has not elsewhere been found. Probably yu is for gyu "material", so that "yu oil" would be raw or unpurified oil.

This passage is clearly a portion of another copy, or version, of the long document No. 19 above. Though it is for the most part too fragmentary for a connected rendering, the general sense is evident. It prays that in virtue of the action of the prince (lha-sras) Khri Gtsug-lde-britsan the Samghas of both sexes and all creatures may enjoy happiness and unlimited life; that the prince himself, free from sickness, exalted in dominion, rid of all opposition and so forth, may attain to Buddhahood in his present life; that all those under his sway may have long life and freedom from disease; and that "innumerable living beings and all throughout the realm of Tibet, in complete felicity and happiness, free from disease in man and beast, may be perpetually prosperous in the produce of the year".

These names, if we omit those in italics, which are Tibetan (perhaps translations), seem to be in the main Chinese, and in many cases their meanings are certain or probable.

A careful scrutiny from a Sinologist standpoint may explain the majority and indicate those, if any (e.g. some under Beg and Šaṅ ?), which may be extraneous. It seems probable that the 'Im clan gave its name to the town 'Im-ka-cin, mentioned above (pp. 17-8) and perhaps also to the Im-shan mountains.

3. The Nob Region

BY the "Nob region" we would for the present purpose indicate generally the stretch of country south of the desert of Chinese Turkestan and lying between "the Śa-cu region" on the east and "the Khotan region" on the west, together with any part of the mountain hinterland to the south. It would thus include, for example, Cer-čen (Calmadana), Charklik (Nob), and the former Shan-shan kingdom. The documents come mainly from the old fort of Mīrān, which was also, as we have seen, in communication with Śa-cu; there is, indeed, ample evidence of active intercourse between the Tibetan authorities from Khotan as far as Śa-cu and Kva-cu and even further into China proper. In general it is clear that, by the routes along the desert edge and otherwise, long journeys, covering many hundreds of miles, were habitual among the populations of the scattered oases and widely separated mountain settlements; in respect of distances they thought in large measures. It is in virtue of apparent importance and frequent mention in the documents that Nob, with its three or four towns, or forts, may be used to symbolize the whole region. The citations may be arranged under the names of the districts or places, which hereafter may acquire a more definite location. The dates are, no doubt, for the most part in the eighth century A.D.

I. TSHAL-BYI

That this place-name is connected with Nob and with the Ha-ža we have already seen (p. 37). Otherwise it had been known only from a mention in one of the Tibetan chronicles relating to Khotan (Rockhill, Life of the Buddha, p. 242). At the time of the downfall of Buddhism in Khotan the monks who abandoned the country and after a toilsome journey found refuge at the Tibetan capital reached Tibetan territory first at a place called Tshal-byi. See vol. i, pp. 59-60, 82, where the place is identified, on Chinese authority, with a Sa-pi-ch'êng located (L. Giles, BSOS., vi, p. 830) by a lake in the mountains at a distance of 480 li (say 100 miles) south of Charklik. The here available information is contained in the following documents:—

 a letter was sent directing a change of staff in the Tshal-byi watch-tower; only pay for the employment was not received.
 [5-8] We being five or six brothers, sons of a father in service, and two brothers being capable persons useful in the harvest (rkya-pherd ?) of the watch-tower, if a letter were sent with orders on the part of the prince and his mother advising an instruction to the Tshal-byi general and the King's Eye that the staff in the watch-tower should receive pay for their employment, it would be as if we had been saved from death.

[8] Before our father dies, we brothers are hoping to get a sight of his face (?)."

Inverted. [9] "To the divine presence: letter-petition of a poor hireling (g-yar-zan ?) Mtsin-sa Bor-aga."

l. 1. bsñel-byañ: The phrase recurs in M. Tagh. a, iv, 00128; see pp. 160, 331.

l. 3, etc. mthoñ-khyab (= khab): This might be an alternative form of mthoñ-khab (there being not a little indifference as between n and ñ final), which might mean "high residence, head-quarters"; but the other occurrences of the phrase (see, e.g., pp. 121, 133, 274, 445-6, and cf. M.I. iv, 27; xxv, 003) seem to favour the rendering given.

bsnan: This is clearly a form from snon, which occurs later in the document; the usual sense being that of "augmentation", the meaning here may be to employ in addition. Cf. pp. 120, 133, B 1, 424.

hbyuñ-ba-las: On this phrase see p. 27.

l. 4. stams-las: "Summarily"; the phrase has occurred, p. 79.

l. 5. snon-god: cf. p. 270, 7.

Note

1. 3. khri[m]-bon-pho[g]-pahi: The reading is somewhat uncertain. As regards khrim-bon = khrims-dpon it may be remarked that dpon often appears in the documents in the forms bon and phon. Judges are sometimes mentioned, and it seems that the district Tshal-byi was provided with one. With na-bran "young servant" compare pha-bran above, p. 122.5. On Bde see pp. 20, 25; on "Tigers", p. 124.

Notes

1. 1. dmag-pon: It appears that there was a "general commander" for Tshal-byi; cf. p. 122 and No. 8, below.

ñā-hgod: The phrase occurs below, pp. 140, 146.

riñ-la-gñad-pa: The reading riñ (= rñ) is not quite certain: gñad-pa = gñad-pa "sent". Rñ, however, is evidently for riñ-lugs, which occurs in a similar context pp. 139.2, 146: 41.2.

From these passages it appears that Cer-cen was included in Tshal-byi, i.e. under the Tshal-byi administration. M.I. iv, 111, xiv, 008c are uninformative. From the mention of the general and the "horn-commander" it is plain that Tshal-byi was the district of a military unit.

II. NAG-SOD, RGOD-TSÁN-SMAD (Lower Rgod-tsañ), RGOD-TSÁN-STOD (Upper Rgod-tsañ), KHA-DRO

These are four districts, as is evident from the arrangement of the wooden document, M.I. xxviii, 0017.

It appears herefrom that Lower Rgod-tsañ was a Thousand-district, stod-sde, and had a stod-dpon. The term stod-sde, which perhaps denotes a district of 1,000 families (as Dr. Prâna Nath suggests for similar phrases in India), has been noted above, pp. 25 and 40. The district is mentioned also in M.I. 003, and M. Tagh. a, ii, 0097 and elsewhere.

Notes

On tshugs-pon, hog-pon, and rtzig see Index. Snog-śod should perhaps be Śog-śod, which is known as one of the eighteen śoda. Ņa-sroñ is probably a place (or clan) -name, which is certainly the case with Pho-yon, as one of the wives of Khri-sroñ Ldehu-btsan was Pho-yon-bzah. It will be seen that Rgod-ldiñ (mentioned also in M.I. xvi, 15) evidently belongs to the same general region as Rgod-tshañ.

Notes

Kha-dro is here again associated, though only indirectly, with Rgod-tsañ-amad and Nag-śod. Lañ is probably the tribe of the Lañ-myi regiment (Vol. I, p. 278 and n. 4); Thre (Tre) also is, no doubt, tribal. On tshugs-pon and hog-pon see

III. HDZOM-SMAD (Lower Hdzom) and HDZOM-STOD (Upper Hdzom)

A district Hdzom is several times mentioned in the documents, more often, in fact, than would be the case if it were in another region. The name Hbrug suggests (see p. 18) that it lay east, towards the Śa-cu quarter.

Ho-nal seems to be an official title in M.I. ii, 27; vi, 6; xiv, 58a; see also pp. 170, 427.

(Other mentions in p. 460 and viii, 17; xxiii, 009 (verso); the last a letter from Hbrug-legs to Councillor Stag-bzan.)

[1] "To the chiefs Mtsho-gzigs and Klu-htsho: petitioner Myes-rtön. [1-2] After I also had arranged the journey down there was a report that Your Excellency yourself were departing to Cer-cen. [2-B 1] Here the ass (asses?) had fallen a little behind, so that not a morsel of millet and barley had arrived down here. Subsequently there has been a delay of some ten days. [B 1-3] If upon considering carefully with the messenger whether I ought or ought not to go to Cer-cen, you do not promptly send orders by the first post, it will be very unfortunate: I wish to go. [B 3-4] Since, if a good robe shall not have been procured, matters will not be well arranged, please . . . price and quality, as may be arranged, and I will pay."

This letter may have been written (in Tshal-byi?) by someone on the way down from Tibet to Charklik. The contemplated deviation to Cer-cen would perhaps have taken the direct mountain route, over the Tokuz-davan. The letter will have been sent to Mirān, where it was found.

V. KA-DAG

As is noted by Sir Aurel Stein (Serindia, pp. 320 n., 454 n.), Mirzā Haidar, in his Ta'rikh-i-Rashādī (Elias and Ross, pp. 10, 52, 64, 406), mentions in connexion with Lob (= Nob) a city named Katak, and tells a story of its having been overwhelmed in a sand-storm. There has been some question concerning the name, which some MSS. give as Kanak; and Sir A. Stein even thought that the story was legendary, being based upon the expression kātek-shāhri

"town of dead trees". These doubts must now disappear in view of the references to be cited from the Tibetan documents; but whether the place Kotak-Sheri, located by Mr. E. Huntington (The Pulse of Asia, p. 387) at a distance of 138 miles from Endere and 264 miles from Lalan, represents the old site and name we have at present no means of determining. See Forsyth, Mission to Yarkund, pp. 28-9.

Ka-dag was mentioned above (in No. 1, p. 120), and it is further named in M.I. 0077; i, 14; i, 17; iv, 19; xiv, 38, 61a; wherein, however, there is no information. In ii, 40
(below, No. 30, p. 136) a courier of Ka-dag is mentioned.

The place was, as we see, a town (mkhar) with a watchtower (nthon-khyab) and a chief lord (rtse-rje). It seems to have been closely associated with Great and Little Nob, and it was, no doubt, in their neighbourhood. There was a territorial regiment belonging to the district.

[3-5] We not being satisfied with what you had written; Pag-tsa, who was associated with the Klu-rtse soldiers, and Myo with some twenty arrogant fellows (lba-tsha ?), said: 'Give us leave to go to Klu-rtse'. [5-6] Later, as a mistress who was with child (spu-mizad-mo ?) was come to Little Nob, the Four Towns, they waited. [6-8] On the seventeenth day of the first autumn month of this year they took the road and went, saying, 'We do not believe . . . from a missive on the part of the previous chief of the Four Towns.' [8-9] Setting at nought the entreaties of the courier Lda-ka Hwa-lwa and . . . quarrelling with (one another ?) . . . they did not leave even the tent-coverings and sent not a word to Rma-sgra, the chief of the Four Towns. 'This ought to be reported. Those two should be looked after,' [10] the courier Hwa-lwa having thus represented in the presence of the chief lord Councillor Legs-bzan, Councillor Rma-sgra and the rest, the tsa-rhu Guṅ-tshal Klus-ma-de and Sgya-ro Zigs-legs, the Uncle Ministers caused their signatures to be attached."

Notes

The translation is in a few points uncertain or even conjectural. The general sense is that three persons are conveying government merchandize from Legs-anañ, to be delivered in Little Nob. In case of failure of delivery in time or in the right quantities or with bills for what is deficient Legs-anañ and his guarantor may have their whole property seized without right to bring a suit. The agreement is signed by a government overseer, a lawyer (?), and the two persons concerned. The gap in line 9, for a missing name, shows that the document is a draft only.

Smudges of Seals. Verso : Phu . tsab . kyī . dpañ . rgya .

[1] "In the Hog year, in reply to the despatch of the great Uncle-Councillor, Councillor Dpal-bzañ, at the mart of Little Nob. [1-3] From a person of the Rgod-tsañ upper district, who previously, when a layman, was called Hu-tañ Gsas-chuñ, but after entering the community was named Byañ-cub-bkra-śis (Bodhimāṅgala), Gños Ho-se [had hired] a servant stated to be Pho-btson, a man of Chinese family, but in his signature named the Chinaman Phu-tsab, aged about fifty years. [3] Ever since the arrival of an army in old days, the bande having been made by Ho-se . . . of Rje-gol, he had been in service with Ho-se. [3-4] In the present year Ho-se, having come to an agreement, the price being eight red srañ, sent it forthwith to the bande in full. [4-5] Phu-tsab, while according to this agreement under the authority of Ho-se, became involved in a dispute at law and, being defeated (†), ran away to this side. [5-6] After the bande had caused a demand by letter to be made as to what the dispute was, it has been arranged that the bande should at once give an equally capable servant to whoever is in possession of this agreement. [6-7] In case the bande does not come, it has been arranged that his guarantor shall send by letter all that results from the above bond; [7-9] in evidence whereof the attestation marks of Councillor Stag-sgra, the head and lord Councillor Stag Stag-rtzan, Councillor Dpal-bzañ-po . . . dog-rje, Councillor Dge-bzær Lha Hbrug-brtsan, the farmers Stag-bzañ Lha-spe, Ldoñ-phreñ Mdo-goñ, and others and the written signatures (hand-marks) of [the bande] and the guarantor are attached."

Verso : "Attestation mark of Phu-tsab."

Notes

The case seems to be that a certain bande, Byañ-cub-bkra-śis, hired out his slave Phu-tsab, a Chinaman, to a person Gños Ho-se in Ho-se (?), who paid a sum in composition for the slave's services. The slave became involved in legal trouble and fled away to his old master, who after inquiring into the matter engages to compensate Gños Ho-se either by a substitute or otherwise. The signature of Phu-tsab on the verso proves that he was with his old owner, the bande.

l. 1. Rgod-tsañ-stod-kyi-sde: Concerning this district see above, pp. 126-8.

l. 2. tha-mar-zugs-nas: The reading mar is partly conjectural; the sense must be that of "having become a monk".

Ho-se: A Chinese place-name, "West of the river," used as the name of the person?

Pho-btson: The name has occurred before, p. 69.

l. 3. Rje-gol: A place in the Śa-en region (pp. 362, 367).

l. 4. zal-mchu: Perhaps only apparently = "face-lip". In the sense clearly of a dispute it occurs in the very analogous document from Tun-huang, pp. 58-60: see also Index.

tha-sñad = Sanskrit vyavahāra "affair".

l. 5. brgya-la: Apparently = brgyal-la, but in the sense of being the loser, recurs similarly in the above-mentioned document (p. 60) and elsewhere (see Index): but the phrase occurs several times in the Tibetan Karma-vibhāṅga (ed. Lévi, e.g. p. 191, l. 25, p. 193, l. 29) with the sense of "if", or "if not": perhaps we may understand "or at any rate"!

l. 6. — khas-len: The gap is, no doubt, for the insertion of the name, as in European legal drafts.

dam-goñ-nas-hbyun-baḥi-rnams: "The things ensuing from the above bond" recurs in the mentioned document (p. 59.10).

[1-2] "To . . sgre-gaṅ-sgrā: letter-petition of Khrom-koñ. I was glad to have heard above that, as a letter stated, you were happy. As for Khrom-bzer's gossip, what has been heard from Councillor Khri-rma need only be mentioned. [6-8] At the moment of sending this letter there have come from the residence of the Councillors of Mdo three despatches to the extent of nine sides. It seems that from Nañ-goñ plenty of men have come: from Smad also followers. There is nothing to report to your divan. Thanks for making now clear what has been sent to Councillor Mañ-zigs. life and death the enemy should not be allowed to penetrate, among the people here also, not content with the year's grain having been taken by the enemy, as soon as autumn arrives it is desired to let them in on the Nob-śod side. Rmañ-cuñ's handiwork also has at last come after long time to Nob-śod—so it has been made to appear."

Notes

The document reports the substance of news from various sources and not of a cheering character: an epidemic among men and cattle, want of money and food, scarcity of men for the army, encroachment of "the enemy". The places named are Skal-lkhar, which sounds like Khalkha (if conditions of time and place allow), Nañ-goñ and Mdo, which is clearly Mdo-khams. Who "the enemy" are does not appear. The translation is in part uncertain.

[1-2] "On the new-moon day of the first spring month of the Snake year, in the presence of the chief lord, Councillor Ju-cug, and the Uncle-Councillor Skyah-po Dbye-rma and the rest, [2-5] The complainants, Pañ-tsab Rbeg-chuñ and Ldoñ-phrañ Spra-hu-koñ, two couriers, having engaged on hire the Rlañ eldest (?) brother and elder brother and younger brother Klu-hdus and Dañ-hbe Myes-mthoñ and Rlañ-phrañ Hphan-legs and others, the complainants Rbe[g]-chuñ and the rest state: [5-7] We, having from Little Nob assembled a company of eight porters . . . . . of the Turks, came to Great Nob. [7-10] Having from the chief lord procured the hire of some stick-gatherers and the stick-gatherers not having come, we were told to break down a ruined house outside. When we two had broken down a ruined house, the five above-mentioned persons, at a time when the children of both of us were tired . . . assaulted us and ill-treated us almost to the point of death. The two Stoñ-sdes not . . . to us and sending us to the Bkañ-luñ, we went to the distinguished Dkañ (sic). The Bkañ-luñ was biased and abused us. [14-15] 'Law you can have, if you like. l. 3. Rlañ: This is, no doubt, a local name, and the Rlañ-phran below is "the little Rlañ". In p. 356 is named a Rlañ Klu-sto, and in pp. 241, 467 we have mention of a Rlañ district or regiment (sde). The three brothers seem all to have been named Klu-hdus, whence the manner in which they are particularized.

l. 6. Hor-gyi-mjug-stog: Is mjug-stog for hjug-ldog, which seems to have the sense of "obstacles" (= "protection against?")? But mjug occurs elsewhere (= "rear"?).

[2-4] To the people (?) of Great Nob barley four loads less one-half. Three pho-re of wool belonging to Hphan-legs delivered in return therefor : will send up not to deliver the remainder."

Notes

On pho-re and phyé-dañ-bñi (= 3½) see pp. 66, 112. Khal, load, no doubt technical as on p. 41, contains 20 bre. Hphan-legs-kyi may be = kyis, "by Hphan-legs."

Summarizing, we may mention in regard to Little Nob that we hear of its "chief lord" (rtse-rje, M.I. vii, 27, 76 ; xiv, 0027 ; xxvi, 13 ; xxxii, 13), of its ngo-rñon (p. 154), of its "foreign councillor" (dgra-blön, p. 337), of its "regional, chiefs" (nos-pon, p. 337), and its "chief Lama" and "chief physician" (pp. 152, 399-401). It is called a "town" (mkhar, M.I. xlv, 005) and a "mart" (khrom, pp. 143, 153). We hear of the "Three Towns" and also of the "Four Towns". Great Nob is a "town" (mkhar, p. 140), and it has a "chief lord" (rtse-rje, pp. 449, 451, and M.I. vii, 27) and "lord's land" (rje-ññ, p. 140). Sometimes we hear of the "chief lord of Great and Little Nob" (M.I. vii, 27).

The Three Towns (pp. 136, 318), Ka-dag, Great Nob and Little Nob, are named as such in the Saka-Khotanī text (ll. 11-12) edited in Two Medieval Documents from Tun-huang by F. W. Thomas and Sten Konow (Oslo, 1929). With the addition, no doubt, of Rtse-thon they become the Four Towns (pp. 138, 146).

Concerning Der-ḥa-ra and the person Mdo-sgraḥ we have no information. Nob-śod, mentioned also in M.I. xxx . 8 (p. 148), recurs in a Tibetan text as one of the eighteen śods (low countries); since Nob = Nag (p. 30), it was substantially identical with Nag-śod. ### Notes

In these orders (cf. pp. 447-9) the starting-point is not stated, so that the locating of Snañ-rtse and Tañ-gśor is difficult; but the latter name reminds us of Rta-zor (pp. 21-2) and Ltañ-yor (p. 268) and suggests the famous junction point Don-kyr, Tan-kar, Don-gor, Dang-gor near the Koko-Nor (Ritter, Geographie, iv, 217; Richthofen, I, p. 260).

The latter part of the document is hardly translatable, several of the expressions, e.g. phyug-ma, sha-ltogs, ltor, being obscure. [See now Vol. III, p. 57.]

IX. STA-GU

In M.I. iv, 18, we have a wooden "card" of a certain Sta-gu G-yu-sgra, i.e. G-yu-sgra of Stagu, and a person of Pug-tse Stagu, i.e. perhaps Pug-rtse in Stagu, is mentioned in another wooden tablet (M.I. xxviii, 4). The place is, no doubt, the Sta-gu-khrom "mart (market-town) Sta-gu" mentioned in M. Tagh., a, iv, 00128 (l. 5): see also p. 248.

X. РТАК-НТОН

The sde, district (or regiment), of Rtse-hthon, is mentioned in p. 467 ; and a person Go-hji Spe-rton is named on his wooden card as belonging thereto (xv, 0012 : Rtse . hthon . gi | Go . hji . Spe . rton |)

In the autumn, whatever the amount of the barley, when it is gathered [5] (?) in the fields from the several crops, any plaint claiming damage to animals or goods [6] shall be rendered by Tehu-teñu in writing (mchid)—in attestation (of these terms): If payment is not forthwith made or if trickery is used [7], one is to become two, and from his door any outside stock or inside goods, wherever bestowed, [8] together with their increase, are to be seized without a single protest. Whatever the damage sustained [9], if the property does not equal the maximum (or former, bla) weight and value, an equivalent debit is to be paid forthwith. [10] Thus agreed, on each occasion of trickery or trouble charged, he (Tehu-teñu) shall attend and escort. In this draft agreement the monk Cañ Leñ-hyan undertakes, apparently of good will or on ground of relationship, to supply oxen and tools for tillage of the farm of Teñu-teñu in conjunction with his own, reserving a right to compensation for any damage to his goods.

The place Pog-peñu-hra (gra t)-br[i]h-reñs (redo), which must have been in the Śa-cu region, whence the document comes, is not identified: cf. the documents discussed infra, pp. 351-3, 363-8. Se-ton, evidently the place so named supra, pp. 15-16, 36-7, cannot have been remote from Śa-cu. As a winter residence of the Hā-za royal family (pp. 10-11), it must have had a certain importance. Here it appears as headquarters of a regiment or district (sde) with a watch-tower. Its identity with Rtse-thon (supra, pp. 160-1) and the Tái-tuen of the Chinese (p. 37) is hardly open to doubt.

The names Teñu-teñu and Cañ Leñ-hyan are normal in the Śa-cu region (pp. 113 sqq.). But the surname Hkal-rgyah-bzañ is obscure.

[4-5] We are thus a little late. Be so considerate as not to order punishment."

Notes

Byeñu-lin has been noted, upon Professor A. H. Francke's information, by Sir Aurel Stein (Serindia, p. 470). It is mentioned, as he reports, in M.I. xxvii, 19 (verso, recording an assembly, hdun-tsa, there). Conceivably it is the Yü-ling of the Chinese, placed by Dr. Herrmann in the neighbourhood of Dälai-kurghān (Die alten Seidenstrassen, p. 99, cf. Serindia, p. 296). As to Byeñu = Yü cf. Byeñu = Yao, p. 233.

4. The Khotan Region

COMING to Khotan, we observe first that it is frequently mentioned in the documents under its name Hu-ten or with minor variations, such as Hu-den (M.T. a, iii, 0063) Hu-then (M.T. b, i, 0098). The country and the inhabitants are designated Li, as in the other known sources. The material may be grouped under heads as follows:—
I: The Khotan district and city, including A, The two rivers; B, The Parishes and streets; C, Temples or Monasteries; D, The citadel of Khotan; E, The Khotan King; F, Amacas, a Nan-rje-po and a Dmag-pon. II: Šin-šan. III: Gyu-mo, Ho-toñ Gyu-mo. IV: Places with names ending in rise. V: Other places presumably in the Khotan region. VI: Places or states adjacent to, or connected with, the Khotan region. VII: Personal names of Khotani people. VIII: The Khotan language.

V. "The Khotanī Gu(Gru ?)-jo(dze ?) was punished (executed), 1 : the Khotanī Sam-rba(ga ? 'Am-ca ?) was (or thirty (sum.cu) Khotanīs were ?) punished (executed)—figures."

Here we have the same discrimination of the lands east of the rivers, west of the rivers, and between the rivers, which, as occurring in the Tibetan chronicle of Khotan, has caused trouble to Rockhill (Life of the Buddha, p. 236) and Sir Aurel Stein (Ancient Khotan, 161-2). Previously (Asia Major, ii, p. 258) we have suggested alternative translations "east of the river" and "of the eastern river". In view of the correspondence of the three phrases śel-chab-hog-ma, śel-chab-gon-ma, and śel-chab-dbus, the former rendering, but with the plural "rivers", seems preferable. The interpretation of "above" and "below" as equivalent to "east" and "west" is in accordance with some Eastern-Asian usages.

The name of the western river is known to have been Go-ma. If this meant "lower-river", in which eventuality the eastern may have been called **Go-ya*, the case for the alternative rendering would be strong.

Concerning the parishes, streets, and personal names see below (pp. 169-182, 260-2). It is likely that the parishes belong respectively to the districts with which they are associated, namely Śi-ro-ña to that west of the rivers, Has-go-ña to that east of the rivers, Bar-ma-ro-ña to the district between the two; and the street Ba-zo-ña will be in the actual town of Khotan. The term tshar "parish" will now occupy us.

B: The Parishes (tshar) and streets (sran)

The term tshar occurs in some fragmentary and hardly legible documents which usually seem to be lists of soldiers or officials stationed in particular places. Since one of the places mentioned, namely Dro-tir, has been previously ("The Language of Ancient Khotan" in Asia Major, vol. ii, p. 262) noted as occurring in the Tibetan chronicle of Khotan, where it is styled ljons, "district," it would seem that the latter term is a Tibetan rendering of tshar. That the word may denote a subdivision of a sde, or regiment, has been shown above (p. 68); but even in that passage we have a gul-yig "district list", and in view of the territorial arrangement of the Tibetan armies it is likely that, as in the case of sde, so in that of tshar the local sense was the prims. The term seems to have been originally not Tibetan, but Khotanī, as is evidenced by the fact that the persons named in connection with tshars are invariably designated Khotanis. Possibly the name of the oldest Khotan shrine Tsar-ma (see below, p. 182) may mean merely "lower parish", being short for Tsar-ma-hjo "temple of the lower parish", which in fact occurs. But ma may be merely a termination, as in other Tibeto-Burman languages.

2. M. Tāgh. a, iv, 0074 (wood, c. 19.5 × 3, cut away at left; hole for string at right; ll. 4 recto of clear, regular, cursive, dbu-can script—perhaps palimpsest—+ ll. 3 verso, a different document in a more cursive hand, rather faint).

Notes

1. 1. 'o-nal, which occurs elsewhere (p. 131 and M.I. ii, 25 and 27; vi, 6; xiv, 58a; xxvii, 11), seems to be a military designation.

Li Hu-ten, "Khotan Hu-ten," denotes, no doubt, the city Hu-ten, to which the name always appertains, of the Li (Khotan) country.

Rgya Legs-khri: If this is a Chinaman (Rgya), he is here honoured with a Tibetan name.

1. 2. 'O-toñ Sgo-mo is, no doubt, a variant of Ho-ton Gyu-mo, concerning which place see infra (pp. 212 sqq.).

Notes

We have here evidently a schedule of certain selected persons belonging to particular regiments. Of such regiments a list will be supplied later (pp. 455 sqq.) ; here it may suffice to note that some are found in several documents, e.g. the above-named Hgrom-pa regiment is mentioned also in p. 174 and Vol. I, p. 277. The G-yar-skyan regiment is very possibly, as we have suggested (in Sir Aurel Stein's Innermost Asia, p. 1985, for the Yar-skyen-gi-ade), "the Yarkand regiment." Cf. p. 469.

Glan-myi, tshugs-pon, g-yer-lo (?), and ra-sans are military or other designations which will be considered later (pp. 426-8). For tshugs-pon the translation "sergeant" is merely a makeshift. The word tshugs occurs usually in connection with small numbers of soldiers, and often there is a tshugs-pon "sergeant" and his subordinate hog-pon "corporal", while sometimes we have a tshugs-pa "a member of a tshugs". The military connections exclude the dictionary meaning "caravansatai" for tshugs, and it might be convenient if tshugs were equivalent to phyugs "animal", so that the tshugs-pon would be an officer in charge of horses, camels, etc. But possibly tshugs may denote camping arrangements, so that a tshugs-pon would be a sort of minor "adjutant" or "quarter-master". Ra-sans (sic) will be found infra, pp. 175, 196, and it recurs elsewhere (Tibetan chronicle, ll. 19 and 22, ra-sah-rje).

It is natural to inquire as to the purpose of such lists, which must, as will appear, have been numerous. Plainly these are not regimental lists, but notes of soldiers belonging to different regiments, who were stationed, or living, in detached places. Probably they were on duty, employed in espionage or in other special tasks, one of which will have been to form "relays" (so-res) for conveyance of correspondence, a function of which we often hear. It is likely in fact that the word so "soldier", which in Tibetan means "keeper", "guard", "watchman", "spy", "emissary", originally denoted "one who goes", corresponding to the Sanskrit cara (used in the Kharoṣṭhi documents). In our documents we sometimes (e.g. p. 444) find the phrase so-rjed, which should mean "soldier-memorandum" (cf. rjed-tho "note-book", rjed-byan "invoice", brjed-tho "memorandum"); and, as this phrase occurs on the verso of one of the lists (a, iv, 0074, p. 169 supra, a separate document), it is likely that it denotes precisely such a list.

Notes

Concerning the place-names ending in -rtse (Stag-rtse, Bye-ma-ḥdord-gyi-rtse), and concerning Ho-toñ Gyu-mo, see infra (pp. 212 sqq.). As regards the regiments see supra (p. 172).

The terms lo-nan and phur-myi will recur infra (pp. 219, 224); sñā-šur is found in M.T. a, iii, 0070, etc.: in the Tibetan Rgyal-rabs (Francke, Antiquities of Tibet, ii, p. 82) gñā-šur seems to be local or tribal. Sro occurs, pp. 444, 457, in a military connection.

Notes

Concerning the Ha-za, the Dru-gu, and the word cor see pp. 1 sqq., 123-4, 267 sqq., and p. 18 and infra (p. 204); concerning ra-saṃs see supra (pp. 172-3).

Peḥu-mar will recur below (pp. 244-6). The Parish Dro-tir, which will recur in the next document, is evidently the ljons
("district") Dro-tir of the Tibetan chronicle of Khotan (Asia Major, ii, p. 262) and Vol. I, p. 114, n. 4.

Notes

This is an agreement, or legal decision, of a kind exemplified supra, pp. 45-6, 62, 66, etc. In this case the gaps prevent our knowing what the Khotanī was to pay for the soldier's goods. On the other hand, the document furnishes an instance of civil, and not military, use of designation by parish.

 . . . dir (a, i, 0031).
 . . . i-ña (a, ii, 0096).
 . . . la-ro-ña (0492).

In addition to these Sag-ti seems to occur in M. Tāgh. b, i, 0092 (p. 186 below) and in 0508.

The most characteristic feature of these names is the terminal syllable ña, which appears in the great majority of them. This confirms the suggestion, previously (The Language of Ancient Khotan, pp. 259, 260; Festgabe Hermann Jacobi, pp. 49, 61-2) made, that it had a meaning similar to that of "Sanskrit bhūmi, sthāna, kṣetra, and the like", or, we might add, the Teutonic ham, heim, etc. In a number of cases the two final syllables are ro-ña, which combination may have conveyed a combined meaning. For the no in Śir-no the explanation previously suggested (The Language of Ancient Khotan, p. 267) for the "little hill" Ḥḡus-no may also be adduced.

The "streets" (srañ) mentioned are:—

Ba-žo-ña (b, i, 0048).

Byi-nom(chom ?)-na (a, i, 0031).

Ma-žo . . (a, vi, 0030).

No-ña (0492).

The general resemblance of these names of parishes and streets to those cited on pp. 264-6 of the article quoted will escape no one. It may be noted that in the bilingual document published in Hoernle's Manuscript Remains of Buddhist Literature (Oxford, 1916), pp. 402-3, we probably have a parish name of the same kind, Mar-śi-ko-ña.

C. Temples or Monasteries

15. M. Tāgh. a, iii, 0012 (wood; c. 21.5 × 1 × 2 cm.; complete; on one face (D) many notches with lines; L. 1 (face A) + L. 1 (face C) of ordinary cursive dbu-can script):

[A] Li . Gos . de | Li . Śir . de . | | Li . Hir . bod .

[C] Lha . gañ . Tshar . ma . ḥjo | Lha . gañ . Tshar . ma . ḥjo | Lha . gañ . Ḥḡum . tir . |

"The Khotanī Gos-de, of the Tshar-ma-ḥjo temple; the Khotanī Śir-de, of the Tshar-ma-ḥjo temple; the Khotanī Hir-bod, of the Ḥḡum-tir temple."

Since the syllable ḥjo is often found terminating the names of Khotan shrines, the Tshar-ma-ḥjo is probably identical with the famous Tsar-ma foundation mentioned by Hiuan-Tsang (Rockhill, Life of the Buddha, pp. 237-8), while the Ḥḡum-tir caitya was almost equally famous (see Asia Major, vol. ii, pp. 262-3). Cf. Vol. I, pp. 104 sqq., 108 sqq.

The Tsar-ma-ḥjo is named also on another wooden slip (M. Tāgh. 0181); also b, i, 0046.

16. M. Tāgh. b, i, 0070 (wood, broken away at right before being inscribed; c.  $12 \times 2.5$  cm.; complete; l. 1 of clear, cursive dbu-can script).

Lha . gañ . Gu . žau . do | Li . Sar . rñoñ |

"The Khotanī Sar-rñoñ of the Gu-žau-do temple (Lha-khañ)."

The temple in question is probably related to the Vihāra Hgu-gžau-ta, mentioned in the Tibetan chronicle and discussed in Zeitschrift für Buddhismus, vol. vi, p. 187, and Asia Major, vol. ii, pp. 264 and 266. See Vol. I, p. 122.

This temple or monastery also is mentioned in the Tibetan chronicle (Asia Major, vol. ii, p. 266) and associated texts (see Vol. I, pp. 53, 118-120).

18. M. Tagh. a, vi, 0023 (wood; c.  $11.5 \times 2$  cm.; complete; ll. 2 recto of ordinary, cursive dbu-can script, l. 1 verso in a larger hand, more formal, a writing exercise).

[A] ☉ | : | So : ma : ña . Be . de | j[o] : gyi | Žo : da :

[B] ka kha ga | ña ea cha ja ña da ba na

"Žo-da of the Be-de temple in So-ma-ña."

Notes

Žo-da may, or may not, be a personal name; if not, it is perhaps an official designation.

So-ma-ña Be-de-jo: This is, probably, the famous So-ma-ña or Sum-ña vihāra, the So-mo-je of Hiuan-Tsang, concerning which see Ancient Khotan, pp. 194, n. 223-5, and Vol. I, p. 118.

It seems, therefore, that the documents<sup>1</sup> name several of the most famous religious establishments in Khotan, confirming the literary records and supplying, where required, a chronological terminus ad quem.

1. A 2: brnañs-gcho: Perhaps for °tsho "company employed", with tsho as in so-tsho (p. 233 infra), mkhar-tsho (p. 424), etc., etc., and brnañs = bsnan in pp. 120, 123. Gsogs may indicate the "collective" pay.

B. dgra-zun: This seems to be for dgra-son "on the watch".

D. khram: Here the stick itself is the khram "inventory" (concerning the word see supra, pp. 91-2), as is indeed indicated by the notches on it. The word recurs below, p. 200. The dictionaries also give ñag (or ñu-ga)-khram with the sense of "notch" or "indenture".

Notes

This document is distinguished from most of the others by its writing, which is somewhat calligraphic, and, to a certain extent, by its phraseology. Thus it uses in ll. 2 and 6 the word gdags "transparent", or "discern", which except in M.I. i, 28 and pp. 23, 25, 383, 5 does not seem to recur, and the polite word mched "brother" or "friend" (see p. 332) is employed with reference to the distinguished officials who are addressed. Also the letter was corrected in the course of being put on paper.

Before the writer's name is written a sign which is clearly a monogram on the lines of the Phags-pa writing and the Dalai Lama's seal, but simpler and, of course, very much older (see the plate): it can plainly be read as nygal-po "king". The king's name is Utran, followed probably by the expression ced-po "great", written in a compendious form, an expedient exemplified in the documents in the case of other phrases and very habitual in later Tibetan writings.<sup>1</sup>

Now it happens that in a Tibetan letter<sup>2</sup> from an emissary of a Khotan king the Lion (Sen-ge) king is named Mun-dmag-trañ, in which phrase the syllables Mun-dmag, which occur elsewhere, denote some kind of troops. The last syllable is the name which appears in our document. Professor Konow has suggested that the king must be the Vijaya-bohan-chen-po of the Khotan Chronicle (see Ancient Khotan, p. 582), and the Viśa-Vā(ū)ham of a document published by Dr. Hoernle in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, 1901, Extra Number, I, pp. 36 sqq., and discussed by Professor Konow in the JRAS. 1914, pp. 339 sqq., and Ostasiatische Zeitschrift, viii, pp. 221 sqq.

This identification is reinforced by the addition of the phrase ced-po (if correctly read) in our document, a phrase appended to the name of no other Khotan king. Since Htran is a good Tibetan equivalent (from hdren "draw", "lead," as Professor Konow suggests) for the Sanskrit vāhana, it remains a question whether we yet have the king's name in its native form; the Sanskrit equivalent of Mun-dmag-tran will, as Professor Konow has suggested, be -senā-vāhana.

It is curious to note that in the emissary's letter mched is used as in our present document. This latter is of great importance, since it definitely proves that Vijaya-bohan-chen-po belonged to the latter half of the eighth century A.D.; it gives us a fixed point in the chronology of the Khotan kings.

Furthermore, it sheds a clear light upon the position of the Khotan king in relation to the Tibetan officers occupying the station of Śin-šan. It refers plainly to complaints of robberies committed, no doubt, by Khotanī people upon Tibetan goods and persons in transit. The king explains that he is taking steps to investigate and bring the offenders to justice, and he promises prompt attention to minor offences of like kind in the future. He was therefore, as was only natural, a ruler in no position to deny satisfaction to the Tibetans dominating his country.

1. 3. Hel-ge and Nag (Nob). See pp. 237, 240-1. It will be seen that elsewhere also Nag is associated with robberies.

rye-blas: This title, which has occurred before (p. 23, ll. 6, 9, etc.), seems to be applied to persons of great eminence in civil life or religion. It is the expression rendered as a proper name by Colonel Waddell (JRAS. 1910, p. 1252) in its occurrence in Lhasa inscriptions.

l. 4. stag-sum : The Tibetan authorities.

l. 5. rgyal-ta : This is evidently = rgyal in the sense of "fine" or "forfeit". The word has also the sense of phala "fruit", which suggests that the bras-bu "fruit" here may not be literal, but form part of a phrase or denote "interest"; but that is not certain, and Khotan was famous for its fruits.

l. 6. bsku = bskur recurs infra in p. 218.51 and p. 259. A 7.

l. 7. Sag-ti-hi-tshar : This "parish" has a name on the lines of Dro-tir, Hgum-tir, and Sañ-tir, noted above; it is mentioned again in M. Tagh. 0508 (paper).

l. 8. The endorsement seems to be a note by an official to the effect that the king's gift has been dispatched. The reading is not clear; but ha-lo would mean "hollyhock".

Mdo-lo : This district has hitherto been known only from mention in the Tibetan chronicle of Khotan (see Vol. I, p. 59 and n.), which seems to indicate a territory in the direction of Polu. See infra, pp. 239-40.

l. B 1. Sluns-pon : On the Sluhs, see pp. 52, 296-7, where, as here, they seem to be different from ordinary soldiers.

zal-mchu : "complaint" (see supra, pp. 67, 145, and p. 259 infra).

l. B 3. phas : = pha-las "from beyond"; cf. p. 98. 93B. 4.

l. B 6. tshur : "hither", i.e. "to me".

phran-tshegs : this phrase, in which tshegs means "difficulty", "check", and which in Ś. C. Das' Dictionary is given s.v. phran, recurs in Mi. iv. 133, as phran-tsegs.

l. B 7. Stans-dgyal : Stans = "style", "fashion". The phrase is evidently a politeness addressed to persons of high rank; it recurs p. 397. A 2 and in M. Tagh. b, i, 0098, b (stah-dbyald), p. 385 (stans-byal) and 0436, published in Innermost Asia, p. 1088 (stans-bsal-byu), c, ii, 0064 (gtans-dbyal).

l. B 8. gden Pho-lod : No doubt, the endorsement of the king's secretary, or even the king himself after dictating the document. Cf. gde(n), p. 178.10.

The title a-mo-che, granted by the Chinese governments to kings of Khotan and other states in Chinese Turkestan, seems to have been first discussed by Chavannes in his Documents sur les Tou-kiue occidentaux, pp. 207-8. It was again discussed by Sir Aurel Stein in Ancient Khotan, pp. 66, 176, 256, and by Chavannes at p. 523. In the same work (pp. 582-3) we gave instances of Chinese a-ma-cas in Khotan history, and subsequently (JRAS. 1927, pp. 121-2) it was shown that the title had also at a late date been borne by rulers in the Ladakh region. Prof. Sylvain Lévi seems to have been the first (1915, J.A. xi, v, p. 191) to derive the term from the Sanskrit amātya; see Vol. I, p. 309, n. 6.

It seems worth while to quote the instances of the use of the title in our documents. We have the following:—

23. M. Tāgh. 6, i, 0088 (wood; c. 8 × 1 cm.; complete l. 1 of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

ཨ | 'Am . cha . Śir . de . tshan.

The term tshan seems to have been an honorific (properly a plural), appended to the names of learned or distinguished persons: see infra, p. 194, and Innermost Asia, p. 1084. It is appended to the word ban-de in p. 210, and it is similarly employed in the document edited in Hoernle's Manuscript Remains, pp. 402-3.

<sup>1</sup> The occurrence of this title was noted in JRAS. 1927, pp. 121-3, with citation of Nos. 23-5 below. The latter, with Nos. 27 and 29, and also a new document from Turfan, have now been discussed in a recent paper (Königsnamen von Khotan (A-mo-ca) . . . SPAW., pp. 671-6, issued Jan. 1929) by Professor A. H. Francke. It appears that Professor Francke, who originally had understood the syllables a-mo-ca, am-cha, where he had read them, differently, now accepts the reference to the officials called amacas. How far we agree with his readings and renderings

Notes

1. B 1. Ho-ni is the name of a place (infra, pp. 237-8).

1. A 1. Yul-gzigs: The name occurs in its literal denotation "Local Surveyor" in M.I. xiv, 1 (Innermost Asia, p. 1084). In such cases as the present we cannot be certain whether it is so used or is a proper name (cf. English Smith, etc., and the case of Rmah-rogs, p. 258, infra), as in a, iii, 0070.

1. A 3. Lī-brgyags: "Khotan supplies" seems to be a technical term (cf. "Manchester goods") here and elsewhere (M. Tāgh. 068, a, i, 0011, p. 384). rgya-bre: cf. b, i, 0099.

Notes

I. B. Sna-bo: Cf. p. 212. On Sna-bo as a name of the Cer-cen river see Acta Orientalia, xiii, p. 44.

I. A. tshand: See supra, p. 191. The name Lha-zuñ-gre is a hybrid, the first two syllables Lha-zuñ, being Tibetan and occurring in M.I. ii, 206, M.T. a, iii, 0070.

It is perhaps no accident that in four of these texts there is reference to gifts of provisions or repasts and so on to the Amacas named, or that these share with the ban-de (= Nepalese bandyā, Chinese bonze) the designation tshan. It is probable that, at least during the Tibetan domination, they enjoyed civil dignity and esteem rather than power, unless indeed they functioned as judges in the grwa-tus (= parīṣad, see supra, p. 134).

Of other Khotan dignitaries we do not hear. But it might be opportune to consider the Tibetan nan-rje-pos, jo-cos, zuñ-blons, etc., with a view to any chronological inferences that might arise. It might be thought that with the meagre resources of Tibetan nomenclature it would be a difficult matter to establish identifications. The difficulty, indeed, exists; but it is not due to that cause: such good use is made of the resources that in the documents the same names rarely recur. The subject is, however, somewhat complicated, and the names are very numerous: there being no doubt as to the general period to which the Mazār-Tāgh documents relate, it will be best to reserve the designations of the Tibetan officials for a separate, and wider, consideration.

We may, however, take note of the presence of one dmag-pon, or General, in the city of Khotan and of the conduct of one nañ-rje-po.

Notes

This curious document presents considerable difficulties in translation. Not only is the subject-matter recto one likely to lead to obscure expressions, but it is also not quite clear from the ductus that the words in the vertical line really follow 1. 5: the latter is, however, from the sense highly probable. We have in any case an "anonymous letter" to an official, whether from one who signs as "the city" or not, and the charges which it lays against the Home-Minister are correspondingly serious. He is no doubt residing in Khotan, and the letter is written to an official there.

The verso is probably an inquiry made on behalf of the addressee of the recto, in which case it shows a good official discretion. Alternately the recto might be the reply to the inquiry verso: but this is in itself less probable, and, further, the letter is not addressed to the writer of the verso. The letter is, no doubt, sent from Khotan to Šin-šan.

[A] ma-rgyon-smyon-ba: By "mother" is perhaps meant "[other people's] wives"; similarly as concerns "sisters".

ši-lbyis-paḥ: The expression "as to death, a child" may denote irresponsible killing. Or is it "a child of death"?

mdaḥ-tshags-pa: mdaḥ-lpags means "gourd" and tshags = "sieve"; perhaps this is a "portmanteau" expression.

rtol-po-che-chuñ: We have rendered this as meaning "whoever appears (comes in his way), great or small".

[B] slan-chaḥ: "For the rest"; or "in future"?

bkah-mchid: "Talk" or "news": so pp. 146, 423, 222, 4.

II. ŠIN-ŠAN

Šin-šan occurs as a place-name in over thirty documents from Mazār-Tāgh, a place on the Khotan river, about 100 miles north of Khotan, where Sir Aurel Stein discovered and excavated a Tibetan fort and other ruins. The name is hardly to be found in documents from other places, and we have already given expression (in Sir A. Stein's Innermost Asia, p. 1086) to the view that Šin-šan was the proper name of the settlement at Mazār-Tāgh itself. That the fact is so appears also from the circumstance that many of the documents are letters apparently addressed to Šin-šan; and this impression will be enhanced by a perusal of those which we will proceed to consider. See Vol. I, p. 307, n. 4.

The name Šin-šan, which appears to mean "Wood-mountain" (Chinese shan, as in Pha-šan, etc.), can never have been appropriate to the low barren hill on which rose the Tibetan fort at Mazār-Tāgh. It is perhaps, therefore, a corruption of some native name, and we may ask whether it is possibly the Šen-za of the Gośpaga-vyākaraṇa, denoting "the northern district Šen-za, protected by an image Šen-za, which would arise from the nether world" (Ancient Khotan, p. 584). As to Šen-za = Vaiśravaṇa, see Vol. I, p. 317, n. 12.

Since the above lines were written a definite confirmation of this suggestion has come to light. The Brāhmī endorsement of the document No. 28, p. 193 supra, addressed to a chief in command at Šin-šan, has been read by Professor Sten Konow, who has kindly furnished the following possible translation [but see a later note (1948) on the reading].

"On the hill which (or who) is Ysaināgotra, to him now to be given."

It is probable that the writer has by Ysaināgotra rendered into his Iranian speech the native name Šen-za; and perhaps he had some justification, since, as we have seen (p. 73), the syllable za, whether actually Iranian or not, was employed in Chinese Turkestan with precisely the sense of gotra: thus Šen-za (taken as "za") = Ysainā (i.e. Senā)-gotra. Moreover, by adding the word "hill" (garā) he confirms our understanding of the second syllable in Šin-šan as the Chinese shan, a "hill". The Tibetan Šin-šan represents, therefore, an accommodation to their speech of **Šen-(za)-šan*, a good instance of those etymologizing tendencies which seem to have specially influenced the folk-lore of Khotan (see infra, pp. 225-6, and Vol. I, pp. 158, 167, 307, n. 4, Asia Major, ii, pp. 258-9, 262-3).

Notes

1. 1. rtsis-sa: Mentions of the "censuses" or "reckonings", which perhaps related to both persons and properties, are not infrequent in the Tibetan chronicle (e.g. ll. 8, 23, 78, etc.) or in the documents. We have had before (pp. 31, 140) a rtsis-mgo "head, or total, of census", and this also recurs in M.I. xxviii, 2, and in that chronicle (l. 52). Cf. p. 56.6.

The Gosṛṅga-cyūkarana has (vol. i, p. 2, n. 4) yul-gyi-rtsis-mgo "the country's census-total".

l. A 2. ko-ches-pa : = go-ches-pa "of great consideration" ?

B 3, with myel-tse-dgu, "9 watches," and with ñin-tshod mtshan-tshod "day-time or night-time" in M.T. 0334 and c, iii, 0025 (infra, pp. 204, 235), and we had dam-zag-tu "on a fixed day" in pp. 19, 79, and ñin-dam-du is found in M. #### Note

With the name Hdzas, cf. the Dzadz of p. 178.

Notes

The missive duly reached Śin-śan, where it was unearthed by Sir Aurel Stein.

Concerning Ho-toñ Gyn-mo and Glin-rins see below (pp. 212 seq., 254-6). It will be observed that the former was clearly on the route from Glin-rins, which was in Tibet, to Śin-śan, and it would appear to be connected with the Dru-gu cor, which was mentioned supra (pp. 18, 175) and will be the subject of further observations later (pp. 276-280).

Notes

005, A 2. Žugs-nam-gyi-tōks: This phrase, which recurs p. 224 below, is, no doubt, the same as the Žugs-dams of the Khotan chronicle, on whichever side may lie the easy confusion of n and d (𐰽 and 𐰾). From the passage quoted in Asia Major, ii, pp. 258-9, it is clear that the name belonged to some elevated plain near Tola in Me-skar; and, since the district of Me-skar lay between Khotan and Tshul-byi, concerning which see pp. 119-122, we must look for Me-skar and Tola, with its Žuga-dam (or nam), somewhere in the mountains between Polu and Cer-cen. See vol. i, pp. 100, nn. 5-6, 318, nn. 1 and 5. [But it now seems that Žugs-nams was different from Žugs-dams and that Tola was in the latter, being the village Dol, 16½ miles E. of Khotan.]

005, A 2. šul: A "spy"; cf. pp. 224, 436, 446.

B 1. rad-gox: On rad see supra, pp. 52, 143. Rad-gox "travelling costume" occurs in the document published by the Oslo Institute (p. 187, n. 2 supra).

B 2. Dguñ . . . šin, "given two months, a year"; in M. Tāgh. a, v, 007 (p. 447), we have ñin-šin "in the day-time". Cf. vol. i, p. 22, n. 5.

Notes

L 1. Khri-ma-lod: This name being, like most others ending in -lod, feminine—it occurs, in fact, in the Tibetan chronicle as the name of a princess—it is probable that the gap in the document contained the statement that the lady in question was the wife or mother of the Śin-śan rtse-rje "chief in command" and nañ-rje-po "Home Minister".

L 2. . . . ra-myi-ra: "In . . . place or men's place."

L 6. spyān-zigs: "A present," as on p. 224, etc., infra. The present is, no doubt, the customary upāyana.

Notes

The writer of the letter had been employed to convoy a monk to a place called Sañ, which was outside Khotan territory and was possibly the Šaṇ or Mo-šaṇ district of Shan-ahan, on which see Stein (Serindia, pp. 333-4) and Chavannes (T'oung-pao, 1905, pp. 582, n. 7). On the way back he collects barley-rents from estates in Khotan territory and ultimately in the Šin-šan region. Trouble having arisen as regards payments in the latter quarter, he asks leave to suspend operations and come straight on with what he has already collected.

Notes

On Sna-bo see p. 194. In kham-mah the second syllable is perhaps only an affix.

From these references to Šin-šan it is clear that the place must have been the military headquarters of the whole Khotan region. Naturally it was in constant communication with the city of Khotan itself and other places in the area. But the documents suffice to show that it was a centre of communications from regions further afield, from Tibet and from the more easterly parts of Chinese Turkestan, and was a terminal point of Tibetan occupation in the west.

The place possessed the fort excavated by Sir Aurel Stein and also, apparently, a minor fort or town (m̐khar-bu). It had a rtae-rje "head official", who was a nah-rje-po "Home Minister". It controlled, as we shall see, the supplies of numerous military posts, and also dominated the city of Khotan, which remained, however, under the administration of its native king.

III. GYU-MO, HO-TOŃ GYU-MO

For already cited references to a place named Ho-toh Gyu-mo, with variants 'O-toh Sgo-mo and Ho-toh Gyu-mo, see supra, pp. 170, 174, 203.

From the last of those references it appears, as we have seen, that the place lay between Glin-rinś, in Tibet, and Šin-šan, or Mazār-Tāgh. This serves to exclude any identification with either Ak-su, which had also a Chinese name Ku-mo (see Sir Aurel Stein's Innermost Asia, p. 835), or the oasis of Guma, between Khotan and Karghalik. There remain three possibilities, namely, (1) Cer-cen, which was also during a long period known as Tsü-mo or Chü-mo (Serindia, p. 297), and (2) the old kingdom of Yü-mi or Chü-mi (the Niā-mo, Han-mo, Kyu-mo of the Former Han Annals), located by the Chinese between the Keriya and Chira rivers (Stein, Ancient Khotan, p. 467), absorbed by Khotan, c. A.D. 152. (3) The place Kiu-mo, N.E. of Cer-cen, mentioned by the Chinese (Grenard, in Dutreuil de Rhins, La Haute Asie, iii, p. 146, and Chavannes, T'oung-pao, II, vi (1905), pp. 536, n. 4, 566) as on the Cer-cen river and probably therefore the point where (Stein, Serindia, pp. 298-9, 1331) the route from Mirān (Little Nob) to Khotan crossed the river.

No. 3 is markedly favoured by two references in the documents. In document 36 (pp. 202-3) Ho-toñ Gyu-mo is evidently regarded as the far-limit (yan-chad) of the Dru-gu cor from a place in N.E. Tibet in the direction of Khotan. In no. 37 (pp. 203-4) the Dru-gu h̄jor is the near-limit (man-chad) at which commences a transmission of a message within the Khotan administration: and evidently this implies that transmission inside the Dru-gu h̄jor was otherwise arranged. This shows that Ho-toñ Gyu-mo functions as a frontier post between the two administrations, that of the Dru-gu cor, corresponding, as will appear, to the old Shan-shan kingdom, and that of Khotan, with headquarters in Šin-šan. The other near-limit for the message, which evidently comes from Tibet, confirms this conclusion: it is Par-ban, which, being the Parvata of the Kharoṣṭhī records, was the mining town in the mountains south of the Niya-Cañota region, again a suitable point of entrance from N.E. Tibet into Khotan territory. The message will have been dispatched by two separate routes, viz. via Charklik and Hotoñ Gyu-mo and via Par-ban. The other references to Ho-toñ Gyu-mo, though lacking decisive geographical implications, contain nothing adverse to the proposed identification.

The prefix Ho-toñ, sometimes omitted, resembles that in Odon-Kaskar, which in the Tibetan Rgyal-rabs (see Franke, Antiquities of Tibet, ii, p. 87) appears to denote Kashgar. If a word of Mongol affinity could at the date of the documents have been current in Chinese Turkestan (see Pelliot, T'oung-pao, II, xxvi (1929), p. 250), Ho-toñ might be = Mongol odon "town". Or is it one of the various names of Khotan (Hsiung-nu Yü-tun, etc.) cited by Stein in Ancient Khotan, pp. 153-5, so that the meaning is "Gyu-mo of Khotan"?

In that case it would be parallel to the Khema-Khotanua of the Kharoṣṭhī documents and the Tshal-byi-Car-chen, Tshal-byi-Nob-chuñu, and Kva-cu-Khar-tsan, recorded in the Tibetan (supra, pp. 51, 121).

Notes

Concerning the places with names ending in rtse, viz. 'An-tse, Bye-ri-snañ-dañ-rtse, Jañ-lañ-rtse, Mdoñ-rtse, Hphrul-gyi-rtse, Stag-hdus-kyi-rtse, Stag-egugs-kyi-rtse, Stag-sras-kyi-rtse, see below (pp. 217 sqq.), where several of them recur. Concerning Dgra-byuñ(-gi-rtse ?), Hbu-śañ, Hjug-ma-gu, Tse-u-cag, see pp. 236-70, 250 infra.

The discrimination of the personal names is not in all cases certain; dron-myi (l. 1) may be 'merchant', yul-tsan (l. 7), 'local magnate' (p. 344), and skyin-tsal (l. 8) might likewise be a title. In l. 6 the expression rhul-po has been taken as a prefix (class or clan name) on the ground of its form (cf. Khyuñ-po, noticed above, p. 54) and of its occurrence in M.T. 0509, 0510 (p. 62).

It may be noted that in a case like the present, where a rather well-written official document shows on the reverse a private letter, especially if the latter is coarsely inscribed, the priority of the former is indubitable.

IV. PLACES WITH NAMES ENDING IN "-RTSE"

The word rtse, "peak" or "top", is a very appropriate termination for the names of places in a mountainous region; in Tibet there are innumerable place-names of this type. In the Nob region of Chinese Turkestan we have noticed (pp. 155-7) several such names, e.g. Klu-rtse, Snah-rtse, Gyuh-drun-rtse. In the case of the last named we have suggested the possibility that -rtse may have denoted nothing more than a height in a fort. There may have been instances of such a nature; but in general the position will have been otherwise. The numerous names in -rtse will have been due to the occupation of commanding positions by the Tibetan troops for the purpose of observation and control. In the case of Pshu-rtse we shall quote documents which in fact refer to building operations. The actual designations of some of the places, e.g. Stag-sras-dgyes-gyi-rtse "Young-tiger-delight (I feast!) -peak", Hphrul-gyi-ma-lon-kun-snah-rtse "Magic-mirror-all-vision-peak", while characteristically Tibetan, may also be set down partly to the fancy of those who established the new military posts. The names are naturally all Tibetan, and will not often have been attached to old sites.

Note may be taken of the manner in which the places are mentioned. We have called attention above to various lists of persons residing in certain tshars, or "parishes", or in places whose names frequently end in -rtse. It will be observed that the two kinds of reference do not intermingle, a fact which clearly indicates that the former lists refer to "parishes" in the Khotan district itself, while the latter have in view the military posts outside. Most, however, of the documents are mere wooden labels, showing either simply the name of the place, or the same with references to supplies (brgyags), or barley (nas) or wheat (gro), or soldiers (so), and so forth—often with line-marks or notches plainly meant to denote numbers or amounts. They are, therefore, labels for articles kept or dispatched for the use of the places mentioned, or of persons belonging, or travelling, to the same. Usually, where there are notches, the wood is cut away for the purpose of a tally, and the hole for the string, which otherwise is at the right, is at the broader end to the left. An example M. Tāgh. 0564) is figured on plate cxxx of Innermost Asia.

(a) 'An-tse.

Mentioned supra. p. 215, and a, iv, 0096, b, ii, 0022.

No doubt a place in the Khotan region and quite different from An-hsi (Kva-cu) in distant Kan-su and An-hsi = Kucā.

(b) Bye-ma-hdor-gyi-rtse.

Mention of this place has occurred in No. 4, p. 174 supra.

50. M. Tāgh. 0527 (wooden tally; c. 12 × 2 cm., complete; hole for string at right; wood partly cut away; l. 1 of ordinary cursive dbu-can script; c. 12 lines or notches for numbers).

☞ | | Bye-ma-hdor-gyi-rtse

(Quite similar are the likewise complete documents a, ii, 0073(0 ?); a, iv, 006 (notches, etc.); c, ii, 0051 (notches, etc.).)

51. M. Tāgh. a, iv, 0088 (wood; c. 11.5 × 1 cm.; complete, palimpsest; ll. 1 recto + 1 verso of ordinary cursive dbu-can script; hole for string at right).

[A] ☞ | | Bye-ma-hdor-gyi-rtse | lo-nan-Mon.

"Bye-ma-lador-gyi-rtse. Allow the lo-nañ Men to be sent."

Note

A. lo-nañ: See p. 174 (lo-nan). Bsku, pp. 185. A 6, 259. A 7.

(c) Bye-ri-snañ-dañ-rtse.

Mentioned in M.T. 0050 (p. 215 supra) and ii, 006.

(d) Can-lañ-rtse.

See above, p. 206, a, iii, 0032 and 0059 and add—

52. M. Tāgh. a, ii, 0066 (wooden tally; c. 11 × 1.5 cm.; complete; hole for string at left; ll. 1 of ordinary cursive dbu-can script; 6 notches or lines).

☞ | : | Cañ . lañ . tshe |

Possibly the Jañ-lañ-rtse mentioned supra (p. 215) is only a variant of this name.

(e) Dbyild-cuñ-rtse.

53. M. Tāgh. a, vi, 006 (wood; c. 7 × 2 cm.; complete; hole at right for string; ll. 2 recto + 1 verso of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

[A 1] ☞ | | mñah . ris . na . [A 2] Dbyild . cuñ . tsehi
[B] brgyags.

"Supplies for Dbyild-cuñ-tse on the frontier (or in the frontier country)."

54. M. Tāgh. a, v, 001 (wood; c. 8 × 3 cm.; imperfect at left and right; ll. 3 recto + 3 verso of rather neat, cursive dbu-can script).

[A 1] . . . [g]sol . na : su . la . gsol . . . [A 2] . . . nand .

[B 3] [sñiñ . rje] . po . chir . mdzad | |

. . . "Travelling party . . . to Dbyild-cuñ-rtse mart. . ."
Send soldier's wages."

It seems therefore that Dbyild-cuñ-rtse was a market town on the frontier (perhaps only of two provinces or administrations).

(f) Hphrul-gyi-rtse ("Magic Peak").

See M.T. 0050 (p. 215) and a, ii, 0059, and cf. the following (g) and Mye-loñ-rtse (infra).

(g) Hphrul-gyi-me-loñ-kun-snañ-rtse ("Magic-mirror-all-appearing-peak").

55. M. Tāgh. i, 0020 (wooden tally; c. 9.5 × 2 cm.; complete (?); hole for string at left; ll. 2 recto + 2 verso of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

[A 1] 𑎎 | . | Hphrul . gi . mye . loñ . | [A 2] kun . snañ . rtse | [B 1] Glu . gañ . gis . phye . khal [B 2] geig . dañ . bre . bñi . nos | phyi . na . bre . phyed.

Mentioned also in M.T. a, 7, iv, 0026; b, i, 0036 c; ii, 0046; c, ii, 0014.

Notes

Concerning Dur-ya see below, p. 235. It is evidently to be presumed that Peñu-rtse was in the vicinity of that place.
The reference to the building of Peñu-rtse in this and the preceding document is in harmony with the mention of New Peñu-rtse in the one first quoted (M. Tāgh. 0615, p. 221).

(angulus terrae). Cf. pp. 126: 13 (gleñu), 232, 351.

1. 4. bael: This may mean either "guard" or "clear up".
In p. 133, B 1, we have had it used, apparently, of defending a citadel.

(p) Señ-ka-tse

By this name no place is otherwise known. But it seems not unreasonable to equate it to the Śaṅkā-giri, near to the

Tibetan accounts of Khotan (see Ancient Khotan, p. 584 ; Asia Major, ii, p. 267 ; and Vol. I, pp. 53, 77). We can readily understand that into a native designation Señ-ka the monks may have interpreted the Sanskrit śāṅkā, though, of course, the Sanskrit may have actually been the prīus. Assuming the identity, we learn, however, no more than the name itself reveals, to wit, that the place lay in the mountains of the Khotan region.

Notes

This is one of the not infrequent documents in which a letter from one person shows a postscript in the form of a letter from another, addressed either to the same individual (as in M. Tāgh. 0430, edited in Innermost Asia, p. 1087) or to a member of his family and so forth. In some instances the writer of the postscript is a woman, which, since names ending in lod are generally feminine, is probably the case here. The person addressed in the postscript as Señ-gah-tse is probably the Stag-mñen addressed in the same letter, Señ-gah-tse being a residence name, such as we constantly find (see supra, p. 29, and Festgabe H. Jacobi, pp. 47, 71-2); or perhaps it is his son.

The term "grandson", as has been suggested in Innermost Asia, p. 1088 (M. Tāgh. 0436), need not be taken literally: it may be a politeness on the part of a senior friend, no doubt the wife of the writer of the main letter.

Mentioned (Snañ-h[phrul]-mthoñ-rtse) in ii, 003. c, ii, 0026.

(r) Snañ-luñ-rtse ("Vision-Valley Peak"). Mentioned in c, ii, 0065, infra, p. 249 : 104.

(r) Stag-hdus-dges-kyi-rtse ("Tiger-gathering-rejoicing Peak") and Stag-sras-dges-kyi-rtse ("Tiger-son-rejoicing Peak").

Stag-sras has occurred as a place-name in M. Tāgh. 0050 (p. 214 supra).

It is perhaps doubtful whether in these names the word dges or dgyes really means "rejoicing" or "feast" (see pp. 351, 456, and M.T., a, ii, 0097). The word Stag evidently alludes to the common application of the term to soldiers.

68. M. Tāgh. a, ii, 0043 (wood; c. 20.5 × 1 × 1 cm.; cut away at one side; ll. 1 + 1 of ordinary cursive dbu-can script; on one side about 19 notches and lines).

On khram in connection with notched lines see pp. 91-2, and p. 184.

Tsugs-pon: See supra, p. 172.

On the expression (Khri-sgugs) h̄jor see p. 175 supra. It may be noted that in M. Tāgh. b, i, 0031 (p. 236 infra) Khri-skugs is made to be a part of Hbum-rdugs.

(u) Stag-skugs-bye(gye)-ri-rtse ("Tiger-in-wait-mountain Peak"). Sometimes the name appears as Stag-sgugs (skugs) only, e.g. in M.T. 0572 and pp. 214, 446.

76. M. Tāgh. 005 (wooden tally; c. 11 × 3 cm.; complete; hole for string at left; ll. 2 of ordinary cursive dbu-can script; 3 notches or lines recto, 2 (?) verso).

Notes

A 1. rgoñ: Perhaps we should read rgod, comparing the phrase rgod-kyi-gle-gugs, p. 225 supra.

peñu: the word recurs b, i, 0013, also in c, iii, 0087. Is it here = Chinese pao, "fort"? So too in Peñu-mar, Peñu-rtsu.

V. OTHER PLACES PRESUMABLY IN THE KHOTAN REGION

(a) Bsam-cha (Sam-cha).

See infra, pp. 247, 250.

(b) Bya-mañs-tshal ("Many-Bird Wood").

81. M. Tāgh. a, iv, 001 (wooden tally; c. 12 × 2 cm.; complete; hole for string at left; several notches verso; ll. 1 recto + 1 verso of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

(c) Bya-rig-skugs.

See infra, p. 236.

Note

Bya-rig-skugs can hardly be different from Stag-skugs-bye-ri-rtse, supra, p. 231.

(d) Bya-tshañ-smug-po ("Bird-Copse (?) Reeds").

82. M. Tāgh. c, ii, 0042 (wood; c. 13.5 × 2 cm.; slightly fragmentary at top left; hole for string at right; ll. 2 recto + 1 verso of ordinary, cursive dbu-can script).

Notes

(c) Byeḥu-yog. (= "Yao-well," Serindia, p. 1331 : Cf. Byeḥu-liñ.)

82, A. M. Tāgh. a, ii, 0033 (wood, c. 12.5 × 2 cm., complete; hole for string at r.; ll. 2 of cursive dbu-can script).

He-brag : Cf. pp. 128, 158. Byeḥu-yog recurs p. 260.6.

(c) Byi-glañ-pam.

In M. Tāgh. b, i, 0098 (paper) occurs the sentence—

83. | Byi . glañ . [pam] . ya[ñ] . khrom . du . ni . khral . phran . . . : bton . . . .

"Sent . . . in the market town Byi-glañ-pam also small levies . . . ."

The place is otherwise unknown. On the Keriya river Sir Aurel Stein's maps note a place called Bilangan, which might be **Byi-glañ-gam*.

(f) Dgra-yi (or ya)-chad.

A place so named is mentioned in about six documents. Of these, two (a. iv, 0031 and b. i, 0029) present only the name (with <sup>o</sup>yi<sup>o</sup>); in one (a. vi, 001) the name appears with a very fragmentary context; and in one (a. vi, 0042) it may be conjecturally restored. There remain the following:—

83 A. M. Tāgh. a. ii, 0065 (wood, c. 12 × 1.5-2 cm., cut away for a tally; hole for string at l.; incised lines and notches recto; ll. 1 recto + 2 (a different hand) verso of cursive dbu-can script).

[B 2] Ryuh . rogs . no[s]

83 B. M. Tāgh. a. iv, 0015 (wood, c. 11.5 × 2.2-5 cm., cut away for a tally; hole for string at l.; incised lines and notches recto and verso; l. 1 of cursive dbu-can script, faint).

☛ || Dgra.yi.chad.na |

"In Dgra-yi-chad."

(g) Dnu-mu.

See infra, p. 259. Being there mentioned in connection with Me-nu, which can be Menut, on the Yarkand river, and with Khagapan, i.e. Karghalik or Kök-yar, this may be Mumuk, on the Tiznaf river: see the map in Lord Dunmore's The Pamirs, vol. ii, where both are located.

(h) Dur-ya.

See supra, p. 225. As pointed out in Asia Major, ii pp. 260-1, this is probably the modern Duwa.

(i) Hbog-la-tham.

Associated pp. 249-51 infra with Yol-ba-ri and Sam-cha.

(j) Hbrog-lig-yan-cag-tsa.

84. M. Tāgh. 0334 (wood; c. 20.5 × 2 cm.; broken away at right; hole for string at left; ll. 2 recto + 1 verso of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

Notes

Concerning this place we have no information: it was in some region of nomads (Hbrog). Cag recurs in Tshehu-cag, p. 250, and therefore perhaps = Chinese ch'eng.

[B] nin-tsod-mdzan-tsod-dam-du: See supra, p. 201.

(k) Hbum-rdugs.

Note

On Gyu-mo see pp. 212 sqq. Llag-bzi may be one rendering of Tājik, on which see Vol. I, p. 278, n. 5.

86. M. Tāgh. b, i, 0031 (wooden tally; c. 13 × 2 cm.; complete; hole for string at left; ll. 2 of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

☞ | : | Hbum . rdugs . Khri . skugs | [2] h̄jor.

"Khri-skugs h̄jor (cor) in Hbum-rdugs."

From this reference to Khri-skugs h̄jor, which is also in Stag-rtse (q.v., pp. 230-1), it is clear that these two places are in the same region as Hbum-rdugs. In M.T. c, i, 0034 we have the same text; in M.T. 008 only Hbum-rdugs.

(l) Hbu-šan or Hbu-šan.

Mentioned above, p. 214 (M.T. 0050), and also in pp. 251-2 infra, this name is found in connection with a Yol-ba hill. In the following it occurs along with Śin-šan and Bya-rig-skugs. [See now Vol. III, p. 70.]

87. M. Tāgh. 0442 (wood; c. 18 × 2 cm.; broken away at left; hole for string at right; ll. 2 recto + 3 verso of ordinary cursive dbu-can script, faint and rubbed).

M.T. 0018 reads Hbuul-saṇ (only).

(m) Hel-ge mentioned in Ch. 73, xiii, 8, p. 379 : 65, as Hel-ke.

See supra, p. 188. No information, except that the place, being associated with Nag, was probably in the Nob region or further east.

(n) Hjag-ma-gu.

Mentioned in p. 214 supra and p. 372. Since hjag-ma is the name of a kind of grass, the place probably exhibited that feature.

89. M. Tāgh. a, iv, 003 (wood; c. 13 × 2 cm.; complete; hole for string at right; l. 1 of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

(o) Ho-ni.

Mentioned pp. 135, 192 supra. It occurs also in M. Tāgh. 0385, 0494, a ii, 0079, b, i, 0080, and p. 246 infra. Whether it was in the Nob region or in the Khotan region does not appear.

"Praying that for the future also you may be free from ill-health, I rejoice."

Notes

The writer is probably the Lha-mthoṅ of p. 277 infra. He uses tos, ga, gdaṅ, mtsad, phar, sol, gyaṅ, rtsaṅ, in place of thos, dgah, gtaṅ, mdzad, par, gsol, kyāṅ, rdzaṅ. His nonchalant tone may reflect a high rank.

1. A 2, gal-thaḥ: Cf. p. 453: 50. A 3, rgyags-snod-gal-du, where gal-du should be an Infinitive, perhaps from lgeḥ, "put on," whence khal, "a load"; cf. W. Tibetan lkhāl, "send," "forward." Here, and also elsewhere, gal[-thaḥ] might appositely mean "load": or, have we in both passages gal "importance" (see Ś. C. Das' Dictionary) ?

Mentioned in No. 20 supra, p. 189.

Mdo-lo, always associated with Me-skar, is named in the Tibetan chronicle of Khotan (Vol. I, pp. 59, 81, 100, n. 6), and also in the two other Tibetan accounts of Buddhism in Khotan

The two latter rather contradictorily speak of Mdo-lo in Me-skar (rendered in Chinese by 'river valley') and of taking from Me-skar the road to Mdo-lo "traversing mountains and valleys". But it is easy to reconcile this by supposing Mdo-lo to be the mountainous, further, part of Me-skar, and it is certain that it lay in the Polu direction. It was on the route of the Buddhists who fled from Khotan to Tibet, which was perhaps the ordinary route of communications between the two countries.

(u) Me-nu. See p. 234.

Mentioned infra (p. 259) in the name Me-nu Nā-gzigs and perhaps in M.I. xiv, 61b (Me-nu-mi-yul?).

(v) Mjag-ma-gu.

See Hjag-ma-gu, supra, p. 237.

(w) Nag (= Nāki, Nāhi; i.e. Nob) of the Khotanī document cited supra, p. 165; cf. Nag-kod, pp. 125-6).

Mentioned supra, p. 69, where the place appears to be outside the Khotan king's dominions.

Notes

1. 2. Skyah-ro: Name of a locality, on the lines of Cog-ro, Hgreh-ro, etc. A Skyah-po, i.e. a man of the Skyah tribe of Skyah-ro, was mentioned p. 126, and another p. 150. A Skyah (from North-East Tibet) might well arrive in Nob.

Phod-kar: This local tribe name will come up for consideration later, pp. 294-5, cf. Vol. I, p. 278, n. 4.

1. 3. rkun-por: It is interesting to see that a suspicion of robbery (of the grain) was promptly aroused in the Nag district, which above (pp. 18, 6-7) was mentioned in connection with robberies.

1. 4. rygan: ? for rkyan "wild ass" ? Or ref. to Skyah ?

Altogether this incident, in which an up-countryman, arriving with a convoy of grain, naturally in the circumstances arouses the suspicion of the local Tibetans, is not without a certain human interest: unable to make anything of him and baffled by his stupidity, the embarrassed officials send him on, with an escort, to headquarters—a Tibeto-Turkestan idyll of the eighth century A.D.

l. 4. spu: Cf. spun-dmag (p. 148) ?

mtshal-ser . . . : This passage is obscure.

B. 1. ban-nog: For the suffix nog (forming a plural of honour ?) used in cases of bandes cf. the document edited in Hoernle's Manuscript Remains, pp. 402-3.

Sum-pa: Cf. p. 36 and reft. The Sum-pas are stated in the dictionary to be the people of Amdo in north-eastern Tibet: see Vol. I, p. 156, n. 5 [and The Nam Language, Index].

spyan-ras-kyis-btsah-bar: On this phrase see p. 224 supra and pp. 246, 385 infra: btsah recurs also p. 251. B1.

(x) Na-gram.

A place-name used as a surname: it occurs pp. 223, 461.

(y) Par-ban.

Mentioned p. 204 (M.T. c, iii, 0025) supra, in an urgent letter directed to be sent down (i.e. no doubt from Tibet) to Par-ban on the one hand and Dru-gu h'jor on the other for forwarding to Šin-san. The implication is that for the sake of security duplicates were sent. Since certainly the Dru-gu h'jor lay, as will be shown later, to the east, it seems clear that the Par-ban route must have led to a descent via Cer-cen or Polu; and this is confirmed by a document (given below, p. 249) in which Par-ban is associated with [Ho-ton] Gyn-mo. The name does not seem to be Tibetan, and so is probably older than the Tibetan rule. Its non-occurrence in the Mirān documents suggests that the place lay rather in the Khotan region than in that of Nob. It may be the Parvata which in the Kharoṣṭhī documents (see now Professor Rapson's index) is several times mentioned in connection with Cadota (Niya region) and the Pe-pin of the Early Han Annals (Wylie, Journal of the Anthropological Institute, vol. x, p. 29).

94. M. Tāgh. c, iv, 0036 (wood, pointed at left; c. 12 × 2 cm.; complete; hole for string at right; ll. 2 recto + 1 verso of ordinary cursive dbu-can script).

Notes

Nam-ru-pag is a frequently mentioned regiment (and district in Tibet); see pp. 223, 465, and Innermost Asia, pp. 1084-5.

So-rtsaṅ-hgram: "So-river-bank." The same phrase occurs in 0522 (Innermost Asia, loc. cit.) and i, 0015 (chuhlus-kyi-rtsaṅ-hgram "river bank of the confluence"); so-rtsaṅ is found in the Gośrṅga-vyākaraṇa, Vol. I, p. 34, n. 5. In some cases hgram is perhaps confused with gam (ibid., p. 7). Here the river meant should be that of Niya.

ron-rñu: The reading is uncertain. Perhaps the meaning may be soldiers with an officer: with ron-rñu (if correct) cf. ce-rñu or tsa-rñu, pp. 127, 138, 427. The genitive mehis-paḥi at the end either implies a continuation in another document (which was not unusual) or is like some genitives in Indian inscriptions and means merely that the wooden tablet belonged, or related, to the persons named. The usage is highly natural, and not rare in these documents.

[1-2] "To Uncle Hphan-bžer: letter-petition of Gsas-your missive on the way, I made earnest endeavour to deliver the present, merely on this occasion asking after your health, may I not be reprimanded. [6-9] I also am come to the soldiery (as a soldier ?) of Peñu-mar. Of the three Khotanis in the hand-list one is laid up, one is indolent, one, having been sent to get his rations, has (will have ?) to return to Ho-ni-dag. Even if he succeeds in getting the food-supplies sent, he is quite destitute, and, as he is only acting as a servant, it is possible that . . . and deception may come about. [9-10] In case deception may escape, I have determined to keep my eyes open. What the Khotanī could carry I have sent first. . . Later, it having been delivered with a sealed letter to the hand of the Uncle, I beg to receive it back. For the moment will you please be so good as to keep your eyes open? [10-12] As a sign of not having forgotten, I am sending some three medicines with a seal attached, and I am offering as a present two ja-tor. Please accept them. I beg you for a little while not to reprimand (me)."

Notes

l. 6. sug-rjed: "hand-list" recurs pp. 375, 443, 466.

l. 7. Ho-ni-dag: This seems to be a dual or plural of Ho-ni, which in that case would be double. Or can the meaning be "the Ho-ni people"?

l. 8. -re-(yañ)-rgyad: This might perhaps be for hdre-(yañ)-brgyad "eight devils". One of the documents (M.I. xiv, 002, p. 403: 106.A 2) uses the phrase "a hdre is in my mind", meaning "I am depressed".

l. 9. lis-ci-theg: What the Khotanī was to carry is not stated.

spyan-ras-gyis-btsa: The phrase recurs in l. 10 and pp. 224, 242.

l. 11. ja-tor: Is this = ja-phor "tea-cup"?

Notes

On ri-zug "mountain-sick" see supra, pp. 203, 224; on Snañ-luñ-rtse, p. 229; on Lāñ-sked-chad, p. 239; on the Dru-gu h̄jor, p. 276 sqq.; on Sna-nam, p. 259 infra; on Khyuñ-po, p. 215 supra.

Tahu . . . is, no doubt, part of a name: Hbog . . . is very likely the Hbog-la-tham of p. 250-1 infra.

Sman-lod, in virtue of the syllable lod, should probably be a woman, and the name Gže-ma reinforces the probability (Vol. I, p. 133).

When publishing this document in Sir A. Stein's Innermost Asia (p. 1085), I had not realized that both Ta-ha and Par-ban were certainly place-names, and hence the document was declared "unintelligible". The other occurrences suffice to make all clear.

On Par-ban and Gyu-mo see supra, pp. 212 sqq., 242-4.

Tshehu . cagi . so . pah

"Soldier of Tshehu-cag."

Under the variant form Rtschu-cag this name has occurred supra, p. 215, and with the above spelling, p. 222 (M. Tāgh. 0615) and M. Tāgh. 0022, i. 0017, a, iii, 0037.

(ii) Yol-ba-ri ("the Yol-ba hill").

The name may retain a memory of Yol (Yeula), the early king of Khotan (Vol. I, p. 25, n. 5, p. 104, n. 2). It is associated with Hbu-saŋ.

109. M. Tāgh. c. iii, 0027 (wood; c. 25.5 × 1 × 1 cm.; fragmentary right and left, one side (D) broken away for purposes of a tally (?) and showing 6 notches, C also showing a number of independent notches; A, ll. 2 (one compartment), B, l. 1, (6 compartments) of ordinary cursive dbu-can script; C, l. 1 of a strange script, apparently a derivative of Brāhmī).

[C] Illegible.

The four compartments probably contain only place-names, although the third name "China- and Drug-taming" or "Six-Chinese-taming" would be more appropriate to a regiment—perhaps it is the name of a hill-station (rtse).

Lyin may have something to do with Lün-sked-chad, while Sam-cha certainly, and perhaps Hbog-la-tham and Snan-u-ya (Snan-hu-ha), have been noted above (see pp. 247-9).

[B 1-2] "At the beginning of the first spring month of the Horse year, on examining the soldiers, a Khotanī gleg, named Su-dad, one of the Khotanīs serving as cooks in Yol-ba-ri in Hbu-ḥaṇ, having many times caused annoyance, it was decided that he should be put to death in the Khotanī troop. [B 2-4] It being decided that, even though he must die, he should be put in the ri-zu, his comrades, the sergeant and so forth, three parties (in three parts?), agreed to pay four thousand five hundred don-tse as ransom of their comrade, the first quota at once (?) . . . [B 4-5] In case the parties prove tricky, for each [don-tse] two shall be substituted, and they may be deprived of everything down to their travel-clothes and punished as far as flogging and also put in the ri-zu. [B 6] In witness whereof the signatures of the squad-leader and the two . . . and the rest are appended."

Notes

This is one of the not infrequent cases where we have mention of punishment or execution of Khotanīs by the Tibetan authorities; cf. supra, p. 168. They show that the Tibetan control was sternly maintained.

B 1. byan-g-yog: The phrase is found also in M. Tāgh. b, i, 0059, "cook-service," and M.I. xiv, 0070: cf. pp. 129-30.

I. 3. ri-zu: Sense uncertain. Is it "torture" or "prison", of "left in the mountains"? Cha "part" or "troop".

VI. PLACES OR STATES ADJACENT TO, OR CONNECTED WITH, THE KHOTAN REGION

(a) Bru-za. (See Vol. I, p. 100).

Assuming that it was proved in Asia Major, ii, pp. 258-9, that the name Bru-za was originally attached to a part of the Khotan territory, it may still be a question what the term denoted in later times. In the Tibetan chronicle we have the following notices :—

112. Chronicle, II, 223-4; year 66 (Ox) = A.D. 737 :

blon . Skyes . bzañ . Ldon . tsab . gyis | Bru . za . yul . tu .
drañs | dgun . pho . brañ . Brag . mar . na . bzugs . te | Bru .
zañi . rgyal . po : phab . ste . phyag . htshald |

"Councillor Skyes-bzañ Ldon-tsab having marched into the Bru-za country, in the winter, when (the Tibetan king) was residing in the palace at Brag-mar, the Bru-za king was reduced and sent homage."

113. Chronicle, II, 230-1; year 69 (Dragon) = A.D. 740 :

Btsan . poñi : po . brañ | dbyard . Mtshar . bu :
snañi . Nañ . mo : gliñ . na . bzugste | je . ba : Khri . ma . lod .
Bru . za . rje . la . bag . mar . btañ |

"The Btsan-po being resident in his palace in Nañ-mo-gliñ of Mtshar-bu-sna during the summer, the princess (je-ba?) Khri-ma-lod was sent to be wife to the Bru-za king."

The facts made known from Chinese sources by Chavannes (Documents, pp. 149 sqq.), and summarized in Ancient Khotan, pp. 6-7, especially the marriage with a Tibetan princess, make it plain that the above quotations relate to "Little P'olū", or Gilgit. The slight difference, if any, in date may be explained on another occasion. But this circumstance does not in the least invalidate the definite evidence of the Khotan chronicle attributing the name Bru-so-lo-ña (= Bru-zal) to a part (at least) of the Khotan territory, namely that in which were Mdo-lo and Me-skar. In that district is Polu, through which passes one route to the great north-western Tibetan plain, the Byañ-thañ; and the name reminds us of the Chinese P'olū and the Paloyo, which Sir Aurel Stein reports as applied by the Dards of Gilgit to the people of Baltistan. This may be remembered in support of the other indications previously (Asia Major, pp. 25, 270; Festgabe H. Jacobi, p. 73) cited in favour of some early ethnic connection between populations of Western Tibet and of Khotan.

(b) Glin-rins ("Long Meadow"), Glin-rins-tshal ("Long-Meadow Wood"), Glin-rins-smug-po-tshal ("Long-Meadow-Bamboo (Reed ? Cane ?) Wood").

A reference to a Glin-rins has been quoted supra (p. 203). Such a name might occur anywhere in Tibetan territory; but the additional terms tshal "wood" and smug-po-tshal "Bamboo (or Reed or Cane) Wood" justify us in identifying the place so named with the Glin-rins-tshal mentioned previously (p. 48), as noticed in the Tibetan chronicle (II, 59, 101) and in a document from Mirān. It belonged to the district of Skyi, which must have been a region of northern Tibet communicating with Mirān and, as we see, also with Khotan. In spite of its not belonging to the latter country, the number of references to it, suggesting that it was a centre for relations with Khotan (via Cer-cen or Polu?), no doubt justify a citation of some or most of them here.

Notes

The two regiments, Bzañ-Ħor and Lan-myi, are mentioned elsewhere; they will be noted again pp. 456, 462-3.

1. 2. tshugs-phen and hog-phon; See supra, p. 172.

(c) G-yar-skyan.

The G-yar-skyan regiment is mentioned on p. 172 supra, and in M. Tāgh, 0280 (p. 469, Innermost Asia, p. 1085) we have a regiment named Yar-skyan. The three are, no doubt, identical and designate a Tibetan force raised in, or serving in, Yarkand.

(d) Kha-ga-pan.

The single document being addressed to a khri "throne" or "divān", the place named will have been an independent, or quasi-independent, state. The only state that can come into question is that which in old writings, Kharosthi, Chinese, Tibetan, and Buddhist Sanskrit, is cited as Cugapan, Cugopa, Cakoka, Che-chü-chia, Chu-chü-po, Chu-chü-pan, Bou-gon-pan, and the inhabitants of which are by the Chinese designated Tzu-ho = Cu-ga? (see Sir Aurel Stein's Ancient Khotan, pp. 89-93, 582; M. Sylvain Lévi in BÉFE-O, v, pp. 255-6, 263, 267; Chavannes, Toung-pao, 1905, p. 334; notes in Zeitschrift für Buddhismus, vi, pp. 184-5. Festsache H. Jacobi, p. 47, and the sources cited in those connections). The syllable pan, which probably means "road", recurs in the old name (Kilpan or Gilpan) of Kilian, lying more or less in the same region west of Khotan. The place having been shown by Sir A. Stein to be identical with the modern Karghalik (or Kōk-yar), it seems likely that in the name Kha-ga-pan we have in fact the oldest form of that designation, which may have resulted merely from an addition of the Turkish suffix lik to the Kha-ga apparently seen in the document. As regards the difference between Kha-ga and Kargha (if the latter spelling is fully authorized), neither the r (see the remarks in Asia Major, ii, p. 262) nor the variation of the aspirates need trouble us in our documents.

It seems quite possible that another form of the name Cu-gon-pan is recorded in the Tibetan chronicle, which relates (l. 72) that in the year 26 (Bird) = A.D. 697

Ce . dog . pan . gyi . p[h]o . ña . phyag . htsald |

"An envoy of Ce-dog-pan did homage."

The date is not unsuitable, and the name needs only a transference of a vowel mark in order to become Ce-dgo-pan, which would be a fair approximation for the Tibetans in their early acquaintance with Karghalik. Also, if not Karghalik, what country is denoted? In a Mirān document (a paper fragment, M.I. vii, 83a) the form Cu-chu-pan seems to occur, unfortunately without further information.

Notes

1. 1. Rmañ-rogs: As suggested above (p. 192), this is one of the cases where a doubt exists as to whether we are dealing with a proper name or a professional designation. Rmañ-rogs means, no doubt, a "horse-attendant", and the drawing of horses published by Sir Aurel Stein in Innermost Asia, plate vii, has a Tibetan dedication by a person so named.
 Hence the likelihood is that in this document also, which relates to such a person, the phrase denotes his occupation.
 It occurs also p. 343: 17: in M.T. a, ii, 0097, sta-rogs.

1. 3. Śe-ḥo: ? = Si-ho, Chavannes, Documents, p. 215.

 hardly think of Gñag, "a place in Tibet".

(e) Sna-nam.

Mentioned p. 249 supra and p. 306 infra.

Sna-nam is the ordinary Tibetan name for Samarkand, and there seems no objection to its being mentioned in a document belonging to a time when the Tibetans were co-operating with the Arabs and had during over a century been in relations with the Turks. The person in question has a good Tibetan name, Zla-bzer, so that he would have to be a Tibetan belonging to Samarkand; and the reference maybe to the Tibetan Sna-nam of p. 306.

(f) Šu-lig (= Kashgar).

This well-known, ancient, designation of Kashgar occurs in the Tibetan accounts of Khotan (Ancient Khotan, p. 52; supra, vol. i, pp. 61, n. 4, 77-8, 118, 130) and probably also (suliga) in the Kharoṣṭhī document No. 661.

These two separate letters are too fragmentary for translation, though most of the words and phrases are familiar and have been noted above (e.g. so-byañ, so-rims = so-res). The first, a letter from a person named Bzu-ru, speaks of going from Śu(Su)-lig (= Kashgar) and arriving at Hu-te (= Khotan). On Byeñu-yog see p. 233.

VII. PERSONAL NAMES OF KHOTANĪ PEOPLE

Most of the personal names occurring in the documents are either Tibetan or names of persons belonging to quasi-Tibetan peoples (Sum-pa, Ha-za, and so forth) of the Tibeto-Chinese regions and in Tibetan service. The provenance of the documents, which were nearly all excavated in or near the Tibetan fort at Mazār-Tāgh, accounts sufficiently for this fact. That the Tibetans had not displaced the native Khotan rulers, but were content to hold the military control of the country, is evident from the above quoted references to the Lī-rje, or Khotan king. The matter of the documents is also largely military.

Naturally, however, there was multifarious intercourse with the native Khotanīs, and names of such persons were sure to occur. Since the Tibetan names are easily recognizable, more especially in the light of the experience gathered from Mirān and elsewhere, the non-Tibetan names might with a fair probability have been discriminated as belonging to Khotanī people. But the writers of the documents have placed us in a still more favourable position. The discrimination between Tibetan and Khotanī was in their circumstances

naturally an explicit one; and in mentioning a Khotanī person they usually show his nationality by prefixing the word Li "Khotan" or "Khotanī". The following names are in that way guaranteed as Khotanī:—

[The Amacas Sen-do, Śi-bir (sic) and Śir-de mentioned above (pp. 191-3) and the Amaca Bi-dad of the Khotan chronicle (vol. i, p. 134) have names obviously belonging to the above types. We may also mention a certain Na-mo-bud (p. 412) and a councillor Na-mo-sa (b, ii, 5, c, iv, 008), clearly Khotanîs. The Amaca Khe-meg may possibly have been a Chinaman.]

In this list we observe certain recurrent final, or second, members, such as de (12 times), dag (4 times), hdo (3 times), dad (5 times), sur (twice), ge (3 times); and the general system, composition of two monosyllables, is quite clear.

It is important to note the correspondences of this nomenclature with evidence derived from other sources. Thus from the Tibetan works we have quoted in the above cited article the names Brese Stu-lag (cf. Seh-ge-lag and Sa-rag above), Na-mo-hbod (cf. Hir-bod above), A-ba-ya-rdad (cf. In-dad, Khrom-se-dad, Sa-bdad, Sar-dad, Sir-dad above). The monosyllabic names Hdzus and Sah may be set by the side of the Hjes and Hji of the Tibetan works (pp. 252 and 270 of the article). To Hdoh-no-ya and Za-ro of the Tibetan works we have as yet no parallel.<sup>1</sup> Wi-ne-sa and Cam-po-la have many correspondences among the "Names of Places and Persons in Ancient Khotan" discussed in Festgabe Hermann Jacobi, pp. 48-73, names which in consequence of the new light upon the attribution of the kings mentioned in Kharoṣṭhî documents (see Kharoṣṭhî Inscriptions . . . . Part III, transcribed and edited by E. J. Rapson and P. S. Noble, pp. 323-5) must now be connected for the most part not with the Khotan kingdom proper, but with the adjacent, and no doubt cognate, people of Shan-shan. The Khotanî names appertain to a date about five centuries later, and, no doubt, to a partly different system.

Again, in a document edited by Dr. L. D. Barnett in Hoernle's Manuscript Remains of Buddhist Literature found in Eastern Turkestan (Oxford, 1916), pp. 402-3, we have mention of Khotanî (Lî) persons with the names Suḥe-sa Tsadzūgo, Gu-tsag, Sur-dad, Mañ-bod, which present obvious analogies or correspondences to those cited above.

It would be unlikely that in so considerable a list of names of natives of Khotan there should be none of foreign origin, more especially when we remember that the Iranian language, which has been designated variously Tokhāri B, Khotanī, and Saka, had been known in Khotan from at least about A.D. 500 (Asia Major, ii, p. 271), while an Indian Prākṛit and the Chinese had been familiar from a much earlier period, perhaps from the very foundation of the city. The name Ku-chi-ti bears a resemblance to Ser-the-ti and Ka-the-ti, which in the Khotan chronicle (see Sir A. Stein's Ancient Khotan, p. 582) are given as names of Chinese ministers. Concerning the 'A-ba-yu-rdad' of the same chronicle we formerly suspected that the syllable rdad might really represent an Iranian dāta "given", in which case a corresponding suspicion might attach to the occurrences of dad in the above list. But clearly an Indian derivation (from Sanskrit datta) would be more probable, since the first part of the name, if not local, would be the Sanskrit word Abhaya, giving a known Sanskrit name Abhayadatta: moreover, we have in non-Tibetan documents a number of names in datti which necessitate the same conclusion. The same documents show also Sanskrit names of monks, such as Pañade, which suggest that the terminal syllable de may really be derived from Sanskrit deva: but this point may be left for a later determination.

If we add to some of the names a final -a, which is likely to have been lost in the course of five centuries, we shall arrive at forms similar to those elicited from the Kharoṣṭhī documents. Thus—

- *Bu-go-ta (for Bu-god)
- *Hir-bo-ta (for Hir-bod)
- *Pu-go-ta (for Pu-god)
- *Sar-žo-na (for Sar-žon)
- *Señ-ge-la-ga (for Señ-ge-lag) are of a type amply represented in those documents (see the above cited article). To follow up such a suggestion would, however, be inappropriate in the present connection, where we are concerned almost exclusively with a record of facts.

VIII. THE KHOTAN LANGUAGE.

The previously (Asia Major, vol. ii (1825), pp. 251-71) stated conclusion that the native language of Khotan was a monosyllabic speech of the Tibeto-Burman type was based upon the evidence of names found in the accounts of Khotan (Li-yul) contained in four texts preserved in the Tibetan Bstan-hgyur. We may now point to the further evidence furnished by these new documents of the eighth century A.D., brought by Sir Aurel Stein from Mazâr-Tâgh. The nomenclature of places (pp. 180-2) and persons (pp. 261-4) is clearly of the same type as that previously elicited. In the place-names the syllable ro (Bar-ma-ro-ña, Byi-ro-ña, Hden-ro-ña, Pan-ro-ña, Śi-ro-ña, Zval-ro, etc.) is probably identical with the ro in names from N.E. Tibet (Og-ro, Hgren-ro, Myan-ro, etc.), where it is employed to form derivatives from tribal designations: it is, no doubt, equivalent to the Tibetan ra "enclosed space" in Ldum-ra, bison-ra, khyams-ra, etc. The syllable -ti likewise recurs (p. 189, cf. vol. i, pp. 175-6) in analogous use.

The abundance of non-Iranian names in current use implies that the old native language of Khotan was still prevalent. Nevertheless, it is certain from the finds of documents in the actual Khotan region (at Mazâr-Tâgh and elsewhere) that in the eighth century at least the "Saka-Khotani" speech was in full currency. In that language we have both Buddhist literary MSS. and legal and other business papers. It may be conjectured that the language was used by the higher classes and the monks in place of the old Indian Prākṛit which had prevailed during the earlier centuries. Of its employment for religious publicity we have an interesting example in the inscriptions from Dandān-Uilig figured in plates lviii-ix of Sir A. Stein's Ancient Khotan. Beneath the painting of a monk we read (with Dr. Hoernle, op. cit., p. 248):—

dvī pī sī dām śo [śā 1] dā

Here the word pīsā is possibly identical with the pīsai, which Professor Konow (Hoernle, Buddhist Remains, p. 347) has found in a "Khotanī" Vajra-cchedikā, as representing the Sanskrit guru (see also Saka Studies, p. 170). Thus the painting may represent the guru Dām-śo-dā, in whose name the syllables śo-dā (if not śā-dā) may be connected with the śo-da noted above (p. 64). There is, however, another Saka-khotanī word, pīsā (ibid.), meaning "art", "picture". Another inscription (D., x, 6, Ancient Khotan, pp. 300-1) is certainly in the same language.

Naturally the Chinese also was employed in Khotan. Witness the documents (from Dandān-Uilig, etc.) published and discussed by Chavannes (Ancient Khotan, pp. 521 sqq., and Documents Chinois, pp. 201 sqq.). There were, in fact, specially Chinese monasteries, at Mazār-Tāgh or elsewhere. But owing to the peculiarities of Chinese writing the few probably native names or terms occurring in them require a separate examination.

From early times, however, and even—if there is any element of truth in the story (Vol. I, pp. 99 sqq.) of the foundation of the city—from the very beginning, there will have been an infiltration of Chinese words. Certain folk etymologies suggest a knowledge of Chinese, and the name of Mt. Gośrūga appears in two Chinese forms, one (Hqchu-to-san) earlier than the other (Gau-to-san); and it seems possible (Vol. I, p. 176) that the name Polu was originally only a Chinese representation of Bru.

5. The Dru-gu

- ((a) The Dru-gu (Great Dru-gu and Drug-cun; the Dru-gu cor and the Bug cor; the Dru-gu and Ge-sar; the title Bog-do; conclusion); (b) the Hor; (c) -(h) the Phod-kar, Sluñs, Hbrog, Mon, etc.)

SOME texts mentioning the Dru-gu have been given above (pp. 18, 30, 40, 106-7, 123-4, 150, 175, 203-4, 249), and reference was made to the divergent views of Colonel Waddell and Professor Pelliot, the former having identified the Dru-gu with the Tu-yu[k]-hun of Chinese history, and the latter with the Turkish Uigurs. The name Drug-gu was first made known by Rockhill, who cited (The Life of the Buddha, p. 240) from the Tibetan Annals of Khotan a reference to a destructive invasion of the Khotan country by that people during the reign of King Vijaya-Kīrti, whose date is not known, but who evidently belonged to a comparatively early generation. The name of the Dru-gu king appears as 'A-no-śos or 'A-no-mo-śoñ. From the same Annals some further citations were given in an appendix to Sir A. Stein's Ancient Khotan (pp. 581-3). Thus a certain King Vijaya-Saṅgrāma retaliated for the apparently forgotten Dru-gu invasion by devastating the country of that people, causing great slaughter, to atone for which he built the monastery Hgu-gžan or Hgu-žan-ta. A subsequent Vijaya-Saṅgrāma was killed by the Dru-gu in the course of a journey to China; and a daughter of a still later king, Vijaya-Hzah-la, was married to the king of Gu-zin, who may have been a Dru-gu. Unfortunately, these citations (given, with others, in Vol. I, pp. 24, 28, 66, 78, 121, 126, 269, 273-4) contain no clear geographical or temporal information.

References in the Tibetan Chronicle

Dated references to the Dru-gu are, however, furnished by the Tibetan chronicle described in Chapter I (pp. 1-2). The passages may be cited in order.

1. Chronicle, ll. 11: Year 4 (a Hog year) = A.D. 675.

Blon, Btsan, sñas | Zims : gyi, Gu : ran, du : Zan, zuñ, gyi : mkhos : bgyiste | Dru, gu, yul, du : Ltañ, yor, mehis.

"Councillor Btsan-sña, having levied(?) the Zan-zuñ in Gu-ran of Zims, went to Ltañ-yor in the Dru-gu country."

Notes

In A.D. 673, two years before, the Mgar Btsan-sña Idom-bu (probably = the Tsauhsijo of Bushell, p. 447) had joined with (his brother) Khri-hbrin Btsan-brod (concerning whom see p. 4) in raising a force in Stag-tsal of Duña.

Zims and Gu-ran should be in the region of Gu-ge, in the Himālaya, where Zan-zuñ is usually located. Ltañ-yor appears to be not elsewhere mentioned; but the syllable yor, found also in the name of Gtse-nam-yor (in Mdo-amad) possibly means "cairn", since it occurs in tho-yor "boundary cairn".

2. Chronicle, ll. 14-5: Year 5 (Mouse) = A.D. 676.

Blon, Btsan, sñas : Dru, gu, yul : du, drañste | Idum, bu : Khri, bños : khrom, htsald.

"Councillor Btsan-sña, having marched into the Dru-gu country, sent vegetables to Khri-bños town."

Khri-bños seems not to be known, see infra, pp. 285-6.

3. Chronicle, ll. 41-2: Year 15 (Dog) = A.D. 686.

Blon : Khri, hbrin, gyis | Dru, gu : yul, du : Drañ : zes : bgyi, bgyi<sup>1</sup>, pa, las | phyi, dalte | dbyar, hdun, Šon, snar, hduas.

"Councillor Khri-hbrin, lingering outside [on the way] from a [place] called Drañ in the Dru-gu country, held the summer assemblage in Šon-sna."

Concerning Drañ and Šon-sna, see infra, p. 285. These "assemblies" or gatherings of ministers or armies have been mentioned already several times (see pp. 3, 20, 142, etc).

3a. Chronicle, ll. 58-9 : Year 21 (Dragon) = A.D. 692.

Btsan . po . N'en . kar . b'angs . śin | dbyar . h'dun . Śoñ . snar .
h'duste | Mñan . chen . po . drug . du . bakos |

"The Btsan-po residing in N'en-ka, the summer assemblage being held in Śoñ-sna, the supreme government was nominated in six departments or the Mñan-chen-po was levied in [or for] the Drug country."

Since the alternative rendering which brings in the Drug is probably not correct, the only reason for quoting this passage here is the verification of the place-name Śoñ-sna.

4. Chronicle, ll. 44-5 : Year 16 (Hog) = A.D. 687.

Blon . Khri . h'brin . gyis | Dru . gu : Gu . zan . yul : da . drans .

"Councillor Khri-h'brin marched into the Dru-gu Gu-zan country."

Notes

Concerning Gu-zan, see infra, pp. 282 sqq.

5. Chronicle, l. 50 : Year 18 (Ox) = A.D. 689.

Blon . che . Khri . h'brin . Dru . gu . yul . nas : ślar : h'khorte |

"The Great Councillor Khri-h'brin returning from the Dru-gu country."

6. Chronicle, ll. 79-80 : Year 29 (Mouse) = A.D. 700.

Btsan . po . . . | Ton . Ya . bgo : Kha . gan . Dru . gu . yul . du .
b'taś |

"The Btsan-po . . . sent the Khagan Ton Yab-go into the Dru-gu country."

Notes

Of this Ton Yab-go Khagan, who is mentioned previously (ll. 64 and 77) as having done homage (phyug-h'sald) in A.D. 694 and 699, and whose Turkish name and titles remind us of a famous early Khagan (see Chavannes, Documents sur les Tou-Kiu occidentaux, index), nothing further seems to be known from Tibetan sources : is he the Tun-yo-ku, Tonyuquq, of Thomsen, Inscriptions de l'Orkhon, pp. 74, 185 ?

7. Chronicle, ll. 201-2: Year 58 (Serpent) = A.D. 729.

Blon.chen.po : Cuñ.bzañ.gyis | dgun.hdun : Skyi.Šo.
ma.rar.bsduste | Mun.magi : snon.god.brtsis | dmag :
Dru.gu : yul.du.drañs : pha : slar : hkbord.

"The Great Councillor Cuñ-bzañ, having held the winter muster in Šo-ma-ra of Skyi, made a reckoning of the expense of reinforcements of the Mun troops, and led his army into the Dru-gu country and returned."

Notes

Cuñ-bzañ Hor-mañ of Hbro in Mdo-smad (l. 194) became Chief Minister in the year 57 = A.D. 728 (l. 198); he is frequently mentioned in the Chronicle.

On Skyi and Šo-ma-ra see p. 48. Skyi is the Tang-hsiang country (Chinese Hsih-chih), east of the Hoang-ho gorge.

The expression mun-dmag, denoting some kind of troops, has been cited previously (Two Medieval Documents from Tun-Huang, by F. W. Thomas and Sten Konow, p. 129). In the Zeitschrift für Vergleichende Rechtswissenschaft, vol. 50 (p. 286, n. 40) the meaning "guard", "household troops", has been suggested; but see now BSOAS., xi, pp. 515-16. Snon-god has occurred supra, p. 122, 5.

7a. M.I. iv, 132 (paper, c. 30.5 × 8 cm.; a fragment of a verso; l. 1 of good, cursive, dbu-can script, rather faint).

ཨ | : | -i.[lo.la] || skun.mkhar. | Nob.chuñu.G-yuñ.druñ.
rtser | rkyen.gyi | mun.dmag.Spu.tahugs | dkar |

"Year —. At G-yuñ-druñ-rtse of Little Nob town. Of the property. Spu-tahugs (3 not a proper name!) of the mun troops. White (wheat)."

In the other occurrences of mun-dmag in the Chronicle (ll. 6, 51-2) it is again a question of a counting and a review (rkan-ton).

8. Chronicle, ll. 221-2: Year 65 (Mouse) = A.D. 736.

Cog.ro.mañ.po.rje.Khyi.chuñ.gyis | Dru.gu.yul.

"The Great Chief Khyi-chuñ of Cog-ro marched into the Dru-gu country."

Notes

On Cog-ro in Mdo-amad and on the expression mah-po-rje, denoting a feudatory chief, see pp. 7 and 15.

In these passages we have reports of expeditions into the Dru-gu country ranging from A.D. 675-736. The places named, Itañ-yor, Khri-bśos, Drañ, Šoñ-sna, Gu-zan, are all provisionally unidentified; but to some of them we shall recur infra (pp. 282 sqq.). There are no other special indications as to the direction in which the Dru-gu country is to be sought.

References in the Documents

When we turn to the documents from Mirān, Mazār-Tāgh and Tun-huang (Ša-cu), we are no longer furnished with definite dates. Some of the documents are indeed dated in years of the twelve-year cycle; but this indication is provisionally almost useless. Nor among the numerous officials mentioned has any one been found who can be identified elsewhere. Hence we can rely only upon the general dating furnished by Sir Aurel Stein's explorations, which attribute the forts at Mirān, Eudere, and Mazār-Tāgh to the eighth century A.D. The general probability that Mirān is the earliest is reinforced by the date (A.D. 717) of a Chinese coin found there; while similar, but more abundant, finds assign the occupation of Mazār-Tāgh to the latter half of the century.

It is a curious fact that the Mirān documents, numerous as they are, never refer to Šin-san, while those from Šin-san, although mentioning, not infrequently, places in the eastern parts of Chinese Turkestan, do not name Ka-dag, and only twice refer to Nob (as Nag). This may be partly due to the fact that the documents, in spite of their number, are probably in each case collections covering comparatively short periods. The failure of mention of identical persons is, however, somewhat notable, and we may regard it as due to difference of period, so that the Mirān collections would belong to the first half of the eighth century, and be thus at least one generation prior to those from Mazār-Tāgh. We cannot suppose that such records as we have, relating, as they do, to passing matters, would be preserved in the local archives over any considerable period of years.

A. 2, dro-dgors: A "mid-day resting(-place)."

Notes

1. A. 3; phros-pa : " Additional," " remaining."

gla as a verb is not found elsewhere. The following passage no doubt stated the price.

A. 4, nañ-pa (nañ-pa ?): "Domestic" (i.e. tame ?), is apparently contrasted with the rgod "wild" (i.e. "not broken in", p. 303:44), of l. 6.

A. 5, bkol-spyad-ltam: The sense is uncertain: bkol-spyad has the sense of "taming-exercise" †

Śi-nir: On this place-name see infra, p. 285.

Sum-cur: This means "at thirty"; but it seems likely that a place-name is intended, and this might be Sum-chu "Three Waters", since in the Chronicle we have such a place-name (ll. 3, 38: "Sum-chu-bo in Śāns"): the place may even be the same, the rivers being Tārīm, Konche, and Cereen daryā.

The Great and Little Dru-gu, and the Upper Dru-gu

In connection with the Ha-za (p. 30) and with Śa-cu (p. 40), we have already met with the name Drug-cun and **chun*, which must have been understood to mean the "Little Dru-gu" (Drug-chuh). Further examples are the following:—

This document is evidently connected with M.I. iv, 49 (printed in full supra, p. 123), where the same ldoñ-bzañ Lha-sgra-gsās is mentioned in connection with the Upper Dru-gu (and with Tshal-byi).

We have found the "Little Dru-gu" associated with the Ḥa-za, Śa-cu, Kva-cu, Stoñ-sar. The "Upper Dru-gu" are in the above passage associated with the "Great" and the "Little", and in iv, 49 with Tshal-byi, which we have seen reason (p. 120) to regard as being in the mountainous hinterland of Charklik.

The "Great Dru-gu" will recur in a passage to be quoted below (p. 278).

F.K. 1024 (Kha. 140, paper) merely states that a Tibetan donkey and a Dru-gu donkey are alike. In all the remaining occurrences (M. Tāgh. 0022, 0147, 0558, i, 0016, a, vi, 0031, b, ii, 0023) we have on wooden tablets merely the expression Dru-gu-hjor, except that in one of them (0022) the place-name Tsehu.co[g] (see p. 250) is appended.

The Dru-gu cor and the Bui cor

The word cor has been equated (supra, p. 18) to the Chinese teh'ou (chur), noted by Chavannes (Documents sur les Tou-kiue Occidentaux, s. Index) as applied to certain five subdivisions of the Turkish tribes and also the persons at the head of them. There can be, it seems, little doubt that the term is identical with the Turkish cur, which Thomsen found (Inscriptions de l'Orkhon, p. 155) in similar double employment. We might conveniently use "Count" and "County" as equivalent thereto.

The Dru-gu cor itself has been mentioned above (pp. 175, 203). In the form Dru-gu-hjor it has occurred, pp. 204, 249, and this is seen also in—and in the documents mentioned above. We have also a parallel in Khri-skugs-hjor, pp. 235-6). Since the words on the wooden tablets are very often merely the names of places for which the objects accompanying them were kept or destined, there can be no doubt that here also the meaning is "the Dru-gu county", "the Khri-skugs county". A probably erroneous variant Dru-gu-hjon is found in one instance, viz.—

15. M. Tāgh. c, iii, 0043 (wood, c. 11 × 2 cm., complete; ll. 2 recto + 2 verso of ordinary, cursive, dbu-can script).

If this Lha-mthoñ is the tan-khri Lha-mthoñ named in the Lha-sa Pillar inscription (JRAS., 1911, p. 43) of A.D. 783 or 822, his "request" is a polite command: see also p. 238 supra. On Chinese Sluñs and phur-myi see pp. 52, 174, 224, 296-7. Mjed recurs in M.T., c, iii, 0018.

In the passage last cited, and also in that given supra pp. 202-4), there is a question of missives to Šin-šan by routes which reach down to the Dru-gu cor from the Tibetan highlands. The places mentioned in the same connection are Par-ban, probably in the region of Polu or Cer-cen (p. 242), and Chinese Sluñs, probably in the mountains further east: elsewhere also Dru-gu are connected with (the mountain hinterland of) Tshal-byi and with the Ha-za, who have the same relationship.

It seems to follow from these considerations that the "Dru-gu county" or province, was, under the Tibetan administration, simply the "Nob region" or the old Shan-shan kingdom, for which the documents supply no other designation. That the term was not unreasonably applied we may judge from the statement of the Chinese pilgrim Sung-Yün (A.D. 518, Chavannes, p. 390) that—

"The kings who had been designated by that city [Shan-shan] have been conquered by the Tu-yü-hun: at present the sovereign in that city is the second son (of the king) of the Tu-yü-hun: he has the title of pacifier of the west, and commands 3,000 men, who are employed in withstanding the western Hu" (the people of Khotan).

We have other proofs that, prior to the coming of the Turks and Tibetans the Tu-yu[k]-hun were rather powerful; and it is to be presumed that, under Chinese suzerainty, they remained in possession of Shan-shan, until overthrown by the Tibetans. The latter would therefore, if the Dru-gu were Tu-yu[k]-hun, have had good reason for styling that kingdom the Dru-gu cor. This would also account for the rather frequent association of the Dru-gu with the Ha-za, if the Ha-za were, as we have reason for believing, a people of Shan-shan, and its hinterland. We may also remark that the name Mu-li-yeu, attributed by the Chinese to the Tu-yu[k]-hun king who invaded Khotan, has some resemblance to Mug-ilen, which at a later date (c. A.D. 640) we have found in a Ha-za connection (pp. 11 sqq.).

It is, however, the Drug-cun who are in the documents most clearly brought into connection with the Ha-za; and this name, which rhymes somewhat obviously with Tu-yu[k]-hun, suggests that the Great Dru-gu, who are placed in antithesis to the Drug-cun, may be found elsewhere.

What then of the Bug cor? This is mentioned in the Tibetan Chronicle (l. 162), but only to say that in an Ape year (A.D. 719) an emissary came thence to present submission (phyag-btsald); the context is uniastructive. There exists, however, a document which supplies more definite information. It contains an account (fragmentary) of the bad and better ages of human history.

"Next the present period is the period of loans and taxes. When of this period three hundred and sixty years had passed there came from a land on the far side of a great lake below (sc. west of) the country of China, a black-face king, riding in a black chariot, who flourished during sixty years. China's black-heads did homage to him and were subjugated by him. When of that king's time sixty years had passed, there arose from a small cave in the Chinese swamp country of the Bug chor a man called the Great Drug, who annihilated both the black-face king of China and the king of the Bug chor; the people of both China and the Bug chor were subjugated by that king and paid taxes. The Great Drug king flourished during seventy-two years. After he had flourished seventy-two years the Dru-gu of the East and the Dru-gu of the West fought. At first the Dru-gu of the West . . ."

In this document, which comes from the hidden library of the Ch'ien-fo-tung and is therefore probably not later than the tenth century A.D., it seems as if the "Great Drug", who came from the Chinese swamp country of the Bug chor, no doubt the Lop-nor region, should be of Turkish stock. Following a "black-face" king, who might be a Tu-yu[k]- lun, and being extant in the Tibetan period, he could not be a Hsiung-nu or a Juan-Juan. The division into "Dru-gu of the East" and "Dru-gu of the West" is hardly decisive, since not only the division of the Turks into northern and western (which was also eastern and western), but also an earlier division of the Juan-Juan on the same lines (Cordier, Histoire de la Chine, i, p. 351), and the division of Anterior and Posterior Chū-shih, i.e. Turfan and Guchen (Stein, Innermost Asia, pp. 566 sqq.), might come into question. If the Turks are meant, the division might be either that into North and West, A.D. 582 (Chavannes, Documents Chinois, pp. 259 sqq.), or that into the five tribes Tu-lu and the five tribes Nu-she-pi, c. A.D. 630 (ibid., pp. 265 sqq.): in the former case the periods of 60 years and 72 years, which numbers are likely to be correct, would correspond respectively to A.D. 450-510 and 510-82; in the latter case to A.D. 498-558 and A.D. 558-630. But these are rather questions for Sinologists and Turkologists, who may be able to decide whether the particulars stated are reconcilable with what is otherwise known. The legendary character of the narrative renders it inadvisable to pursue the matter here.

The Bug-cor, however, "the Chinese swamp country," being clearly in the Lop-nor region, is, no doubt, identical with W. Kan-su, and perhaps bug = pug, attested (JRAS. 1927, p. 299) as an old form of pei "north". The local dynasty of the Śa-cu country seems to have been named Ybrag "Dragon", a term which we have recorded several times (pp. 17-18, 150) and which is equivalent to the name Lung, given by the Chinese to a "Dragon" dynasty, originally from Karaahahr, established in Śa-cu during this period (L. Giles, BSOS., vi, pp. 844-5).

It would seem, therefore, that we have evidence for the existence of two adjacent provinces, named respectively the Druq-cor and the Bug-cor, one of which we have identified with the old Shan-shan kingdom, while the other is W. Kan-su and probably includes the Śa-cu region as far west as Lop-nor.

Other References to the Dru-gu (Gru-gu)

In Tibetan literature generally the Dru-gu are practically unknown, and their name is not to be found in the dictionaries.

Ś. C. Das, however, cites a Gru-gu-Rgya-ra, "a village in Kham" and the Geografia Tibeta mentions (p. 54) a Gru-gu-dgon lamasery in Amdo. In Vol. I (pp. 269, 273) we have noted a few other occurrences of the same spelling. Once or twice in documents from the hidden library of Chi'en-fo-tung the name of this people is mentioned, as is also that of the Ha-za; but the passages are uninformative. The same may be said of the references which we have previously cited from documents; in one document, however, from the Śa-cu region (p. 150) a Dru-gu man is mentioned along with a Hhrug, while in another (of the eighth century A.D., pp. 92 sqq.) the Drug are named, along with the Chinese and the Hjañ, as having been at war with the Tibetans.

As a representative people of the north the Dru-gu are mentioned as early as the Lha-sa Pillar inscription of A.D. 783 or 822 (edited by Colonel Waddell in JRAS. 1909; see pp. 930, 948), where the four directions are represented by the Chinese (east), Nepal (south), Tibet (west), and the Drug (north). A like ascription of the Gru-gu (Dru-gu) to the north is to be found in a passage discussed infra (p. 288), derived from a literary notice of the Tibetan king Mu-tig-btsan-po (c. A.D. 800). The Bon literature, which in principle is fairly old, retains a souvenir of the Dru-gu people, and in fact locates them with some exactitude. Thus we are told that a range of mountains called Ba-dag-san (Badakshan) separates the Gru-gu from the Tsha-gser people, while another range, named Šaṅ-la-nag-po, separates them from the Hor.

Conclusion

It might be thought that the citations contained in the last paragraph are decisive in favour of an identification of the Dru-gu with the Uigurs; who about the end of the eighth century A.D. became a great power in the regions north of Chinese Turkestan; and we might suppose that, while the Turks generally are designated Hor, the Uigur Turks are distinguished by the special appellation Dru-gu, which distinction is, however, inverted by the Chinese evidence cited Vol. I, p. 78, nn. 9-10. Who else, in fact, are the Dru-gu to be? Since, however, the former impossibility, based upon dates (for the Tibetans are fighting the Dru-gu as early as A.D. 675—not to mention the far earlier Dru-gu episodes in Khotan history), still stands fast, it is clear that there must be some other way of escape from conflicting alternatives.

Starting with the fact that Gu-zan was in the Dru-gu country, we shall note first that this place must be the same in all the passages where it is named. The well-known passage in the Annals (vol. i, p. 119) which states that the king of Gu-zan, and the king of Kanika and king Vijaya-Kirti of Khotan made a joint expedition to India cannot be separated from the rest: for it was written in the eleventh century A.D., at which time the people of Chinese Turkestan and Tibet must have known quite definitely what they meant by the name Gu-zan, even if the statement which they made concerning a past event was contrary to fact. When, in the eighth century (c. A.D. 745), we hear (Vol. I, p. 254) of the Chinese being invited to come into Khotan and Gu-zan, the region meant must be the same as when, in A.D. 687, the Tibetan army marches to Gu-zan in the Dru-gu country.

The name Gu-zan is highly suggestive of Guchen. Situated to the north of the Bogdo-Ulā mountains, the most easterly extension of the Tien-shan, with Barkul to the east, Hami and Pi-chan beyond the range to the south, and the Turfan depression beyond another range to the west, it was the capital of what the Chinese designated Posterior Chū-shih, Anterior Chū-shih being Turfan itself. From the excellent account which Sir Aurel Stein has given of this region,<sup>1</sup> which is separated from Mongolia by the Dzungarian plateau and the

Altai mountains, we see that, though subject to the dominion of the successive great kingdoms to the north, the Hsiung-nu, the Juan-Juan, the Turks, as well as to the Chinese, it had a continuous internal history, until it became absorbed in the kingdom of the Uigurs, with its capital at Karakoram. Sir Aurel Stein remarks upon "the close intercourse which, since ancient times, must have existed between Anterior and Posterior Chū-shih, i.e. Turfān and the present Guchen region" (p. 554), and manifests a lively recognition of a difference between the character of the population, which must be of highly mixed descent, and that of their northern neighbours beyond Dzungaria, the true Turks and Mongols from the Altai (pp. 550, 558). As regards the presence of Tibetans in this region, he reminds us that "We know that in A.D. 670 the 'Four Garrisons' controlled by the Protectorate of An-hsi (Kuchā, Khotan, Kāshgar, Tokmak) were overrun by the Tibetans, who had in that year won a signal victory over the imperial forces north of the Kuku-nor, and that, notwithstanding the successes won by certain Chinese generals in 673 and 677-9, a Chinese supremacy in these regions was not re-established until 692. It seems difficult to believe that the Tibetans, who had then risen to formidable power, should have conquered the Tārīm basin and made their influence felt even north of the T'ien-shan, without having at least temporarily secured mastery over the oases from Tun-huang to Turfān, through which led the least difficult line of access to the former" (pp. 579-580). After its re-establishment the Chinese authority was maintained, precariously after A.D. 766, with the aid of the Uigurs, until 790, when "the people of Pei-t'ing, tired of Uigur exactions, submitted to the Tibetans, together with the Sha-t'o tribe, a branch of the Turkish Ch'u-yueh, who appear, as early as the first T'ang advance to Hāmi and Turfān, in semi-nomadic occupation of the Guchen region . . . Towards the close of 790 a fresh effort was made by the Uigurs to retake Pei-t'ing, but led to their signal defeat . . . The complete predominance which the Tibetans appear to have gained in Eastern Turkestan during the early part of the ninth century accounts for the absence of further references to Turfan in the Chinese records for this period. But, soon after the middle of that century, Tibetan supremacy in that region and in westernmost Kan-su was broken by the Uigurs, whom Kirghiz attacks and internal dissensions had forced to move from their former seats in Mongolia to the south and south-west" (ibid., p. 581).

This history renders it highly probable that the Tibetan general who in the year A.D. 687 marched to Gu-zan in the Dru-gu country was really operating in the direction of Guchen. As regards the actual name, which in its Chinese form Ku-ch'êng-tzu means the "ancient town" (Stein, op. cit., p. 554), it seems possible that it has been adapted by the Chinese in order to provide it with a meaning. But there are other possibilities. Thus we have the pass Ku-chüan, which Sir A. Stein crossed on his way from Guchen to Turfan (ibid., p. 555). Further, the town of Pei-t'ing, which later appears in Turkish as Bëshbaliq "the five towns", was originally known to the Chinese by the same expression, which in its then Chinese form would have had the pronunciation **Gu-zjang*; and this also may perhaps be an interpretation of a native Gu-zan. These alternatives—and it may be added that vice versa Gu-zan might be a representation of the Chinese Ku-ch'êng or Gu-zjang—may seem not to strengthen the arguments from nomenclature connecting Gu-zan with the Guchen-Turfan region. But they do not weaken it: until a preferable alternative is found, the attribution of Gu-zan to the Guchen region retains its philological probability.

This probability would be enhanced if we could find in the same general region place-names identifiable with some of these which have occurred in our extracts. These are Ltañ-yor, Khri-béos, Šon-sna, Ši-ñir, and Drañ. The first-named is not stated to be, though it must be agreed that it probably was, in the Dru-gu country. Ltañ-yor seems rather suggestive of north-eastern Tibet—for the syllable yor, which recurs in the name of Gtse-nam-yor in Mdo-smad, may be a word of that region, meaning "cairn" or "boundary mark" of stones: though it is not at all improbable that in the year A.D. 675 a place in Turkish territory should have been invaded by a Tibetan force, Ltañ-yor could be, in fact, the well-known Tan-kar, in the Koko-nor region (p. 158). But Šon-sna, where the General Khri-ljbrin, returning from Drañ, in the Dru-gu country, and "lingering outside" (sc. of Tibet), held the "summer assemblage", might very well be in the Šhonā-nor depression, between Hami or Pichan and the Quruk-tāgh mountains. Also the Ši-nir mountain, mentioned in the document M.I. xxiii, 009 (supra, p. 273), in connection with the Dru-gu country, is likely to be the "Simir-tag" of Andree's Atlas, and in fact to be the "mountain of Singer",<sup>1</sup> which lies north of the western part of the Quruk-tāgh and may have been on a route from the Lop-nor district to Guchen, Pichan, and Turfān. That in all times there was regular communication between Lop-nor-Shan-shan and the Guchen-Turfān country is patent from the historical particulars cited by Chavannes and Sir A. Stein, as well as in other ways.<sup>2</sup> If these identifications are sound, then quite possibly Drañ may be Taranchi, which Sir A. Stein's map places south of the Bogdo-Ulā mountains. Taranchi is, no doubt, simply Turkish taranchi "land-cultivator", where the chi is the common suffix (Vambéry, Kudatku Bilik, pp. 5, 232). To a Turkish local name there can be no objection, since the country had known a Turkish overlordship during a long period commencing about a century previously. Lastly, Khri-bšos might be connected with the lake Khri-šo, which, according to a Bon book, lies between the kingdom of Ge-sar and Tibet. This, is, perhaps, the lake Khri-sor, or Koko-nor, as seems to be indicated by the Tibetan Geography translated by Wassiliew (St. Petersburg, 1895, p. 55); but Khri-bśos-khrom, "the Khri-bśos mart."

The identification of the Dru-gu country with the Guchen-Turfān region seems, therefore, highly acceptable; and, since the region at the period in question was still under Chinese government and did not pass into the hands of the Uigurs until the middle of the ninth century, we have a further chronological proof that the original application of the name Dru-gu was not to the Uigurs. That at a later time, when the Uigurs became dominant in the region, the term was perhaps applied to them by the Tibetans creates no difficulty. In nomadic or semi-nomadic Asia the ethnic names seem to have two alternative destinies; either they cleave to the people who originally bore them, in which case they wander (e.g. Tokhari, Turk, Mughal) over the map; or they become attached to a district (e.g. Tokharistan, Turkestan) and so apply during different periods to different successive populations. The Tibetans, who in Chinese Turkestan appeared late, probably derived the term Dru-gu from the people of Shan-shan and Khotan. Originally it may have denoted not only the people of the Guchen-Turfān area, but generally the less civilized tribes of the whole Tien-shan region, including the "Wu-sun" of the Chinese. Possibly the name may have come to Khotan, along with some other impressions, from the Iranian sphere and may be ultimately identical with the druj or the Sanskrit Druh-yu, meaning, perhaps, originally "deceitful", "hated", "foreign", "barbarous", and applied to a people on the north-west of India. The Drug-cun, interpreted as the "Little Drug-gu", may have been originally the "Cun Dru-gu". Whether this name can be equated in part to that of the Tu-yu[k]-hun (stated to be the name of one of the early kings), we must leave to others to determine; but it certainly seems likely that it was applied by the Tibetans to "Dru-gu" connected with the Ha-za country, which seems to be the Drug cor. originally Shan-shan. The relation of the name Dru-gu to that of the Turks, with which Professor Pelliot has reasonably connected it (J.A., 1914, ii, p. 144), remains somewhat obscure: Türk is said to have been a helmet-shaped mountain (in Kan-su!, see Parker in Thomsen, Inscriptions de l'Orkhon, p. 193). It is certain that the Chinese Tou-kiue, T'u-chüeh, does not represent Dru(Dur)-gu rather than Türk!

The Dru-gu and Ge-sar

In this connection it is impossible to avoid a reference to that most widely spread and most wonderful popular Epic legend of Central and Eastern Asia, the Ge-sar story, first made known in Europe by I. J. Schmidt's translation from the Mongol under the title Die Thaten Bogda Gesser Chana (St. Petersburg, 1839). Besides being familiar to the Chinese and Manchus, it exists also in a Tibetan oral tradition, partly made known in published editions and translations by the late Dr. A. H. Francke, who has also edited a Western Tibetan (oral) version in full; a Burushaski, also oral, form of it is being communicated by Colonel D. L. R. Lorimer. We have previously (Festgabe Hermann Jacobi, p. 65) had occasion to remark that a non-legendary Phrom Ge-sar is named in the Khotan Annals; and a similar observation was made by E. Schlagintweit concerning the (otherwise uninformative) references to Ge-sar in the Life of Padmasambhava (p. 522 of Die Lebensbeschreibung von Padma Sambhava in the Munich Academy Abhandlungen, 1903). But we do not realize the significance of this fact until we reflect that such a reference carries back the question of Ge-sar and his story to a date far anterior to our other knowledge of it. Even if we ignore the date of the Khotan king<sup>1</sup> who is stated to have married a daughter of Phrom Ge-sar, the actual statement in the Annals is not later than the eleventh century. In fact, however, we have an earlier Tibetan text which identifies the kingdom of Ge-sar with the Gru-gu (= Dru-gu). This is an account in verse, from the nature of its contents obviously quite early, of the achievements of the Tibetan king Mu-tig-btsan-po (c. 800), son of Khri-sroñ-ldehu-btsan; it occurs in the Rgyal-pohi bkahi-thaŋ-yig "Pronouncements concerning kings", being the second part of the Padma-[bgyu-gnas]-bkahi-thaŋ-yig, the well-known "Pronouncements of Padma[sambhava]", a work of probably the tenth century A.D.; and it is quoted at length in the introductory Index volume to the Suar-thaŋ edition of the Bkañ-hgyur (fol. 14a 7, sqq.), where the lines read as follows (fol. 22a of the Padma xylograph shows small variants):—

"The Gru-gu Ge-sar, residing in the northern quarter, having until then, in resentment at commands, shown rivalry the demon Red-Face army of Tibet was set in motion. As far as 'Oñ-ñu in the Gru-gu kingdom the army forces of Tibet, set up the black tents and escorted the people, their land overthrown, into the Mon territory. Though given a home town in Mon territory,<sup>1</sup> they were discontented, relying upon evil men in the country. A terrifying leader (ded-dpon = sārthavāha) being posted to garrison the country, the Gru-gu Ge-sar gave his submission as a servant of Tibet."

<sup>1</sup> i.e. among the Mons, a non-Tibetan people, usually associated with the western parts of Tibet and the lower Himalaya. See the dictionaries, and also Schiedner, Ein tibetische Lebensbeschreibung Gikjamsnis, p. 328; Lander, Klu "Bum bodus pañ shik po, pp. 94 sqq.; A. H. Francke, Antiquities of Western Tibet, vol. I (index).

From this extract it will be seen that the passage, which is given entire in Vol. i (pp. 269 sqq.), contains particulars of much verisimilitude concerning the king Mu-tig-btsan-po, the patron of Padmassambhava, far different from the meagre notices in later works such as the Rgyal-rabs.

The association of Ge-sar with the country of the Dru-gu is not a casual idea of the panegyrist of Mu-tig-btsan-po. It is current in the Bon literature, where the kingdom of Ge-sar is regarded as being in the north and separated from Tibet and from China by sand-deserts. In spite of the schematistic and fanciful features which appear in the geographical notions it is clear that the Tibetans generally place the realm of Ge-sar precisely where we have found the Dru-gu. We shall, therefore, reject the statement on p. 224 of Śarat Candra Das' Tibetan Dictionary that Ge-sar was "a powerful king ruling in Shensi in China. . . . According to some authors he lived in the seventh century A.D." in favour of his other statement (p. 845) that "Phrom is the name of a country situated to the north-east of Yarkand and north of Tibet. . . . This country in the sixth century A.D. is said to have been under the rule of king Gesar".

It would be inadvisable to lay any stress upon any part of the personal nomenclature of the Ge-sar story, since this varies in the different versions. But the general lines of the story, a journey to the east on a friendly visit to China, a journey to the north into the country of the Turks, a combat with the "Tangut" chiefs who are in alliance with the king of Khotan, are not inconsistent with such a geographical situation as we have conceived. Moreover, the subjects are in part such as accord with the period which we have in view, say from A.D. 500-800: more especially the question of a Chinese wife, a matter of international rivalry in at least the earlier part of the period, seems significant in regard to the original historical setting of the legend. More generally still, we have in the fall of the old civilizations of Kucā and Turfan, overwhelmed by the comparative barbarism of the northern borders, the same favourable ground for the growth of a popular epic, based upon uncomprehended reminiscences, which exists in the cases of the legends of Priam, Brutus, and Arthur.

However this may be, the meaning of the expression Phrom Ge-sar "Gesar of the City" seems certain. For the alternative form khrom has in Tibetan regularly the meaning of "mart" or "town"; and in the Central Asian documents we have frequently found it in such expressions as Sta-ga-khrom, khrom-Nob-ched-po, khrom Kin-cu Si-nan; in the year 741-2 the Tibetans, after capturing the Chinese city Dar-kheu-hoyan, inflicted in Zan-tsal of Zo-don a great defeat upon "Khrom", the Btsan-po himself being present (Chronicle, II. 232-3). It seems, therefore, likely that "Khrom", though it was afterwards regarded as a country, was originally "the city", meaning the great city or metropolis (of the Dru-gu), whether this was Guchen or Turfan or Karashahr or some other, and it became in popular talk the name of a country in the same way as Rome became Rûm. The Tibetans, however, seem sometimes to distinguish between "Phrom", or "Khrom", and Ge-sar: for instance, the Rgyal-rabs (fol. 21a 6) speaks of the four kings, of India, the Stag-gzûg (Tajiks), Ge-gsar (Ge-sar), and Khrom (Rgya-gar-chos-kyi-rgyal-po, Stag-gzig-nor-gyi-rgyal-po, Ge-gsar-dmag-gi-rgyal-po, Geugs-mdzes-Khrom-gyi-rgyal-po, bzhi-blom . . .), and in the Bon (schematic) geography there is even mention of a range of mountains separating Phrom from Ge-sar. Is it possible that we have here a reminiscence of the distinction between the two kingdoms of "Anterior Chû-shih" (Turfan) and "Posterior (Chû-shih" (Guchen), separated, as in fact they are, by a mountain-range?

What then is to be said of Professor Pelliot's attractive suggestion of connection between a Phrom (Fu-lin) and Rome and between Ge-sar and Caesar (J.A., 1914, i, pp. 498-9; 1923, i, pp. 83-8; approved by Dr. Laufer, Sino-Indica, pp. 436-7)? The syllable prom certainly occurs otherwise in Chinese Turkestan, and we can only conclude that the always unhappy nomenclature of that region has provided us with two, if not three, p(h)oms. Ge-sar may be a dynastic title (like Po in Kucā); the kingdom Kesara (Kī-sa-lo) traced by Professor Lévi (BÉFEO. v, p. 283) seems not to belong to Chinese Turkestan.

In any case, however, a connection between the name Dru-gu and the people of the Guchen region seems to have been made out. By the Tibetans, who came late upon the scene, the name must have been received from their Turkestan neighbours. The Khotanese, when invaded by the Tu-yu[k]-hun from Shan-shan (absorbed by that people, as we have seen, in the year A.D. 445), applied the name to them also. The Chinese account of the history of the Tu-yu[k]-hun is definite, and Professor Pelliot has adduced (J.A., 1912, ii, pp. 520-3; 1914, ii, p. 144 n.; 1916, i, p. 122; T'oung-Pao, 1920-1, pp. 323-5) direct evidence for the equation Tu-yu[k]-hun = Ha-za. He, however, regards the name Ha-za as properly denoting mixed tribes of the north of Kan-su, and applied to the Tu-yu[k]-hun from outside, by the Tibetans among others. What we have suggested is that the Tibetans (who speak of a Ha-za kingdom long after the overthrow of the Tu-yu[k]-hun) understood by the term Ha-za the people of the Shan-shan and Śa-cu area, and knew the Tu-yu[k]-hun, who had long dominated the Shan-shan kingdom, as Drug-cin.

The Title Bogdo

The title Bogdo, applied to "Gesser Chan", was borne by Mongol sovereigns, beginning with Čingis Khan: in the forms Pog-ta and Bog-do it appears in the Tibetan accounts of Mongolia (see the Hor-chos-byun, edited by Huth, pp. 16 sqq., and the dictionaries). In the Guchen area the title forms part of the name of the Bogdo-Ulā mountain, "the mountain of Bogdo" or "the holy mountain" (Klaproth, Sprache und Schrift der Uigur, p. 47). The designation may or might be Mongol; but the term bogdo must be far older than the first appearance of the Mongols in the vicinity of Chinese Turkestan, if it was used as a title by Khotan kings at least in the early part of the seventh century A.D. Several Khotan kings of about that period are mentioned by the Chinese with names wherein the syllables Wei-she, = Sanskrit Vijaya, are replaced by the syllables Fu-tu: these are Fu-tu-Hung, Fu-tu-Sin, and Fu-tu-Ta. The Chinese character transliterated Fu had in Turkestan during Tibetan times the pronunciation Bug (JRAS. 1926, p. 516; cf. Karlgren's Analytical Dictionary, no. 46), while the tu seems hardly to be found except in transliterations; other characters, however, with the value tu in modern times are used to transliterate do (JRAS. 1926, p. 157). The title Bogdo might possibly have been introduced by the Juan-Juan, one of whose kings was, in fact, named Fu(Bug)-t'u (Cordier, op. cit., i, p. 347); but in all probability it came from the Turks, since in the time of Hiuan-Tsang the king of Khotan "had been subject to the Turks" (Abel-Rémusat, Histoire de la Ville de Khotan, p. 35). Is the title Bogdo then the Bagatur of the Turks, which the Chinese represent by Mo-ho-tu (Chavannes, op. cit., index)? This is prima facie improbable, since Chinese Mo would hardly represent a syllable containing a u (or o) vowel. Whether the word is Turki at all or, perhaps, a borrowing from an older population is a question for the philology of eastern Turki: [see now JRAS. 1937, pp. 309-13].

b. THE Hor (Turks)

In the documents there are rather frequent references to a Bzān-Hor-gyi-sde "Good Hor Regiment". We have already (pp. 55-6, cf. p. 456) cited one: we have further—18. M. Tāgh. 0345 (wood, c. 13 × 2 cm., complete; II. 1 (faint) recto + 1 verso of cursive dbu-can script).

Bzān.Hor.gyi.sde.dbrad.Rgan.pho. (Repeated verso).

"The dbrad Rgan-pho (or old ?) of the Bzān-Hor regiment" where dbrad is a military designation previously noticed (pp. 180, 208).

Apart from the regiment we have already encountered in the documents two references to the Hor (pp. 151, 236); and an individual Hor named Bañ-Gsas-byin (p. 141), i.e. "Gsas-byin of the Bañ clan" or "two Hore, Bañ and Gsas", the former being the more probable, since a clan name Bañ has been traced at Śa-cu (p. 113). Further references are:—

19. M. Tāgh. c, iii, 0019 (wood, c. 13.5 × 1.5 cm., complete; hole for string at right; ll. 2 of ordinary, cursive, dbu-can script).

[1] ༩ || N̄i.mo.bagi.sde.Rhye.lig.Hor.Khen.tiñ.tse.[2 hog-pon.]

"The N̄i-mo-bag regiment; the Rhye-lig Hor Khen-tiñ-tse, corporal."

Rhye-lig is probably the name of a clan or of a locality.

20. M. Tāgh. b, i, 0058 (wood, c. 12.5 × 2.5 cm., complete; hole for string at right; ll. 2 of ordinary, cursive, dbu-can script, rather smudged).

[1] ༩ | : | Ho.tso.bagi.sde | Sñel.Hor [2] N̄a.gzigs |

"The Ho-tso-bag regiment; the Sñel Hor N̄a-gzigs."

The Ho-tso-bag (pag) regiment is several times mentioned (pp. 173, 454, 460-1). Sñel is probably a place-name, since a Sñel cor is mentioned in Bstan-hgyur colophons (Cordier, Index du Bstan-hgyur, i (ii), p. 66, ii (iii), p. 471). In another fragmentary document (M. Tāgh. a, iv, 00149, paper) we have a reference to "eight Sñel Hore". But cf. sñe-lo, p. 461.

21. M. Tāgh. c, i, 003 (wood, c. 10.5 × 2 cm., complete; hole for string at right; ll. 2 of ordinary, cursive, dbu-can script).

"Letter-petition of Ne(o?)hu-zuñ in Hor" (or "of Na-ne(o?)hu-zuñ, the Hor").

In Tibetan literature and history the Hor play, of course, a very important part, and it only remains to mention the Bha-ta-Hor, = "' Good ' Hor", of Vol. I, pp. 296-9.

c. THE PHOD-KAR

A Phod-kar man from Skyañ-ro and a Phod-kar [regiment] have been cited supra (pp. 174, 241; see also p. 466). The latter recurs in:—

22. M. Tāgh. 0291 (wood, c. 14 × 1.5 cm., fragmentary at right; l. 1 of ordinary, cursive, dbu-can script).

☉ | Phod.kar.gyi.sde.Ska.ba.Klu

"Ska-ba Klu, of the Phod-kar regiment."

Ska-ba, named in the Bstan-hgyur (Cordier, ii (iii), p. 524; cf. also Grünwedel, Lamaismus, pp. 49 and 56, and Laufer, Roman einer Tibetischen Königin, pp. 131, 216), was connected with Bog-yul, and was certainly in the [north-east in the region of Lem-cu (Liang-chou, supra, p. 49 and p. 407). Since the Phod-kar "Thousand-district" (Vol. I, p. 278) was attached to the north-eastern division of Tibet and Skyañ-ro belonged to the same region, it is certain that the Phod-kar tribe or people inhabited that quarter; and this fact is of some importance in regard to questions connected with the Tokhari.

The name Thod-kar, given as Tho-gar in the Tibetan dictionaries, occurs sometimes in Tibetan literary works and documents. Thus in the Rgyal-rabs-gsal-bahi-me-loh (India Office copy, fol. 14a, 4) the mother of Sroñ-btsan Sgam-po is said to have been Tshe-spoñ-bza Hbri-ma Thod-kar, where the last two syllables probably denote her race, while Tshe-spoñ is a district named in the Rgyal-pohi-bkahi dshā-yig (see Vol. I, p. 271, n. 3). The Thod-gar mentioned by Cordier (op. cit., i (ii), p. 33) belonged to Spyi-leogs, which also was in the north-east (see p. 45). In the Life (tenth century) of Padmasambhava and generally in the later literature (e.g. in the Dpyug-bsam-ljon-bzan, edited by Śarat Candra Das, see Index), the name Tho-gar, Tho-kar, Thod-dkar denotes the historical Tokhari of the west.

The existence of the Thod-kar of the east does not, however, require to be proved by inference. For we have definite statements of the Greeks as to the existence of a mountain district Thagouros and a place Thogara on the route to the then Chinese metropolis; and Professor Herrmann in his highly instructive work, Die alten Seidenstrassen zwischen China und Syrien, i (Berlin, 1910), has identified the former with the Richthofen range and the latter with the city of Kan-chou (see the map); also a place named Ttagara, which may possibly correspond to the city Thogara, is mentioned in a Saka-Khotani document of about A.D. 800 (Two medieval Documents from Tun-huang, by F. W. Thomas and Sten Konow, p. 148). Seeing that we have early statements by Chinese authors (see Marquart, Erün-jahr, pp. 201-2; Chavannes in T'oung Pao, 1905, pp. 526-7 and nn. 8 and 1; Franke, Zur Kenntnis der Türkvölker und Skythen Zentralasiens (Berlin, Abhandlungen, 1904, pp. 14, 26) to the effect that the original home of the Ta-yüeh-chih was "the country east of Tun-huang and west of the K'lien mountains" (i.e. that part of the Nan-Shan which is south-west of Kan-chou), and that after their flight to the west in c. 165 B.C. some remnants of the Ta-yüeh-chih had remained behind, and had been active in the general region to which the mount Thagouros belongs, it is hard to resist the conclusion that the Phod-kar of our documents, who appertained to the same general area, were, in fact, Thogari or Tokhari; in which case there can no longer be any question as to the original name of the people known as the "Ta-Yüeh-chih". Through what dialect the name Thod-kar was transmitted to the Tibetans in the form Phod-kar we may for the present leave undetermined; but, if it involved a change of a spirant th to a spirant f, that is abundantly exemplified elsewhere (e.g. Greek φεός for θεός). As regards the Chinese name itself, it is unsafe for a non-Sinologist even to approach the subject.

But obviously, if the original was Thod-gar-ci ("si") "people of Thod-gar", wherein the ci (or si) was in Central Asia a common and ancient gentile suffix, the last syllable of the Chinese name need cause no difficulty; the second syllable also we have found in Kan-su in the eighth century A.D. with the value hgar (JRAS., 1927, p. 297).

(d) SLUŃS

The SluŃs mentioned on several occasions (pp. 52 and n. 1, 65, 189, 236, 276-7, and infra, pp. 423, 431, occur usually in connection with, but somehow distinguished from, soldiers (so): we have the expression "soldier SluŃs" (p. 376), but also "SluŃs and soldiers" (p. 52). That they were organized appears from the term "SluŃs-commander" (SluŃs-dpon, p. 189); and the general inference is (see infra, p. 423) that they were companies of military police, camp-followers, or the like. In view of the vagueness of this description the remaining occurrences may now be cited:—

ཨ་ཁ་ལ་ལ་རྒྱལ་སུལྷ་ཁོག་ལཱ་

"Hbog-luŃ, Chinese-SluŃs."

Possibly Hbog-luŃ is a tribal, rather than a personal name, since M.T. b. ii. 0020 mentions a Stag-aŃaŃ (staŃ?) who was a Hbog-luŃ-pha, the Hbog country being, as we have seen (p. 294), in the north-east.

24. M. Tāgh. a. vi. 003 (wood, c. 14 × 1.5-2 cm., complete; hole for string at r.; l. 1 of cursive dbu-can script).

ཨ་ཁ་ལ་ལ་རྒྱལ་སུལྷ་སུ་ལི་གེལིག་ཅའ་འོ་འོ་

"Among the Chinese SluŃs of [ŠaŃs?] one Khotani executed." The Chinese SluŃs were mentioned pp. 52, 276-7.

25. M.I. xv. 0020 (wood, c. 8 × 1.5 cm., broken away at l.; hole for string at r.; l. 1 of cursive dbu-can script, partly erased).

ཨ་ཁ་ལ་ལ་ལ་སུ་ཁོ་མཐའ་ལཱ་གི་རྒྱལ་ལཱ་

"To the SluŃs chief of [Ho]-ma-luŃ."

A "SluŃs Ho-ma Bu-luŃ(Ń)" was mentioned supra, p. 64: II J.

The expressions "Chinese SluŃs" (actually used to indicate a region, p. 52), "northern SluŃs" (p. 431), "SluŃs of Hbu-ŃaŃ" (p. 236), "SluŃs, Upper and Lower" (stod-smad, Tibetan Chronicle, l. 169) suffice to show that the name SluŃs has a topographical implication, while the reference to "nomad Sluñs" (Hbrog-Sluñs, p. 52) is rather tribal or sociological; the other citations refer to service with the military. These contradictions can be resolved, if we suppose that Sluñs properly denotes one of the four customary distinctions of Tibetan territory into flat steppe (thun), upland pasture (hbrog), defile country (ron), and high country (sgan), with distinctive populations; see Sandberg, Tibet and the Tibetans, pp. 13 sqq. If this is so, the mention of "Chinese Sluñs" is in favour of an identification with the ron people and of the above (p. 52) suggested connection of the name with luñ "valley". The characteristics of the people, as distinguished from the general body of the Tibetans, may have fitted them for only quasi-military service.

(c) Hbrog

There can be no doubt that the Hbrog are the modern Hbrog (vulgo Dok)-pas, "nomads," who derive their name from their occupation of the upland pastures. They have been mentioned supra (pp. 4, 52, Vol. I, pp. 261, 301-2), and they recur in the following documents:—

26. M.I. xxvii, 008 and 18 (paper, fol. no. 67 in vol., two pieces, A, c. 14 × 4 cm., and B, c. 14 × 8 cm.; ll. 3 (A) + 4 (B) of square dbu-can script).

(g) VARIOUS OTHER PLACES, ETC.

(a) 'A-rko (unknown; possibly connected with the Arka-Tāgh).

Tibetan Documents concerning Chinese Turkestan. VI: Government and Social Conditions.

- A. General; B. Documents (1, Officials; 2, Classes and persons; 3, Agriculture and crops, registration, taxation, survey; 4, Travel and animals; 5, Objects and presents; 6, Burial and mourning and other ceremonial; 7, Medicine; 8, Law; 9, Writing and letters).

IN regard to civil conditions in Chinese Turkestan the documents are not much more widely informative than in regard to other matters. The states along the northern trade route, Karamah, Kuca, Aksu, Kashgar, although from about A.D. 675 they were dominated (not indeed occupied) by the Tibetans, appear to escape attention; and this is the more regrettable as these states would seem from the culture objects recovered by archaeological research to have enjoyed rather fuller development of material civilization than those south of the desert. Their natural resources were not inferior; they were aligned along a more profitable route of trade and communication; they were less exposed to encroachment in the desert; their archaeological remains are more extensive and better preserved. To these states, and to the mixed people of the T'ien-shan valleys, we have perhaps—beyond the mention of a Yarkand regiment (pp. 256, 469) and of a journey from Šu-lig = Kashgar (p. 260)—not a single reference.

The twin states of "Anterior" and "Posterior" (Chü-shih, i.e. Turfan-Kao-chang and Gu-chen at the extreme east of the T'ien-shan, do indeed seem to be indicated as goal of hostile expeditions (supra, pp. 281 sqq.). As has been made clear by Chavannes in Ancient Khotan, pp. 533-6, and Sir Aurel Stein, Innmost Asia, pp. 579-587, they maintained a precarious independence nearly to the end of the eighth century A.D., the Tibetans failing, despite their occupation of Kan-su,

Of the more southern states, Yarkand, Karghalik, Khotan, Shan-shan, the two former are hardly more than mentioned in the documents (supra, pp. 256-9). But concerning Khotan and Shan-shan, and concerning the Śa-cu region of Chinese Kan-su, we have a certain amount of information. In the case of Khotan the allusions in the documents are supplemented, not only by the particulars recorded in Chinese works, but also by general impressions (largely of religious decadence) conveyed by the ecclesiastical annals and other literary texts which we have translated. For the Śa-cu region, where the conditions were mainly Chinese, but the Tibetans were during the period A.D. 781-850 politically dominant and long afterwards naturally influential as representing Buddhism, we have from Chinese sources general and also local information, the latter carefully edited in some valuable publications by Dr. Lionel Giles.<sup>2</sup> For the Shan-shan kingdom, extending from Lop-nor westwards as far as Cer-cen and (say) Niya, the Chinese supply valuable geographical and historical indications, of which the latest summary is contained in Dr. Giles' third paper noted supra. On the Tibetan side we have the mass of documents extracted from the fort of Mirān and a number of references in the manuscript Chronicle. The area being practically identical with that covered by the Khareṣṭhi documents of much (c. 400-500 years) earlier date, and points of contact being inevitable, it may be worth while to institute a slight comparison of the two groups of records. In number the Tibetan (about 1,500) have the advantage ; but in extent of matter, being mostly scrappy or very fragmentary, they are considerably inferior. Of the chief classes of the Kharoṣṭhī documents, (a) royal rescripts, (b) registers of persons and objects, (c) legal agreements, (d) semi-official and unofficial correspondence, the first is wanting in the Tibetan collection (there being no ruling king), which on its part presents a large number of items (lists, visiting cards, etc.) connected with the soldiery. The most sweeping difference between the two classes of documents consists in the fact that the Kharoṣṭhī records are native in character, while those in Tibetan are the work of foreigners administering an annexed country and not primarily interested in the local population. This tends to enfeeble the light which they shed upon internal conditions, except in so far as those conditions had been introduced by the Tibetans themselves.

As regards Khotan, the new information may be briefly summarized. This state, of which the population was estimated about B.C. 30 at 19,300 and about A.D. 100 at 83,000, must during that interval have effected its recorded absorption of certain minor adjacent principalities.<sup>1</sup> Its eastern frontier was at Phye-ma, or at times somewhat further east, at Niña, where it adjoined Shan-shan, which on its part had extended westward by similar absorption of minor intervening states. In early days it had engaged in local wars with Yarkand, Kashgar, and even Kuca ; but its constant rival in later centuries had been Shan-shan, whose Tu-yu[k]-hun conquerors had in A.D. 445 wrought great havoc in Khotan (Vol. I, p. 121, n. 3). Like all the other principalities of Chinese Turkestan, it had been normally under domination either by the Chinese, or by invaders from the north, Hiung-nu, Juan-Juan, Hephthalites, and Turks. But this domination was not of an oft-meddling character ; and so the lineage of local kings, though some of them received a surname of perhaps Juan-Juan provenance (Begho, pp. 291-2) and one of them was subject to the Turks<sup>1</sup> and one later successor had a Tibetan name (vol. i, pp. 69, 103), is said to have persisted unbroken. A division of the country into five districts (the capital, Mdo-lo and Me-skar, Kam-sed, Ku-sed, and Koñ-sed) has been traced.<sup>2</sup> But it would be difficult to select the "five large cities" (they would perhaps include Kilian, Guma, Phye-ma, and Durya (?)), which according to the Chinese<sup>3</sup> it contained. On the other hand, we have found (I, 101, II, 169 sqq.) in Tibetan times abundant evidence of a division of the area into parishes (tshar)<sup>4</sup> and also numerous names of places either belonging or adjacent to the country. The "five towns" which composed the capital included, no doubt, the "Nectarean City" (Diar-idan), the "Hog's-colour city" (Phug-gi-mtshon), and the "Old City" (Rāñ-ma) named in the Prophecy of Vimalaprabhā. Was Khu-sen "the western city" (Chinese Hsi-ch'eng), "the city where the king resides," a fourth? There are several indications (vol. i, p. 31, n. 3) that the country as a whole bore a name Kusala or Kṣema rendered in Tibetan as Dge-ba, the capital also being Kusālī or Kṣalavālī or Kṣemavālī (Tibetan Dge-ba-can).

The celebrity of Khotan (according to Firdausi's Shāh-nāmah, "the most famous of cities") rested upon its religious sanctity and its innumerable and splendid monasteries and shrines. There was some trace of Mazdaism,<sup>5</sup> possibly a survival from ancient times; and references to unbelieving kings and nobles (vol. i, pp. 20-1, 29) may be directed at them among others. But the country, "the pocket estate of the Buddhas of the Three Times," was overwhelmingly Buddhist, partly Māhāsaṃghika, partly Sarvāstivādin, but in later times mainly Mahāyānist.<sup>1</sup> Apparently (vol. i, pp. 107, 131, 133) there was constant communication with the Buddhists of India, especially of Kashmir. The clerics, male and female, numbered, as estimated at one period, over 11,000 (ibid., pp. 134-5), the large monasteries over 110.<sup>2</sup> The communities owned gardens and pleasures and large estates and water-rights. The rulers and their families, men and women, were attended by pious "confessors" or "chaplains" (kalyāṇa-mitra, ibid., p. 98, n. 1, etc.), under whose influence they were lavish in the foundation and endowment of shrines, monasteries, and nunneries. It was not unusual for persons of royal or noble blood to enter the Saṃgha, winning for the families the title of "Bodhi-sattva lineage" (pp. 18-19).

The manners of the Khotanese were marked by mildness and ceremoniousness, which had, it was held, a humanizing effect upon foreign visitors and conquerors (ibid., p. 31). Hsuan-Tsang credits the people with politeness, justice, and a love of literature and arts, which opinion, confirmed by the T'ang-shu (Chavannes, op. cit., pp. 125-6), need not be, as Grenard suggests (op. cit., p. 67), due to Buddhist partiality. The sanctity of the country attracted sightseers and pilgrims, bringing riches to the shrines and to the peaceful and contented population. The local manufacture of silk, carpets and felt, the jade workings, and the mining for gold and copper in the mountains to the south brought merchants. Like all the other regions of Turkestan, Khotan was celebrated also for its fruit. In the documents there are some references to presents of silk (men-tri, 'ultri) or carpets or fruit, purchase of ribbons, and so on (pp. 179, 379, etc.). The phrase "Khotan provisions" (Lā-bayyag, pp. 192, etc.) recurs with, apparently, some special sense. One of the constant troubles of the country was incursions of freebooters from Tāshkurgān and the mountains to the south, preying upon the merchant caravans (A. Khotan, pp. 31, 521). We have quoted a letter from a Khotan king to the Tibetan authorities, wherein an investigation of robberies is reported, together with a reference to a donation, or fine, of fruit (pp. 185 sqq.).

A feature, still noticeable, of Khotan life was the prominence of feminine interests and the freedom of women. In the religious sphere their participation was represented by numerous nunneries, founded in many cases by queens or princesses, who had feminine spiritual advisers (kalyāṇa-mitra) and themselves not infrequently "took the veil". The Prophecy of Vimalaprabhā (eighth century A.D.) proclaims perhaps the first recorded religious mission to women, inaugurated by a royal lady. A particular custom was seclusion during seven days after the death of a husband.<sup>1</sup>

We need not dwell upon features of Khotan life already known from Chinese sources, the religious car-processions and festivals, the fondness for music, the erection of tall funeral monuments (stūpas) in front of the (widely spaced) dwellings. Some of these are mentioned in our texts, which also speak of religious drama (note, Vol. I, p. 116, n. 2). Nor can we treat of the characteristics of the popular religion, in which a Buddhist mantle was thrown over a great amount of earlier superstition, whether indigenous (cult of "Nāgas" of localities and rivers and of demons, Rākṣasas and Rākṣasīs) or imported from India (worship of relics, vestments, and sacred footprints, use of charms, mantras, and magico-psychological phrases, dhāraṇīs, orally or in script, as amulets and inscriptions on banners and buildings). The pre-Buddhist religion of Chinese Turkestan, akin to Shamanism and the Tibetan Bön, is a subject upon which Grenard (op. cit., pp. 241-3) has some very just observations, but which is not yet ripe for discussion.

The government was of the personal kind, with ministers (no doubt, nobles) holding office at the king's pleasure with occasional tragedies and troubles during minorities (vol. i, pp. 126, 128) and much ecclesiastical influence. As has frequently been pointed out, the Chinese, with their policy of subordinating foreign princes by conferring upon them titles of honour, awarded to some of the Khotan (Kashgar, etc.) kings the rank of amochih, in the Tibetan texts a-ma-ca, representing, as Professor Lévi was the first to remark,<sup>1</sup> the Sanskrit amātya "councillor". From the documents (supra, pp. 191-4) we see that the title was borne also, in course of time, by non-royal persons in Khotan, and the same is evident from the local Chronicle (vol. i, pp. 132, 134). There is no evidence that in Khotan the title carried official functions. In regard to local administration and to law and justice we have no hints. But there was a regular assessment (rtsis) for purpose of revenue, and the supply of water was controlled (ibid., pp. 18, 120).

The Tibetans, when, in the last half of the eighth century A.D., they occupied the country and established the fort of Mazār-Tāgh, left the general administration in the hands of the native king. There were, it is true, numerous military posts established by them in the country, especially on heights in the mountains (supra, p. 217), and even in the royal citadel a guard may have been posted (ibid., p. 184). But the presence of a general (dmag-dpon, p. 195) and of a minister of Inner Affairs (nan-rje-po, pp. 196-8) in the capital may have been merely occasional. The Tibetan headquarters must have been in Śin-śan (Mazār-Tāgh), whither urgent dispatches were sometimes sent from the capital and persons are recalled (pp. 197, 202). The supplies demanded from the Khotanese were based upon an assessment and were received in bulk (p. 200). The Khotanī authorities (Li-mān) in Śin-śan and elsewhere collected their own dues from the tenants in detail

(supra, pp. 209-210). Khotani persons (Lo) were employed by the Tibetans, mostly, it seems, in subordinate capacities. Some served in the army, though we are not aware of any distinct Khotani regiments. Naturally there were business transactions and legal agreements (p. 179). It seems that the natives were not esteemed by their rude conquerors (pp. 245-6); there are several references to condign punishment of individuals, or even groups (pp. 168, 252).

The heads of Tibetan administration in Khotan were the nan-rje-pos ("Interior Lords") resident in Mazâr-Tâgh, of whom in two letters (one quoted p. 185) three are addressed jointly. Presumably one was usually the leader (rtse, p. 207); but in regard to a distribution of functions we have no indication. The office of nan-rje-po, as also the titles tsa-lon and rtse-rje, recurs in the case of Shan-shan, and may be further considered in that connection.

It is probable that the Khotanis, whose proficiency in literature, as well as their linguistic singularity, is recognized by the Chinese,<sup>1</sup> maintained a higher educational average than did the other states of Turkestan. It is therefore interesting to connect the story (Vol. I, p. 102 with note 11) of the origination of the language, as taught to herdsmen children, with what is stated by Sir Aurel Stein<sup>2</sup> concerning unexpected smattering of education among children of nomad herdsmen along the Keriya river. For the rest, the Chinese noted<sup>3</sup> a greater likeness of feature to themselves in the people of Khotan than was the case in other states; and the native Khotan Chronicle remarks (vol. i, p. 102) that "the manners of the laity agree for the most part with China".

The Śa-cu region being a part of Chinese Kan-su and accordingly a subject of much precise information and of special memoirs, of which three have been translated by Dr. Lionel Giles, the particulars ascertainable from Tibetan sources are perhaps of secondary interest. The Tibetans seem to have commenced their attacks on the city about A.D. 676; in A.D. 727 they captured Kva-cu Sin-can (Tsin-ch'ang?). It is very difficult to follow the vicissitudes of the struggle in this area, which must have been constantly overrun by the Tibetans; but from A.D. 781-851<sup>1</sup> the region must have been definitely under Tibetan rule, except that during an interval of eleven years (A.D. 809-819 (?)) the city of Śa-cu was held for the Chinese.<sup>2</sup> The Tibetan information may relate mainly to the period A.D. 781-851, although the particulars connected with Buddhist monasteries would be consistent with a later date.

During this period the region seems to have been under the rule of a Dragon (Hbrug) dynasty, mentioned by the Chinese as Lung<sup>3</sup> and stated to have originated in Karashahr. The two Tibetan letters quoted supra (pp. 17-19), relating to delivery of requisitioned grain in bulk, seem to show that the Hbrug chief, from whose office one of them emanates, retained the internal administration of his country. He was therefore in a position similar to that of the king of Khotan; near the end of the eighth century A.D. a king The-bo of Śa-cu, who might be a Hbrug, received a mission from his Khotan compeer, with a letter which has recently been published.<sup>4</sup> It seems likely that the Tibetans, as their invasions penetrated further into China, took over the administration of the Śa-cu country. For in other letters (pp. 40 sqq.) relating to requisition of grain we find mention of a division into Thousand-districts, a non-Chinese and specially Tibetan<sup>5</sup> organization, but widespread in Central <sup>5</sup> It is not implied that prior to the Tibetan occupation no "Thousand-districts" existed in Shan-shan. Elsewhere (see p. 128) it is suggested that the lunga of the Khoroṣṭhi documents was really a shon-dpo.

Asia. The districts named are Rgod-sar, Stoñ-sar, Spyilcogs, Sñin-tsoms, Tshas-stobs, probably a complete list. Their geographical disposition is not evident: but Tshas-stobs may contain the name of a Tsha tribe (pp. 28-9), connected with a Tsha-fod district in north-eastern Tibet, and Rgod-sar, which prima facie may mean "New Rgod", was probably the most westerly, adjoining the Rgod District of the Shan-shan area. We have given (pp. 22 sqq.) a long dossier of appeals in connection with an appointment to the office of ston-dpon in this area. Is Sñin-tsoms = Ning-hia?

Concerning towns in the Śa-cu region it is difficult to be precise, since from the Tibetan documents it is often not clear whether places there named belong to that region or to the adjacent parts of Tibet or to more easterly parts of Kan-su. Clearly we can leave out of account Lem-cu (Liang-chou) with Bog-yas, Daf-to-kun, which is, no doubt, T'ien-to Kun<sup>1</sup> on the bend of the Yellow River, and the places noted above, p. 48, as in Skyi. Disregarding some minor localities, we are left with practically only Kva-cu, Śa-cu, Mkhar-tsan (= Khar-tsa-cin, supra, pp. 28 sqq.), 'Im-ka-cin, Sil-gu-cin, and Khu-ñe Mon-gaṇa, and residences Hi-ma-to (p. 57), Ma-ko-cañ and 'O-dol-cu (p. 29). Of these Mkhar-tsan was a great mart. Kva-cu and Śa-cu are well known from Chinese sources, and we need only add that the mention of tshi-ñi and tu-tug (pp. 48-9) as titles of their magistrates seems to indicate that the Tibetans did not modify their administration, the titles being Turco-Chinese. Concerning the other places we can add nothing to what is stated supra, pp. 34-5.

The other information supplied by the Tibetan writings concerning this Śa-cu region is partly of singular interest. The legal agreements indeed (pp. 45-6, 58-67) are similar to those adduced from Khotan and Shan-shan. But other records are of a kind not exemplified elsewhere. There are lists pp. 68-73, 83) of personal (both masculine and feminine) names and clan-names or surnames, throwing light upon the system of nomenclature and upon the sociology; lists also (pp. 88-91) of numerous shrines, probably some of the "Thousand Buddhas" of Tun-huang, with accounts of lands whereof they enjoyed the revenues; particulars of donations, of oil, etc. (pp. 109-12), for their service; references to their slaves (lha-hbans "god's servant"); an extensive description (supra, pp. 73 sqq.) of the operations of the monasteries in supplying manuscript copies of Buddhist canonical texts, Tibetan and Chinese, for the use of city libraries, etc., in procuring the labour and materials (paper and ink), in controlling the workers and providing for their rations, in totalling and dispatching the inscribed rolls, and in obtaining payment; also in inspecting and reporting upon deterioration in the library collections. A growing intimacy with Tibet is illustrated by a very remarkable compilation (pp. 92-109) of "messages" of pious felicitation, presented by the cities of Kva-cu and Mkhar-tsan (in conjunction with other authorities) upon the occasion of the foundation of a great monastery in the vicinity of the Koko-nor lake, to commemorate the pact of peace made between China Tibet, and other powers in the year A.D. 730.

The two temples Leñ-ho-si and Pho-kvañ-si, mentioned pp. 70, 83, 111, we are not in a position to locate.<sup>1</sup> In regard to the curt document, pp. 85-7, containing succession-lists of the heads of certain famous Buddhist-seminaries, it may be remarked that it has considerable importance in connection with ecclesiastical history. But the seminaries in question belong evidently in most cases to other provinces, and no one is demonstrably connected with the Sa-cu region.

When we come to the Nob Region, the old Shan-shan kingdom, we might hope, as the administration had been taken over by the Tibetans, to find in the Mirān documents rather more definite indications of the actual manner of working. And it might be instructive to compare the information with what may be elicited from the earlier Kharoṣṭhī documents belonging to the same area. Something indeed may be noted.

The region was divided into Thousand-districts, named respectively Nag-śod, Ḥdzom Upper (Stod) and Lower (Smad), Rgod Upper and Lower, Rgod-Idiñ, and Kha-dro.

Of these Rgod, with Rgod-Idiñ, must, for the reason stated above in connection with Rgod-sar, have been the most easterly. Nag-śod, one of the eighteen Śods reckoned in with Mdo-smad, would be its next neighbour. Kha-dro has a name which may be connected with the Caḍōta (the Niya site) of the Kharoṣṭhī documents; in which case Ḥdzom would inevitably cover some area in the region of Endere or Cer-cen, and it is perhaps no accident that a regiment or province of "Ḥzom-lom-stod" is named in a graffiti in Endere fort.<sup>1</sup> In the Kharoṣṭhī documents Cer-cen (Calma-dana) is under a Cojhibo (chief ruler) distinct from the Cojhibo of Caḍōta.

In each of the Thousand-districts we find mention of "the lord's land" (rje-ñiñ), and sometimes of special arrangements for its cultivation. Originally these lands may have been private property of the earlier kings (rje) or of local chiefs, probably the former, since they were administered by the Tibetans. The phrase occurs thrice (ll. 158, 160, 163) in the Tibetan Chronicle, but without further indication.

The chief towns named in the documents are Little Nob, Great Nob, Ka-dag, Rtse-thon, and Cer-cen. From the character of the references it appears that Ka-dag was in the same general district as Nob; and this is in accord with the traditional location<sup>2</sup> at three days' journey south of the also ruined city of Lop. Rtse-thon, the Ch'i-t'ua of the Chinese, was also in that quarter. Hence we have no difficulty in identifying Little and Great Nob together with Ka-dag as the "three towns" (mkhar-gsum, supra, p. 136), and this triad together

Whether there was a general council for the whole country is not apparent. It seems certain that the region was under the supervision of the council of the Bde region of Mdo-amad, the northern division of the north-east, Mdo, of Tibet. For the system is exhibited in the case of the felicitatory messages cited above, which are from the following in order, (a) the authorities of the realm of Mdo-gams (Kham), (b) the councillors of Bde, (c)-(d) the cities of Mkhar-tsan and Kva-cu, (e) the head of the Phyang-tams Thousand-district, (f) the local people of Hlrom-khoñ. Like Mkhar-tsan and Kva-cu in the Śa-cu region, the towns of Shan-shan may have been immediately under a council (bkañ-hyros, p. 338, etc.) presiding in Tshal-byi over the adjacent province of Tibet.

The officials in charge of the Thousand-districts, the Ston-dpons, may, like those in the Śa-cu region (supra, pp. 22-9), have been appointed directly by the Rje-bla "supreme lord", who would be the Tibetan minister of state, or some deputy. We have a mention also (p. 452) of a Khrī-dpon "Myriad-commandant", who would be a superior of the Ston-dpon, and of a Ston-cuñ (p. 126) "Minor Thousand", who may have been an inferior colleague. Sometimes we meet with the phrase dpon-sna, which may mean either "chief dpon" or "the leading dpons", as an undefined group.

The functions of the chan-khyur, who was plainly a superior official, are not clearly determinable; they may hereafter be determined, since the title may be recognized in literature and is obviously identical with the amkura of the Khareṣṭhī documents.<sup>1</sup>

In the case of the towns the officials usually mentioned are the rtse-rje, jo-co, nan-rje-po, sometimes in conjunction with councillors (blon) or uncle-councillors (zab-lon) or to these separately. In the Kharoṣṭhī documents the instructions are usually addressed to a cojho (sometimes plural), often associated with a sothangha, who may be a police officer and is in charge of granary and toll-stations (dranga), and sometimes with a tongha, who is concerned with post and transport. It is likely that the Tibetan rtse-rje or jo-co has taken over the functions of the cojho, and therefore that the expression jo-co, or rjo-cho, is in fact identical with cojho. Rtse-rje does not occur in the Tibetan dictionaries, although both its constituents are common: jo-co and co-jo are also unattested, jo-bo and gts'o-bo being the usual expressions for a "chief" or "lord". As co clearly means "chief", since it appears in the phrase Ha-zañ-ñan-lon-gyi-geo (supra, p. 9) "doyen of the Ha-za Uncle-councillors", it seems likely that the older cojho, which was probably only a way of writing co-zvo, meant "chief-ruler" and zvo corresponds to Tibetan rje, so that the Tibetan rtse-rje may be a translation of this title. In the documents we have at times only the form jo, which means simply a "chief" or "lord".

The functions of the Councillors (blon) are not clearly distinguished; but we have special titles for some of them, who are designated nan-blon, phyi-blon "councillor for internal, external affairs"<sup>1</sup> and dgra-blon "councillor for enemy affairs"; possibly these would be found only in the chief administrative centre. The ñan-lon "uncle-councillor", i.e. properly an uncle of the king functioning as councillor, is characteristically Tibetan; but, since we cannot suppose that all the ñan-lons recorded in Tibet and those who occur rather plentifully in the Turkestan documents are of that quality, it may be conjectured that the designation became hereditary and so acquired a wide extension; in that case a ñan-lon would be a councillor who was "of the blood", and perhaps such persons had a title to membership of councils wherever they were residing. In Turkestan the ñan-lons may have been local nobles; for the Khotan Chronicle mentions them with reference to pre-Tibetan times, and very likely they may be the Ogus (Tib. 'a-khu "uncle", the 'A-gus of the Ge-sar legend) of the Kharosthi documents from Shan-shan; see Acta Orientalia, xii, pp. 58-9.<sup>1</sup>

Besides these persons of blon, or "Councillor", quality we hear of a number of titles of dpoms or officials. To the ston-dpoms and khri-dpoms we have already referred. The nos-dpom, <sup>1</sup> We must not omit to give reasons for not accepting the view, noticed previously (above, p. 5), according to which tsa does not mean "uncle", but is a Chinese designation shang "chief". This view is carefully stated in one of Dr. Laufer's extraordinarily learned and valuable papers, Bird Divination among the Tibetans (T'oung-pao, 1914), pp. 103 seq., and reinforced in another (ibid., 1916, p. 439). At first sight the argument seems conclusive: Dr. Laufer adduces a number of striking cases where the Tibetan tsa is represented in Chinese writing by shang. But let us first note some scruples: (1) if tsa were an adjective borrowed from Chinese, we should expect it to occur also in some other connections, whereas it appears only as a separate title or in the combination tsa-lon "tsa councillor"; (2) if tsa-lon means "chief councillor", then the common phrase tsa-lon-chen-po "great chief councillor" is rather odd; (3) is the Lha-sa edicts several ministers are called blon (or blon-po)-chen-po, and in some cases tsa follows, and this is an indication that the tsa here attaches not to that phrase, but to the personal name which it precedes. All this is smoothed away if we accept Waddell's original explanation (JRAS., 1910, p. 1274) of tsa-lon as "uncle minister", meaning minister of the blood royal. The employment of shang in Chinese as a transliteration of tsa seems to have little bearing on the matter.

But really the most conclusive proof is supplied by some of Dr. Laufer's own examples. Three of these (pp. 74-8) are in the form non-blon-Mehims-tsa "Interior Councillor Mehims-tsa", phyi-blon-Hbro-tsa "Exterior Councillor Hbro-tsa". Now Mehims and Hbro are both tribal names, and the form of the expressions is exactly parallel to Mehims-ben, Hbro-ben, Tse-spo-ben "Mehims wife", "Hbro wife", "Tse-spo wife", meaning [royal] wives from those tribes. Moreover, we have other similar appellations, e.g. Ma-ben "maternal uncle" (Rgyal-rabs, fol. 326, 5. 336, 1-2, 3, 5 of the India Office copy) and Sa-nam-tsa-tsa-Rgya-tsa "Sa-nam uncle and China grandson", meaning that the person, whose name was Lha-nam, was in avuncular relation to the Tibetan royal house and had a Chinese mother; cf. also the Hjan-tsa-Lha-tsa who was a son of king Khri-lde-gtsang-brtan and had a Hjan mother (p. 107). We may also refer to the Don, "nephew," Ba-tsa noted above (pp. 5-6). Preceding a personal name, tsa (also tsa-po, tsa-chen-po) is too common (pp. 5, 9, 19, 94, 245, 436) to be local. Note also tsa-ben-blon, p. 222: 61, 1.

"warden of a region," would be, no doubt, a person similar to the Indian anta-pāla, in charge of the approaches to the city from outside and of border transactions. The khriṃs-dpon "law-officer" is a judge—there was one for Tshal-byi—and possibly he was identical with the bkaḥ-tuḥ and bkaḥ-blon mentioned pp. 23.16, 47.10, 149-150, etc.

What was the office of ngo-rhon ("additional, or deputy, head" (?)), to which an appointment is made (supra, p. 154), does not appear. The yul-mthoḥ "country overseer" reports, p. 152: 46, on the year's levy; probably, like the yul-grigs of p. 192: 25, he was a local surveyor. The rgyal-grigs, whose designation translates the Sanskrit rāja-cakṣus, was perhaps a general representative of the king's special interests. We find also (p. 341) a khral-dpon "tax-master".

In Little Nob there was a person entitled rtse-bla-dan-rtse-sman "head-lama (?) and head-physician", to whom application is made p. 152: 45 (cf. pp. 394-9) for a medical prescription. Elsewhere we find a yul-sman, "district" or "village physician", who appears in some ceremonial, not strictly medical, connection. Since here we have an appeal to yul-tha-yul-bdag-dan-sman "district god, district lord and physician", it seems clear that the persons in question combined religious with medical functions. It seems that Dr. Francke was right (JRAS., 1914, pp. 55-6) in suggesting that the documents exhibit traces of the Bon-po religion: see supra, p. 312, and compare the observation of Grenard cited infra, pp. 329-330.

In connection with legal transactions the old Kharoṣṭhī documents supply particulars of many cases. They may be classified as relating to either offences, or disputes, or agreements, whereof the last-named may in many instances represent the outcome of proceedings under the second. The cases of the first two kinds were in all instances decided either by the local officials, often upon reference through the king himself, or at "the king's gate"; and even matters of the third kind had often been brought to the cognizance of the officials. There seem to be some clear instances of reference to a court, ecclesiastical or otherwise. From the Tibetan documents we have cited a few cases which happen to include all the three kinds; and here also there seems to be, though not in every instance, official cognizance. In the fact that in two instances (supra, pp. 134, 151) there are indications pointing to a trial in a grea-tus, which is probably an assemblage of an ecclesiastical character (a Buddhist pariṣad), we may perhaps find evidence of an extension of clerical influence; it will hardly have been due to the Tibetans, whose Buddhism was still in its infancy. There must have been some persons who acted practically as professional lawyers, since the rtsig Lha-rtsa-skyes, like the divira Tamaspa of the Kharoṣṭhī documents, functions in a number of independent instances.

In cases not involving compatriots the Tibetans may very likely have administered not their own code, compiled for the great king Sroṅ-btsan Sgam-po, but the local law or usage so often mentioned in the Kharoṣṭhī. This inference is suggested by citation of the "old town law" (shon-gyi-mkhar-khrims-rūh, supra, pp. 139-140) and ancient custom (rin-lugs, p. 16, etc.). In the case of debts (bu-lon) and loans (or renewals of loan) it is usually laid down that in the event of default the person's goods may be summarily seized by any one in rightful possession of the deed (in one case, of the last of three deeds) without any complaint on the part of the defaulter; often the person bound has a guarantor (kha-jdzin or khas-len), who is involved in the obligation. The document terminates with the attestations (seals, signatures, or thumb-marks) of the witnesses (dpai-po), often including councillors or other officials, and of the persons bound. A debtor is skyin-pa (also "a substitute") and the debt is said to attach (chags) to him. A "pledge" is glah (p. 45).

It may here be noted that banishment or exile has always been a feature of Chinese Turkestan. Baniished men or refugees (palāyanaka) are constantly mentioned in the Kharoṣṭhī documents, and the Tibetan equivalent, spyugs, has been exemplified supra, p. 51. Modern Turkestan speech has preserved the Sanskrit term in its palā-māq "to exile"; and Niya and Cer-cen have been used in modern times as convict settlements.<sup>1</sup> The Chinese sent convicted persons to serve in Turkestan<sup>2</sup>; and we have had (p. 120) an instance of a Tibetan similarly treated.

Concerning the occupations and lives of the people not much information is to be expected from the documents. Even in modern times trades are not numerous in Chinese Turkestan, and the Shan-shan kingdom was perhaps the state most undeveloped economically. Some copper- and gold-mining and jade-working, leather-work, felt and ropes, carpentry, building and pottery, these perhaps comprise all that is ever mentioned as industry practised in the Nob region, except of course what was connected with the tillage of the land. The documents cannot be said to refer to any of the industries or to persons following them, except in the case of cup-making (supra, p. 120), copper, and agriculture.

Breeding and letting of animals (camels, horses, asses) for purpose of transport must have provided part-time or whole-time occupation for a fair number of persons. The troubles of such a romāh-roqs or ritā-roqs (= arivāqs in the Kharoṣṭhī documents and figured in a drawing, Innermost Asia, pl. vii) are recounted in a letter quoted supra, p. 258. Among minor occupations we find mention of couriers or runners (bañ-chen or rin-lu[ḡ]s), porters (lāñ-roqs), bag-men (ḡḡy-ḡu-ḡa), and wood-gatherers (šin-thān). The sa-mkhan (pp. 127, 371) may be a guide, as may also sa-stān, if intended for sa-stān; but see p. 343. There were paid workmen or servants (las-mḡs); also slaves (ḡu-rib?), and "government-servants" (māñ-ḡḡi-ḡbān, apparently persons under sentence) and "god's-servants" (lāñ-ḡbān, slaves belonging to temples?), who might be employed (karmārita, karma kārita "made to labour", of the Kharoṣṭhī documents and the Sanskrit Artha-śāstra) on hire (g-gar-por) or lent out to individuals.

The use of money is even in modern times restricted in Chinese Turkistan, where domestic (farm) industries and barter at fairs are prevalent. In the documents wages (rations, tshal-ma and gla) were usually reckoned in grain; where money payment was requisite, it was in the form of Chinese coins (don-tse) and copper sun ("ounces"). It will be realized that a sparse employment of coin entails a resort to orders or drafts convertible locally by travellers into supplies; and such seem, in fact, to be denoted by the expression brgyag-gbyan "provision-ticket". We also have the expressions "attested signature of the three times" (dux-sum-gyi-dpañ-rgya, supra, pp. 141-2), which seems to be a bill payable at sight, and bkah-rims-phyi "circular order flour" (p. 51), which must be an order to levy flour at successive points along a route.

As has been previously stated, a part of the land in each district was distinguished as "the lord's land". Special arrangements (zin-hgod) seem to have been made for its cultivation, upon communal lines and with limited freedom on the part of the tillers.<sup>1</sup> The remaining land would be in the hands of private owners (zin-pon) or held by official titles. The actual cultivator was called zin-pa (Sk. karṣaka). The ploughing (rmo-bo) seems to have usually been done with the aid of teams (dor) supplied from or through the officials, being probably yaks of the kind still reared in places on the northern slopes of the mountain barrier<sup>2</sup>; the Kharoṣṭhī documents, however, do not seem to refer to yaks, and the teams of later times may indeed have been of oxen. One who takes care of fields is chun-pa. The crop (rkya) was usually of wheat (gro), barley (nas), or millet (khre); whether the distinction of "white" (dkar) and "black" (gnag) was between different kinds of wheat or otherwise, does not appear—the white seems not to be the śuka-masa of the Kharoṣṭhī documents. The grain was stsan, and those who were engaged in conveying it from place to place were called stsan-hdren; flour is phye.

Taxation will not have been confined to agricultural produce. We hear (p. 360) of a horse levied as a tax and of a carpet demanded upon a particular occasion. It is probable that the yield of animal breeding (including wool used for making felt and ropes), and also the occupations of craftsmen, were taxed. Of the system followed in regard to irrigation and supply of water, which must always have been important and is mentioned, p. 140, Vol. I, p. 115, and in regard to gold or copper mining and jade-working, we have no inkling.

It is obvious that for the purposes of assessment and revenue, and also in connection with levies, assignments, and orders upon the store-houses, a system of accounts must have been necessary. Accordingly we have many references to the rtsis "census" or "assessment" or "accounts", both in regard to countries or districts as a whole, and in regard to estates (as well as in connection with the army, on which matter see pp. 418, 420); thus the Tibetan Chronicle records (ll. 158, 160, 163) a rtsis in connection with the demarking of certain "lord's lands" and in many other connections; the results of a rtsis are reported (p. 200) from Khotan to the authorities in Śin-sau; and the Gośṅga Prophecy speaks (I, p. 29) of the census-total of the country of Khotan. For these purposes use was made of wooden tablets such as those which have survived; we have khram accounts (khram-tshan) of revenues of monasteries in Śa-cu (pp. 88-91, 368). The Tibetan

Chronicle has many references to these khram's, sometimes called red (dmay) khram's, and their revision, and in one instance we learn (l. 246) of a transfer of records from red khrams to yellow paper. For illustrations and descriptions of such khrams see Sir A. Stein's Serindia, pls. clxxi-ii. Not seldom they are notched or lined for numerical purposes, and often they have been cut away to serve as a tally.

For the purpose of an assessment a survey would be an occasional or permanent necessity. The yul-mtho or yul-zigs would be the district surveyor or overseer; but we have also a fragment of a long document recording a survey of an obviously preliminary character. The Tibetan Chronicle uses the phrase phyin-ril "felt circumference", in connection with the rtais of certain "lord's lands"; and it seems likely that a boundary palisade is meant, such as we are told<sup>1</sup> that the Tibetans made of trees on the Chinese frontier at Liang-chou, posting guards along it.

The measures used in connection with grain are khal, "load" (= Sanskrit bhāra or vāha or khārī) = 20 bre. Sometimes there is mention of a rkan, "truss," skyal, "sack." For oil and flesh we have the phul, literally "handful", = 4 kyor; for wool the phor or pho-re; for butter (mar), etc., the stan "ounce" = 10 zo. Measured lengths are in fathoms (hdom). A roll of silk or paper is yug, and a "bundle" of wood seems to be ris. A pa-tsa or pha-tsha is a packet.

Coming to matters of a more individualist character and extending to the whole country of Chinese Turkestan, we find much evidence of journeyings covering considerable stretches. This has always been, as it still is,<sup>2</sup> a feature of Central Asia. The extent of the country of Chinese Turkestan itself, about 1,000 miles from East to West by about 500 from North to South, and the uninhabited spaces separating the settled oases, might have been sufficient to engender this trait. But the almost incredibly long trade routes, from China to the Greek and Roman east, whereof the traverse of the whole country was only a stage; the dependence of the country upon distant China, interrupted only by domination of far-flung nomad powers issuing from Mongolia; the communications of China with its dependencies in and beyond the Pamirs; the passage in old days of Buddhist pilgrims from China to Bactria and India, then of Manichæans and Christians to Persia, later of Musalmans to Mecca, of Buddhists from Mongolia to Lhasa, must have accustomed the population at the several periods to contemplate a wide geographical horizon. This would certainly have undergone no contraction in Tibetan times. The mere presence in Turkestan of authorities from Lha-sa and of soldiers from all parts of the great country of Tibet, at a time when it was in military contact with the Chinese from Ssü-ch'uan to Kan-su, with the Turks from the Tian-shan to the Pamir countries and even with the Arabs in Transoxiana, must have dwarfed the scale of mere internal communications in Turkestan itself. We have (JRAS., 1927, pp. 546-58) letters of introduction given by Tibetan authorities in Kan-su to a Buddhist pilgrim from the famous shrine of Wu-t'ai-shan in Shan-si, safeguarding him as far as Sa-cu, whence he was to make the grand pilgrimage to India. A mission from a Khotan king inspects all the towns to the east as far as Kan-su and Shen-si in China and includes in its survey the places in the Tian-shan region, and perhaps further west. A party of spies has been absent from Khotan nearly a year and has covered great distances, into Tibet (supra, p. 205); and other parties send missives to be passed on to the Nob region and then to Khotan (pp. 203-4). Certain emissaries are to follow a company of exiles from Nob as far as Kva-cu city (p. 51). A messenger arrives in the Nag (Nob) region with goods from remote Skyah-ro in North-Eastern Tibet (p. 241). These particulars may be sufficient to account for the rather frequent references in the documents to journeys (rad) and to matters (skyel, "convoy" or "transport", ri-skyel, "mountain convoy",

In the Kharoṣṭhī records the most frequently mentioned transport animal is the camel; but the horse and ox appear not rarely, and both are indigenous in the country. The Tibetan documents refer seldom to camels, which in Tibet itself are not liked. There is mention of riding-horses (uchibs, sta) not only in military connections, but also for private conveyance. But the place of pride in ordinary journeys belongs to the ass, the usual pack (and riding) animal. The sheep also serves (p. 30, 377) for conveyance, perhaps especially of corn; this expedient, the value of which has been estimated in modern times,<sup>1</sup> may have been introduced from Tibet. To wheeled transport or to sedan-chairs or palankeens there is no reference.

The only other animal mentioned is the dog, which, as in the Chinese references to the dogs of Turfan and Kuca, appears as an object of fancy (in Stein, Innermost Asia, p. 1087) or employed for hunting (p. 378).

Some slight interest attaches to the objects, other than provisions, mentioned in law-cases or in letters, as required or received—alk, carpets, wool, cotton, ribbons, ropes, paper; oil; dress, overcoats, winter things; fire-stones, cups, baskets, copper vessels, iron; rings, turquoise, jade, seed-pearls, coral; medicines. There are some recipes and applications for medicines, and also inquiries addressed to the doctor, involving, it seems, divination by means of [sheep's] shoulder-blades (cf. Rubruquis' Journey, tr. Rockhill, pp. 187-8).

Burial was practised in Chinese Turkestan, as is proved by the archaeological explorations of graves.<sup>2</sup> In Khotan the normal practice was cremation; but the kings were buried far out in the desert, temples being built and services held in their honour. Grenard has propounded the view that the present shrines of Musalman saints in Khotan are really derived from cult of the royal tombs; and he even holds (op. cit., ii, pp. 240-3) that the Musalman sacred places in the country generally derive their sanctity from Buddhist and pre-Buddhist worship. In the documents we have reference to burial, both of soldiers and of civilians, and to a ceremony, apparently of mourning, wherein certain persons during certain days were to drink cups of liquid (! beer, chan, pp. 389 sqq.) to a prescribed extent. These ceremonies may, however, have been not Central-Asian, but Tibetan.

The Buddhist religion is a subject too extensive to consider here. And so we need only refer to the decadence lamented in the translated texts. Particular matters are the mention of appropriation of the property (rkyen) of religious establishments, including tombs (p. 148, Vol. I, p. 201), in secular exigencies and of monks taking to mundane and undignified occupations. In the documents, both Kharoṣṭhī and Tibetan, the individual ban-de appears sometimes in connection with business transactions, such as loan, rent, or sale.

Of the art of writing the Tibetans, as neighbours of the Chinese and still more proximately of the Tu-yu[k]-hun, who employed the Chinese script, must have been aware from old times. Their contact with the Turkestan states, begun in the seventh century A.D., must have acquainted them from old times. Their contact with the Shan-shan kingdom, early in the seventh century A.D., must have acquainted them with developed forms of the Indian Brāhmī. It was therefore an outcome of amour-propre and political self-assertion when the great king Sroṅ-btsan Sgam-po, about A.D. 632, dispatched a mission to Kashmir (supra, pp. 11 sqq.) with the object of designing a specially Tibetan alphabet. This alphabet, which differs widely from the Turkestan Brāhmī, developed quickly into "cursive" forms, normal in most of the documents, and in Kan-su was occasionally employed for writing Chinese and other languages. From the circumstance that non-cursive forms are rather more common in the documents from Mazār-Tāgh than in the (somewhat earlier) collection from Mirān it may be inferred that writing was less practised in Tibet, whence the writers were more recently come, than in the Shan-shan area, where Tibetan rule was of older establishment upon a more cultivated local administrative basis. But in Tibet itself writing was in the eighth century very extensively practised for secretariat purposes and in elaborate systems of military (Vol. I, p. 285) and other registration, for which, as well as for other short records, docketts, tallies, etc., for letters and visiting cards, the wooden tablets were profusely employed. The writing often continued into a second, or third, tablet, attached by a tie through the string-holes; sometimes a paper missive was inserted between the split halves of a stick or pod. The paper, coarse, unglazed, and far inferior to the thin, smooth, yellow material devised by the Chinese, was designated kog, usually in the re-duplicated form kog-kog. The scraping of the tablets for a second or third use and the inditing of letters on the verso of old ones or of Chinese literary MSS. show that economy was necessary in regard to both materials; paper, indeed, is sometimes selected by correspondents as an acceptable present. The ink (snag) was ordinarily black, as indicated by its name; but red was sometimes used for headings, and there was affectation of other sorts, gold, silver, and turquoise, for distinction or for ornamental and honorific use (pp. 11-12, 408). In the Buddhist monasteries there was, as we have seen, a regular business of copying MS., the hands being fairly calligraphic, though not attaining the beauty of some of the later Tibetan styles in Kan-su. The varieties of hand and of use in the documents and the segraffiti in the Enderé fort prove that a knowledge of writing was widespread.

The terminology applied to postal communications has already been frequently exemplified, so that here we may be content to assemble the expressions:—

hadrul-ba "letter" or "postman".

mjal (in sense = Hindi mil) "arrive", "be received".

The composition of the letters is in more or less stereotyped form. They begin with an address to the presence or feet (ta (g-yu)-sha = pāda-mūla of the Kharoṣṭhi documents) of the correspondent, a date in terms of the Twelve-Year Cycle being sometimes prefixed; then comes the name of the person from whom the communication, usually designated "petition" (gsol-ba) or "letter-petition" (mchid-gsol-ba), comes. Next follow inquiries concerning health (śān-śāns) or expressions of pleasure or regret or hope according to news of the addressee's good or bad health, and, casu obtinente, of thanks for inquiries or for the favour of a letter, often termed a "command" (bkañ, pp. 17, 21, 65 (2), etc.). Then, often introduced by the expression stan-cad "next" or "for the rest", follows the business part of the letter, which frequently terminates with a reiteration of prayer for the correspondent's health or for an early meeting. Sometimes there is a postscript from the writer's wife or a member of his family, addressed either to the same person or to a relative.

The tone is highly courteous. Important persons address each other as "brother" (mched = priya-bhrātu of the Kharoṣṭhi documents) or are addressed as "equal to a theophany" or "to a god" (hphrul-dan-mtshuns, tha-dan-mtshuns = pratyakṣa-devatā of the Kharoṣṭhi) or stana-dbyal "of distinguished station". To write is "a favour" (ci-gnañ "what a (or will you) favour!"). Thanks are expressed by gñan-rag-ñishul. Trouble to be taken is thugs-khral "mind-tax"; and "will you be so good as to attend to?" is thugs-pags-cir-mdzad (or grags). Often a present is sent, with a request for the favour of its acceptance (bies-par-ci-gnañ "do you consent to accept?"); or there may be apology for the failure or the inadequacy of a gift. A rather peremptory request from a friend or superior will be in the form "not to do . . . is not good (smān) or not proper (ruḥ)". An underling, servant, or agent refers to himself as "my humble self" (bdag-nān-po), makes excuses for failure, and hopes to escape punishment or reprimand. Often a friendly letter is sent merely to convey inquiries as to health, or an official one to "mark time"; and so the phrase ñān-sñūns seems to be used of such mere intimations of interest or good will. Despite the formalities the tone is often practical and of human interest, with signs of familiarity or even traces of jocosity between friends.

Official or semi-official occasions for letters would include such matters as replies to inquiry as to the gossip, bkaḥ-mchid, in such and such a place, questions concerning appointments or favours, requests for interviews and appeals against punishment. We have one, apparently anonymous, letter of denunciation (pp. 196-8).

The many points of resemblance between these Tibetan letters and the earlier Kharoṣṭhī ones (the Tibetan ones are, however, not so extravagant in personal eulogy) suffice to prove that they are following the, ultimately, Indian model of the latter.<sup>1</sup> In the Śaka-Khotanī language we possess a moderate number of similar documents, which may eventually, when read and understood, present material for comparison.

The function of the post-runner (traceable, perhaps, behind the Latin ocupidius, Greek ἀκούσιος, and the story of the Marathon messenger Pheidippides) was of high antiquity and importance in the east: it has curiously eluded the writers of romance, though Bāna does, in his Harṣa-carita (c. 5), depict the dirghādhyaya Kurungaka. For Central Asia we have the descriptions by Odoric de Pordenone and others cited in Cathay and the Way Thither, new ed., ii, pp. 232-3 and note; and in regard to Tibet Father Hue has a striking passage (Paris, 1859, vol. ii, pp. 443-4) concerning the short-lived couriers who had to " travel during the night among these mountains, where frightful precipices are encountered at almost every step ". The documents use several designations, rkan-mgyog " swift-foot ", ban-chen " great-speed (or leg) ", rin-lu(g)s " distance-habit (or body) ", rihs-pa " fast ", hadrul(hgrul)-ba " traveller ", none of them rendering the Kharoṣṭhī lekha-haraga, Sanskrit lekha-hāraka.<sup>1</sup>

To books and literature the documents from Mirān and Mazār-Tāgh do not allude (the Kharoṣṭhī has references to poth's). There are a few fragments of exercises in the alphabet, in arithmetic and in forms of address, and one or two of Buddhist quotations or expressions. But from the hidden library of Tun-huang we have, beside masses of Buddhist literary texts, some pieces of quasi-secular writing, medical, narrative, etc., including the previously (Indian Studies in Honour of C. R. Lanman, pp. 193-212) reported epitome version of the Rāmāyana.

The extent of the business of copying religious works may be judged from the hundreds of surviving duplicates of certain short texts and from the mention in one of the documents cited above (p. 77) of eighty scribes (yi-ge-pa) and twenty revisors (tu-che(u)). These might be ecclesiastics. But the numerous legal and other documents, and a record of payment for a new copy of a letter damaged (?) in transit (pp. 408-9), imply, no doubt, professional scribes, distinct from the official persons and secretariats (ishan-loñ " councillor for accounts ", in Śa-cu, pp. 17, 341). We have mention also of donations for the expense of copying, and of private persons themselves writing out texts as a work of merit (JRAS., 1927, pp. 282-3).

with the square forms usual in print, but commonly in the rounded style which we have termed "cursive dbu-can", shows numerous individualities of hand and penmanship (see Ancient Khotan, pl. cxviii, Serindia, pls. clxx-ii, Innermost Asia, pls. cxxx-4). Archaic forms of w, z, h, and (a) are not infrequent; and in regard to n | d, tu | du, p | ph there is sometimes room for doubt. The document or fol. opens with the usual flourish, followed by | . |, || || or || - ||, which also conclude the whole or the sentence; clause punctuation, capricious, is by |; for the word (or syllable)-separating dot the colon (:) is sometimes substituted; more rarely a short śad (|) is used. Omission of the dot is frequent in certain locutions, e.g. lasbtsogs, or with particles, e.g. legs pa, bzianste; the reverse in de-hi, etc. Compendious writing, common in dān (dān), hāre (bzer), gālo (gāol), occurs also in cases such as ldag[g]-is, kho[h]-na, du[s]-su.

Possibly the sense is "in place of (stañ) Rji-rma"; but stañ is elsewhere (p. 370.D) a complimentary affix. "Exterior-Councillor" means, no doubt, "Councillor for affairs abroad". The phrase phyi-blon-da-bskos recurs in M.I. iv, 42b.

Since the phyi-blon occurs in the Lha-sa inscriptions (JRAS., 1911, p. 434.14), while the dgra-blon does not, it is possible that the two designations are equivalent.

In the Lha-sa inscriptions (ibid., p. 435) is mentioned a rgyal-zigs-chen-po-žal-ce-don-la "Great King's Eye for the purpose of justice", which renders probable the view expressed supra (p. 322) that the rgyal-grigs, meant ones, pp. 141-2, 406, and recurring p. 300 and in M.I. xiv, 58a, discharged legal functions. The khriṃ-bon (khriṃs-dpon) mentioned above, p. 124, would be a local judge of lower rank. It would seem that the term bloḡ-tuḡ "command" (pp. 22.6, 122.3, etc.) was also used personally (pp. 151, 415) in the sense of "judge".

Be-ce and Dol-po are both, no doubt, local names : on the former see Vol. I, p. 274, n. 5, on the latter the dictionaries ; on the Hbrog, nomads, pp. 297-9. It may be suspected that the persons mentioned are not mere local Tibetans of the Mirān region, but belonged to the Central Government. Councillor Khri-dog-rje is mentioned also in M.I. ii, 37b. The "admonition" is to the successive couriers.

In l. A 3 the two imperatives separated by la (gžen-thob-la-rdzons-šig) exhibit the regular idiom with la. On gžen(n)-thob see Š. C. Das' dictionary s.v. gžen ; on las-hbyuñ-bas, see supra, pp. 29, 58.

"From the Assemblage of Bde-gams . . ."

In connection with Bde-gams a ḥdun-sa(tsa) "general assemblage", has been mentioned above, pp. 57-8. The general term for a council consultation, bkah-hyros, occurs ibid., and also pp. 53, 56, and 133. Bde-gams was, no doubt, in Mdo; whereas the ḥdun-tsa's in Gtso-mo-gliṅ (p. 141) and Byeḥu-liṅ (p. 163) and Śel-thān (p. 190) were perhaps all local conferences in Turkestan. As regards the spelling, it is possible that, whereas hdun-tsa means the place of assembly, hdun-tsa = hdun-ma, the assembly itself. Sometimes (e.g., M.T. a. ii, 0076) the leading *dpon*s are grouped together in such phrases as so-sohi-ston-sdehi-dpon-sna "the leading officials of the several Thousand-districts".

"To Interior Councillor Mdo-brtsan and Councillor Mdo-bzan and Councillor Khri-hjam: letter-petition of Zan-zigs.

"[Incerted] Despatched from Thar-kar in Rog-tom with signature attached: addressed to the Chief-in-command (rtse-rje) of Śa-cu and the leading officials (dpön-sna) of the two Chinese districts (side). Here on the present date (no-phrul) Bde Śaṅ-sun submits [it]."

Copy of a letter sent to Śa-cu from Thar-kar in Rog-tom, both unknown; Thar-kar is perhaps not a proper name, and Rog-tom may mean the "Rog Thousand[-district]". The two [Stoñ]-dpöns of the two Chinese [Stoñ]-side's may belong to two of the districts noted supra (p. 316). In the last sentence Bde Śaṅ-sun, if it is really a proper name, means Śaṅ-sun of Bde (a province of Mdo-smad), on which see supra (p. 319). The person Klu-gon has a name resembling that of the Tibetan minister Klu-khoñ, celebrated in a Lha-sa Edict edited and translated by Col. Waddell (JRAS., 1910, pp. 1255 sqq.): the surname Raṅ-ke seems to be unknown; but cf. Śul-ke and Hel-ke. The endorsement may have been added on the original in the course of a transmission through the Bde centre, which would be a geographically interesting circumstance. It will be noted that here the rje-blas (with s in the nominative as elsewhere, e.g. pp. 22-4, 302) is perhaps, but not necessarily, the nañ-rje-po of Śa-cu.

The letter is an instance of the actually avowed (p. 412) principle of sending a polite letter (sñan-sñuns) to "mark time", when there is nothing definite to report.

rtse-rje, "chief in command" (śōu-nu, "minor chief").

zāñ-lon (chen-po), "Uncle(noble)-Councillor."

blon, "Councillor"; nan-rje[-pa] or nan-gi-blon-po (p. 9.35), "Interior-Councillor"; phyi-blon or dgra-blon, "Exterior, or War-Councillor."
dpon, "official"; ston-dpon (Sk. sahasra-patī), also ston-sde, "Thousand-[district]-commander"; pos-dpon, "regional commander"; khriṃs-dpon, "judge," or bkah-luā; khral-dpon (p. 161 : 58), "tax-master"; tshar-dpon, "parish-head"; can-khyir, chan-khyur, "city mayor," ordinarily a ston-dpon.

To these we may add stom-gyañ (pp. 128, 160), probably only the old local name (tongā of the Kharoṣṭhī) of the ston-dpon; jo-co (rjo-cha, etc., pp. 17, 133, 152, 192, 240, 260, 297), a similar equivalent of rtse-rje; yul-mthoñ (pp. 152, and 469 : 104) or yul-gzigs (p. 192, and M.T.A.iii, 0070) the local surveyor or overseer.

The bañ, kāñ-po, bañ-chen-po is, as we have seen (supra, p. 321, n.), the "Uncle" or noble, and the mañ-po-rje (pp. 7, 271) the feudal prince or tribal head.

The state officials of Tibet, as cited in the Lha-sa inscriptions (JRAS., 1911, pp. 433-5) include the blon-po-chen-po, nan-blon, phyi-blon, blon-phyi-pa, māan-[d]pon, bkah-phrin-blon-chen-kablon ("correspondence councillor"), rtsis-pa-chen-po ("census, or finance, minister") and the rgyal-[g]zigs-chen-po-zal-ce-don-la ("minister of justice, or law"). To the rtsis-pa might correspond the local tshañ-loñ (p. 17) of the Śa-cu stato.

The general term for "government" is māan, to which belong the above māan-blon and the expression māan-gyi-khans, "government subject or convict." We have reference to the Bod-kyi-māan, "Tibetan authorities" (M. Tāgh. b. ii, 0066), and to the Li-māan "Khotan authorities". Chab-srid is the authority of an official, but especially of the king, who is said (supra, p. 6) to proceed to the Ha-za country "to take over the government": metonymously the phrase may mean a "state", even geographically. Mānāh-ris, "authority-line" (boundary; cf. yul-ris, "local boundary," mkhar-ris, "city boundary"), naturally means "frontier" between states, provinces, etc. (cf. pp. 121.2, 219, 221); but this also comes to mean (Vol. I, p. 125, n. 5) "state" or "province", as in Mānāh-ris Hkhor-gsum (vidgo, Nari Khorsum), and even the property or possession of a person or community.

Previously, whenever the landlords and War-councillor have required, we made no trouble about being set to work. Also we are competent . . ."

The defectiveness of the text occasions a partly conjectural rendering.

The ñin-pon (pp. 143.8, 161:58; cf. ñin-bdag, p. 352) is the landlord, in contrast to the ñin-pa, or cultivator, who is here a skyahi-myo, "harvester." On ñam[s]-drod, "trouble," see p. 32; on tshal-ma (pp. 51, 80, etc.) and bakos see supra, pp. 4, 125:7, 160.

. . . rañ-khri is not clear. For mtshal read ma-htshal? The interposition of the "Foreign (War)-councillor" is, no doubt, due to the fact that to the Tibetans Shan-shan was conquered country and the population "enemy" or foreign.

Tāgh. a. iv, 00151 . . . jo-bo-Klu-bran-dan-ce-ze-Gtsug-ldem.

Adding to the classes here instanced some others previously exemplified, we may arrange as follows:—

(a) General: hbañs (also dmañs, p. 32; mañs, p. 95 (A. 3), "subject" (in a state); mān-gyi-hbañs, "government subject" or convict (pp. 120, 247, 305); lha-gi-hbañs or lha-hbañs (pp. 70, 111; I. p. 56), "god's servant" or temple slave; sku-bla (pp. 10, 108; also in M.I. xliii, 0014; xliv, 4; M.T. c. iv, 0030), "magnate"; yul-tsan, "local magnate"; khab-so, "mansion-dweller"; las-myi (M.I. vii, 64; xiv, 4; M.T. 0605; p. 391/86), "workman"; bran (pp. 50, 143), "servant"; na-bran, "house servant" (p. 124, pha-bran, p. 122); gu-riñ, "slave"; spyugs (p. 51), "banished man"; ce-ze, "lady"; gñar, "steward" (p. 272); byan-po, "cook" (usually military); yug-pa-mo, "widow"; yul-myi (pp. 140, 344), "local people."

(b) Connected with agriculture: zin-dpon, "landlord"; zin-pa (p. 139), "cultivator"; gzi-mkhan (p. 29), "peasant" (?); chun-pa (pp. 140, 161), "field-watchman"; atsañ-hdren,

"grain conveyor" (quasi "carter"); śiñ-thun (p. 149), "stick-gatherer."

(c) Connected with animals and travel : see infra, pp. 378-9.

(d) Other professions : on śiman, "physician," rtsig, "lawyer," yi-ge-pa, "scribe," see infra (p. 359); glu-myi (p. 193) should be "singer," zabs-mgar (infra, p. 385) "coppersmith".

(e) Religious : mkhan-po, "abbot"; ban-de (the usual term), Buddhist dge-slon or monk (bhikṣu); dge-tāñen, "lay adherent (upāsaka)"; dben or āben, "hermit" (dben-sa "hermitage", pp. 9-10); spod or ktul-mañ (gtul), "ascetic" (pp. 21-2); bon-po, "a Bon worshipper" (infra, pp. 394-5); lha-bon-po, "a deva-bon worshipper" (ibid.). On tshos-khur(ñ), "painter" (11), khur-skye (?), and ho-pen (?), see infra, p. 393.

In this connection we may take note of the designations of cities and places of residence :—

mkhar, "city," the general term, perhaps, implying fortification; skun-khar (later sku-mkhar), "citadel" or "fortress" (pp. 47, 133, 184); khrom, "mart" or "city" (pp. 21, 47, 73, 290), khrom-chen-po, "great city" (pp. 49, 145, etc.); gron-khyer, "great city"; gron-rdal, "hamlet"; bran (pp. 209, 272), "dwelling-place"; pho-bran, "palace" or house of king, noble, or high official (pp. 6, 8, 22, etc.); bran-sa, "station on (mountain) route" (p. 272); khāñ, "house" or "hut" (p. 149, l. [9]); gtug-lag-khāñ, "monastery"; khāb, "mansion"; mtshon-khāb (khyab), "watch-tower" (pp. 123, 133, 274); to which we may append mdad(ñ), "monument," and ban-so, "tomb" (pp. 146-8); dben-sa, "hermitage" (pp. 9, 11), gdan and gdan-sa, "divān" (pp. 21, 195, 380); gam, "posting station."

It seems possible that in these cases the word "team" or "yoke" (dor) is used as a measure of land, "as much as two strong oxen could plough from morn to night", see infra, p. 352; the word, however, does occur in its literal sense (p. 49.4, and see the dictionaries) and, as previously (pp. 29-30) suggested, the teams may have been supplied for the farmers' use; but the "half-team" is then a difficulty.

The "white" (dkar), which we have rendered "wheat", is probably the "white grass" of the Ts'ien Han Shu (cf. Wylie, Journal of the Anthropological Institute, x, p. 25). The document contains some obscure phrases—yor-phugs, "upper corner," bgruñ-rdziñ, "drained pond"; also gnag-ra-ba, and gnag-rgod-niñ, which may not be personal names. Spyan is perhaps a short equivalent of Rgyal-gziys, "the King's Eye". On Nag-sod see supra, pp. 125 sqq.; on the ru-dpon, pp. 70, 426. The mention of the General's land, the Horn-commander's land, the Foreign Councillor's land, and infra (p. 359) the Tax-account Clerk's land, suggests a system of salary by way of jāgīr allotments.

The expression "from extra piece . . ." suggests that the above is a fragment of a list of returned teams, and thus favours the literal interpretation of dor : see also the next document.

The Khu-cuñ "Little Khu" would be a subdivision of the Khu tribe, whereof the chieftain was Khu-Mañ-po-rje : for similar expressions see p. 150, Rbeg-chuñ. Rmañ is doubtless derived from rmed or rmod "plough" or "till". "Small letter land crop" will refer to a system of accounts ; cf. yi-ge-ched-po below (p. 418). On "are not returned", which might, however, relate to the tiller, see pp. 140 : 38, 2, 358.

The word gleḥu, which has occurred supra, recurs in the Tibetan Chronicle, I. 252, Stoḥ-uleḥi-gleḥu-thogḥa-khrul-pa-ga-du-spags; also in p. 126 : 13, and M.T., c. iii, 0066. It is identical with gle, noted supra, p. 225.

If no one comes to demand some satisfactory rba, it is not well (or if some satisfactory rba shall be required, it [will be] not well in future)."

The reference is, no doubt, to some local assignment of land where Khotanīs and Tibetans were in joint occupation. What rba denotes is not clear; possibly it is a miswriting for rtson "grass". Ma-ḥoñs-na may mean "in the future". On Dgyes, see p. 456.

"Spring of the Dog year: Bam Śañ-tshen having in Hye-gu crop land, one team (dor) in three small enclosures, entrusted it to Wañ Bur-hdo to plough for millet in partnership (thun-mön-du), at one-half; it is to be worked on a level with the previous man (myi-bla, i.e. the previous tenant). Plougher and hand-tools (sug-spyad) to be supplied by Bur-hdo. The resultant (ji-byuñ-ba) harvest of millet is to be divided in halves. In witness whereof the attestation-seals (dpañ-rgya) of Sag Dge-legs and Soñ Hyve-hdo and the rest and the hand-signature of the landlord (zin-bdag), Śañ-tshen, are attached. Subsequently if any loss (gul) shall fall upon the owner, while Bur-hdo profits by (sname?) the land, Śañ-tshen is to make a demand in writing (mchid-gyis-htahal-ba)."

A very clear and complete document. The letting by a landlord (zin-bdag = zin-dpañ) to a tenant, who is required to raise a crop of millet not falling below the level of the previous tenant, is attested by witnesses and signatures: the crop is to be halved, and in the event of a falling-off or loss the landlord is to make a protest. The term dor "team" seems clearly here to denote a measure of land. Shuñ-bu may be connected with slon, "erect," and mean "terrace" or "enclosed land"; cf. slan-kha, "shelf" or "stand". Sname: cf. p. 136.2.

As the document comes from the hidden library of Tun-luang, it is not surprising that the clan-names Bam, Wañ, Sag, Soñ are included among those previously elicited (pp. 41-6, 113 sqq.). The personal names also are accordant, being all, no doubt, Chinese, except that of Sag Dge-legs, a Tibetan, who seems actually to recur in that list.

This document illustrates the process of distribution of cereals by way of wages, payments, and for seed. The distribution will not always have been direct: we have seen examples of distribution by way of drafts and circular orders and also of assignment and prescript. But the country must, nevertheless, have been covered with the storage granaries, corresponding to the draṅgas of the Kharoṣṭhī documents, which also are seen (e.g. in Nos. 272, 439) to have been numerous.

The obscurities in this in principle quite intelligible document are due to difficulties of reading. The beginning relates to calling in of an equivalent from the crops of certain defaulting obligatees. On rnam, = "instalment", see supra (p. 79; Vol. I, p. 113, n. 6); glañ-tshigs is "proof", "confirmation", "document" (pp. 134.B2, 143.6). Rin-che-ba is given in Ś. C. Das' dictionary as = du-kū-lahī-ras, "silk-cotton." On lom (= lon?) see p. 443; tha-sñad = Sanskrit vyavahāra (pp. 33-20, 145). Sño-rñā not a proper name?

We have seen above (pp. 124, 139-140, 146) that in the Nob region there was a "land-arrangement (or settlement, ñiñ-hgod)"; a "commissioner" (riñ-lugs) of the land-settlement is there mentioned. Since in the case of the "lord's-land" (rje-ñiñ, royal or manorial land, on which see pp. 127, 129, 139, 275) there are special regulations prohibiting fixed holdings (gtan-ñiñ) and special rights (dbañ-than, pp. 139-140, 153 and M.L. ii. 42, iv, 27), it is to be presumed that such privileges were elsewhere valid. The existence of a class of landlords (ñiñ-dpon or °bdag) and the frequent mention of the lands of individuals, both private and official, suggests that both private possession and official tenure (as jāgīr) were usual.

The manorial land of Nob was divided by raised partitions (btseñs-kha, also in M.L. xxvi, 7) and the water-supply was regulated. The latter was doubtless the case elsewhere also; in the Śa-cu area there is mention of canals or water-conduits (yur-ba, infra, pp. 355-6). On slan-bu "small terrace" see supra p. 352.

Compulsory cultivation (perhaps, however, only after agreement) with punishments for abandoning the plough (thon-bros) and for positive offences is evidenced in the case of the manorial lands of Nob. Some other slight references to summoning tillers from the towns (for the season), e.g. p. 358 and pp. 139-141, suggest that in other cases also the cultivator (šin-pa) may not have been completely free.

A Śa-cu document (infra, pp. 361 sqq.) discriminates (a) crop land (rkyu-šin), (b) poor land (phons-šin), and (c) "juniper-land" (šug-šin). The "poor land" may be the same as the gle or glehu (supra, p. 351). We have also mention (p. 353) of pieces (lhu) of garden or vegetable plots (ldum-ra).

Ploughing (rmo-ba) was done with the aid of teams (dor) of oxen or yaks, apparently supplied; in the case of a vegetable plot the tilling is called rnel-pa. The seed (sa-bon) seems to have been supplied to the cultivator (supra, pp. 353-4). The crop was rkye and the harvest-yield (thog; lo-thog "year's yield") was "out" (chad). Corn was stsan, and "granary" stsan-gam (?); "flour" is phye, "mill" hthag.

The commonest crops were barley (nas), wheat (gro), white (dkar) and black (gnag), and millet (khre). There is mention also of mustard or turnips (stsan-yuhs) and cotton (ras). Implied in the mention of yu (rgyu)-mar "oil material" is sesamum, and wood (šin) is also rendered as material (rgyu) for arrows and tablets (khram). Perhaps glue-material (spyin) occurs, along with feathers (sgro), in the same connection (vol. liii, fol. 6).

The tax (dpya, khral) was levied in kind; so, too, rent, and the distribution by prescripts and assignments, as price (rin) of goods supplied, and by actual transport has been sufficiently illustrated.

The total of the year's revenue is lo-tha (pp. 152: 46.2, 358).

A thorough system of accounts, as implied in the existence of a Tibetan ministry of accounts (rtsis-pa-chen-po), of a Councillor for Accounts (tsaṅ-lon) at Śa-cu and a total of account (rtsis-mgo, supra, p. 140, etc. ; Vol. I, p. 29, n. 4) for the Khotan kingdom, is exhibited by the documents in its working. Reckonings of all kinds, on the part of officials, civil, military, and ecclesiastic (pp. 76 sqq., 88 sqq.), contend in number with the letters (pp. 258, 344, etc.) of private individuals recording their dues, wages, claims, and payments ; to judge from these records the people of Chinese Turkestan during the period of Tibetan rule (as also during the previous Kharoṣṭhī period) seem to have found in such calculations an absorbing preoccupation.

The year's revenue (lo-taṅ) will have included contributions (dpya) additional to the agricultural produce. Among a residue of a year's levy are mentioned (p. 153) "Khotan wool, hair, wool"; we have also noted supra (p. 344) a carpet as a tax (khral); elsewhere we have a horse as a tax (khral-rta, p. 303:44); and probably again (infra, p. 375) a smoke, or house, tax (dud-khral). There might be also a yield from gold and copper mining, from manufacture of silk (men-tri) and cotton goods, skins, woollen ropes and felts, and from the jade-workings; also from the following of trades and from transit dues.

The phrase "lands of small letter" implies perhaps a secretariat device; concerning the khrams and khram-tshan's sufficient has already been said (supra, pp. 91-2, 184; see also p. 365).

a servant of Da-red Žal-yi and on . . . a cairn with a manual token."

To the surveying operations indicated in the above three documents, with their classification of lands into (a) crop land, (b) poor land, and (c) juniper land, and their references to boundary cairns bearing tokens, and with their measurements of tenements, we may add the description of the division of the "lord's land" in Little Nob (pp. 139-140) into partitions brens-kha, with their boundaries (hishams) similarly demarked and with regulation of the water-supply. It may be conjectured that such matters were largely the concern of the yul-mthoh or yul-grigs as "local surveyor".

The last two documents probably relate to lands belonging to the religious establishments of Śa-cu. It is therefore not surprising to find that the nomenclature, both local and personal, differs in type from that which we have found associated with the more westerly regions, Nob, etc. What is highly significant is its similarity to that exhibited in the document edited above, pp. 8 sqq., and the other documents discussed in connection with the Ha-ās. Thus among the place-names we have Hor-gol, Khu-le Mo-nan, similar to Ho-khol and Khu-ñe Mon-gais, possibly indeed identical therewith. Rje-gol and Hor-gol are place-names of the same cast, and Sa-dar Mo-nan is similar to Khu-le Mo-nan; San-hdo-cin is in agreement with Sil-gu-cin, etc. (ibid., p. 34). The other place-names, Khe-to-ho-mod in Dyu-tul, Bro-go, Nam-kan-mog, Khar-go-can, Khar-go-mu-nye, Bye-to-ja-ga, and stream-names Jir-ber-hu-di, Stoh-bśas, although they manifest a certain analogy of type, afford no certain hold. The personal names include one who is called a Tho-gon, which occurred in the document cited and doubtless means a Tu-yu[k]-hun (Chinese T'u-huen, Tuei-huen, cited by Professor Pelliot, J.As., xi, vii (1916), p. 122, T'oung-pao, 1920, p. 323); and three persons, Da-red Žal-yi, Da-red M(?)ab-sgan, Da-red Žal-yi, with a prefix occurring in the Da-red Poō-yi and Da-red Blon-yi of the document and probably meaning "of that ilk". Du-myi Bon-tehe will probably mean "a man of that place". The clan-name and name-prefix Khri-tan is highly interesting; see infra, pp. 461-2: so also Thu-kur. Dyu-bul (here partly conjectural) recurs in another text. In regard to frequent passage of Tu-yn[k]-hun individuals into Chinese Turkestan see Prof. Pelliot, J. As. xi, vii, p. 122, and Dr. Giles, Bulletin of the School of Oriental Studies, vi, p. 830.

The two documents enable us, it seems, to supplement the topographical particulars concerning W. Kan-su adduced supra, pp. 5, 34-7. The syllable khol in Ho-khol, understood as meaning "river-valley", Mongol gol, to be associated with some other terms of "Mongol" affinity which Pelliot has traced (T'oung-pao, II. xxvi (1929), p. 250) in pre-Mongol Kan-su, seems to recur in Hor-gol and Rje-gol. The Hor-gol can hardly help being the Bulungir river, which in the Life of Hiuan-tsang, who crossed it on leaving An-hsi | Kva-cu, is mentioned (Beal, Life, p. 13, Records, i, p. xix) as Hu-lu. Accordingly the Rje-gol, in the same region, may be the Ji-ma-gol/khol, where in A.D. 668 the Tibetans built a war-magazine (dgra-bzer) and where in 670 they inflicted a defeat on the Chinese (see M. Bacot's Documents, pp. 14, 33). Is the Rje river the Ye-ma, which (see the Royal Geographical Society's map in S. C. Das, Journey to Lhasa and Central Tibet) flows north of the Ye-ma mountains into the Ša-cu district?

In the place-name San-hdo-cin the element cin must be identical with the cin which we have found in Sil-gu-cin (p. 6), Im-ka-cin (p. 17) and Khar-tai-cin | chin (pp. 25-8) and have supposed to represent Chinese chên, "mart" (Japanese tên, tin), corresponding to Tibetan khrom in Mkhar-tsan-khrom-chên-po (p. 95. B2-3). The can in Khar-go-can may, as in Ma-ko-can (p. 29), represent Chinese ch'êng, "city," "fort," since a cag = ch'êng is certain in Tsehu-cag = Chinese Ts'ou-ch'êng (p. 250), and the alternation g | h is frequent in the old Tibetan MSS. from Tun-huang. In

Khar-go-mu-sge the mu-sge should be another administrative term. Mo-han also is likely to have a topographical value.

The clan, or tribe, name Thu-kur may possibly be related to the Mount Thagouros of p. 294 supra.

The precise particulars of boundaries and boundary marks point to a highly developed survey system. Concerning the khram accounts (khram-tshan) see pp. 91-2 sqq., 360. One or two terms—chu, and chehi, khu—are of unascertained meaning. "Crop land (rkya-tān) was mentioned supra, p. 352: "not irrigated" (chu-ma) is defined in S. C. Das' dictionary as "cultivation which requires irrigation". On mjug, "behind," "beyond" (p. 365, l. 27), see p. 151. The word boñ, which has been translated "ass", may conceivably have denoted some local land-measure.

The account of the large caravan, conveying barley, silk, silver, gold, oil, flowers, felt, etc., is unfortunately in part imperfect or illegible : the order of the sides A, C, B, D is, however, evident. The caravan officials include a leader (rad-mkhan), a banner-bearer (dar), a quartermaster († tha-bzi, recurs in M.T. a. iii, 008), a bedding-man (mal-hpan), a guide (sa-rig and sa-mkhan), and others. The gran-mkhan (= grān-mkhan "accountant" ?) may not have been of the company. On hog-dpon and nan-rje-po see supra. Schu, Hgra-had (?), and Hbre seem to be unknown. On Sta-gu gans, Śin-śan, and the "Good Hor" regiment see supra. The district Sreg(s) is mentioned in p. 306 : 54 and in a Bkañ-hgyur colophon (Beckh, p. 84).

What request is expressed in ḍgol, for which bgos is a possibly alternative reading, is not certain. The form ḍgol should come from ḥgol, "separate", "stray", and is given in Ś. C. The sense of the expressions luā (also = "strap")-ba-chan

On this occasion (or in reply thereto, dehi-res-la) it is not right to . . . back these goats and sheep; later, after reckoning grain and sheep, they were delivered (bžag). Here it is taken as error (phyin-log-tu-blañ). Delay in replying to that definite communication from Dpal-bžer [Rbeg-]chuñ is not good.”

"... having been arranged, setting a dog-house (khyi-gstan = khyi-tshan ?), put the bundle outside. Bed-door (khri-[s]go ?) and bed-head are to be made with great care (tshogs-cher). Carnivora of the different kinds (runams) not being allowed to drink water in the ponds and the herdsmen being ordered to join, there should also be avoidance (g-yon-bskor) of the people at the ponds. After an interval the young racers (bañ-phrugs ?) and the carnivora..."

The passage relates apparently to preparations for hunting wild animals with young hounds.

On g-yon-bskor, "turn left", see "avoid", see p. 358; on the dog as an object of fancy see ap. Stein, Innermost Asia, p. 1087.

The passages relating to travel cover the cases of official messages, private journeyings, the large organized caravan, details of payments and hiring of animals and service in connection with convoy or escort, the courier and runner, the baleman or load-porter, accidents and sickness en route, arrangements in regard to provisions, forwarding of correspondence. The general term for travel is rad (pp. 51-2 = skrad ?), whence rad-mkhan (p. 371), "caravan-leader", rad-gos, "travelling-clothes", rad-pa, "traveller" or "caravan". In addition to the phrases (sa-mkhan, "guide", ri-skyel, etc.) noted above we may mention lam-htshal (supra, p. 21:4, and Two Medieval Documents, p. 124, l. 3, lam-gsol, also in M. Tâgh. α, i, 0021, c. i, 0062), the real meaning of which seems to be "to take leave". We have found also sa-rig, "guide" (sa-mkhan, p. 51:2), [m]ha[h]-bzi (p. 371), "four ends," "quartermaster," mal-hphan (t), "bed-man," as well as the ltan-sogs, "porter," gyeñu-ga, "baleman," rkañ-mygogs, bañ-chen, hdul-ba, "courier" previously recorded.

the camel appears far less frequently than in the Kharoṣṭhī documents, perhaps because he is not liked by the Tibetans, who substitute the yak. On the sheep as a transport animal see p. 30, 329: on sta-rogs, rmah-rogs, "horse-attendant," see supra.

The Uncle-Councillor, Lha-sbyin, the copperman—of these three meditations, could you, if under your orders (bkañ-hog-na) there is a coppersmith, trouble about (thugs-pags-cir-gzigs) a basin, with a foot, one holding about half a bre of corn, a pretty one! I am praying for an early meeting face to face and for the perpetual (read: itag-tu-bde-bar) happiness of the eminent father and son."

Bzard seems to come from gzer-ba "suffer". Bkañ-hbab-bam-myi-hbab, a common phrase, = "perhaps you may reply or have replied." On thugs-pags-cir-gzigs (undrad) see supra (pp. 58, 227.9) and on spyen-ras-bzas, pp. 221, 246, etc.; on stañ-sbyal, ibid., p. 189; hu-sna-ba is obscure in reading and in sense (= "quickly" ?): it might conceivably be connected with hu-lag, "pressed service".

On sku-bla-gsol-ba, see supra, p. 386.

Little significance attaches to the articles of value, rings, turquoise, ruby, coral, etc., mentioned in the above, since they are such as would occur everywhere. Characteristic of Chinese Turkestan are the frequently mentioned rolls (yug) of silk (men-tri (p. 379)) (lo-gro "satin", p. 258 ?), with which we may associate the ribbons (leb) and the carpets (gdan), including the once-mentioned snam-mdah, or felt rug, which is the Kharoṣṭhī namata and the modern nundah; also the fruit, including apricots and dried grapes (kham-rgun, M.I. iv, 110, p. 393.91, xiv, 58a). The gifts of paper are significant of its increasing employment; and the flint and steel fitting<sup>4</sup> remained until modern times a common object in Chinese Turkestan. The several references to copper and the one mention of the coppersmith (supra, p. 385) remind us of the copper-mining in the Kuen-lun valleys. Cotton, wool (bal), hair (skra), and ropes (of hair or wool, no doubt, pp. 415-6) occur, though more rarely than might be expected; raw oil (rgyu-mar) and the same refined for lamps (zug-mar) are more frequent. In transactions of all kinds the cereals play the greatest part. Wood (ših) is mentioned as material (agyu) supplied for arrows (mlah-ših) and also for wooden tablets (khram-ših): a bundle of firewood is probably šin-ris.

Very limited possessions on the part of poor persons are indicated by such an agreement as is given above, pp. 45-6, where four cups, three baskets, and some woven cotton are borrowed and among the forfeits due to default are included barley, copper utensils, cotton, and the key and iron of the door-bolt.

The reference to overcoats (sted-gos) and winter things (dgun-cha) recalls the experience of the Forsyth mission, that European winter clothes are not suitable for the climate of Chinese Turkestan. Rad-gos, or "travelling clothes", seem to have been regarded as of the last necessity (supra, pp. 205, 252). The only other particularizations (except the military puttees, ekai-bkris, pp. 926, 425) are of the cloak (slag-pa, pp. 132, 468), waistcoat (sted-khor), wrap or blanket (la-lu, M.T. a. iv, 00159), and the shoe (thum, M.T. b. ii, 0066).

The utensils named are the cup (phor-pa or rdzhu), bowl or basin (bed-pa), picher (rkyan), basket (deb-tse), bag (pha-tsa), sometimes a "Khotan bag" (Lihi-pha-tsa), ladle or spoon (skyoga), wine (or water)-skin (thul), sack (rkyal), net (dra-ba), pipkin (tse-gu), couch or chair (khri). Snal denotes any "container". The general word for furniture or other objects is byud (p. 272, B3), from which comes yo-byud "appurtenance", "furniture" (p. 76, n.).

In respect of food we can cite, in addition to the flour (of wheat, barley etc.), and the "Khotan cakes" noted above, only casual references to clotted cream (thud, preserved in a sheep's stomach), fruit (including the tindaka fruit), radishes and mustard; perhaps also barley beer (chan).

The document relates perhaps to men killed in fight. On rise-rgod, "chief wild man (canḍāla?)", see pp. 153, 349; with mkhar we should perhaps supply, in the gap, b̄ri (b̄rihi) "the four towns", or gsum "the three towns". In the passage quoted p. 452 also h̄thol may mean "burying".

If ḥdas could be read in l. 1, it might mean "deceased"; but see the next document.

That the reference is to some ceremony of water(or beer)-drinking during mourning appears from the next following documents. If the first word should be read ḍre, that would be for ḥdre "devil", and the case would be one of disease ascribed to possession. Chus-pa (from ḥchu) is not elsewhere found with a technical sense. Ḥdren in the sense of "drink" is exemplified below (p. 391).

"Second care: Seven Bon-pos and two Bon leaders, making nine, with equal measure, from the time when the wife commenced mourning, every day, each man being required to drink ten spoonfuls of drink from the largest of six skins: drink, skins three."

A Bon-po mourning ceremony is indicated. On thugs-gral (khral) "care" or "preoccupation", rnam-gñis "a second matter" (pp. 79, 355), than-bñam "equal measure" (p. 51.5), see supra. Thul probably denotes a wine-skin, and skyogs (skhyams) "a spoonful". The last three words give the total quantity drunk, and the document is an account.

As appears from the next document, the "twenty-seven" are dge-hñun, clergy, not necessarily Buddhist. Chal-nan ("belly-strong" men; cf. Harṣa-carita, trans., p. 138) and kha-chub ("mouth-water") are obscure.

Having with mind intent (ñam-pag = ñams-bag?) inserted one spoonful, proceed to the place of the courtyard brushwood and suspend it (the klud) from the mass of brushwood, rapidly pronouncing scolding words (11)."

For the rite of filling a klud, scapegoat figure or φάριμακος of straw, with grass, victuals, precious objects, etc., and casting it away in a direction whence an evil spirit may be thought to have come, see Ś. C. Das' dictionary, s.v. glud-tshub.

Several expressions are here obscure. We have taken yul as = yul-ga "branch", sc. brushwood heap; in ñam(s)-pag, the second monosyllable might mean "dough"; or we might translate "one spoonful [to draw] attention". The quite conjectural rendering of the last phrase presupposes that do-ma = do-med and that cho in cho-smos has the sense of co in co-hdri-ba "revile", "scoff", etc.

The khur-skyä is here distinguished from the ho-pen, who, if identical with the hwa-pan of the Chinese documents (Chavannes, Documents Chinois, p. 211, n. 7), would be properly some taxing official of a quarter of a town. Za may be = sa "flesh" (used with phul, p. 438: 21).

Connection with the preceding document is obvious. Gśen is a Bon-po term, which in mundane usage means "executioner". Las-myi = "workman", "servant", as supra.

one, namely burial, is indicated in the documents; it may have been favoured by scarcity of fuel. None of the citations belong, it is true, to the Khotan area, in regard to which cremation is attested by the Chinese (Abel-Rémusat, op. cit., p. 22).

The water(?)-drinking rites in connection with mourning are probably, despite the term dge-hdun in M.I. vi, 12 (p. 391), not Buddhist; and the same may be said of the other ceremonies indicated. Their Bon-po character is authenticated in some cases by the occurrence of the actual term. On Bon religion in pre-Tibetan Central Asia see supra, p. 322. In its early forms it was hardly distinguished from Shamanism: the term Bon probably meant "lord", and would in Sanskrit be represented by nātha, as in the case of the Burmese nats. The nāgas (of streams, etc.) and yakṣas, also characteristic of Chinese Turkestan, are very possibly of a different origin. The technical terms kbur-skye, etc., await explanation. The glud, or scapegoat effigy, is, of course, world-wide.

Of this medicine [taking] as much as half a sheep's dung, in just a little water, in a small tube (tse-gur), boil it over the fire (read.: mye-la?) until it dissolves (ôzus-bukol). When it melts, add oil little by little, mixing it with the melted substance, and, as far as the heated flesh can bear, smear the tumour (hbras-bu) and where the pain is: wrap up the great finger in a sheath warmed in oil under the afternoon sun (?). If you do so some four or five times at the time when the place is hot (inflamed), the medicine gets the upper hand. Afterwards how it shall have befallen I beg you to send me a note in writing by the post."

There are here some uncertainties due to difficulties of reading. On bkab-hlab "reprimand" see supra, p. 340. Tse-gu is, no doubt, = tse-gur "a small tube", and hbras-bu = Sanskrit phala "tumour".

The measure khyor ("handful", p. 412), [g]ñā, cog (EEB 90), and also the expression hbrin-skyogs "medium ladle", have occurred supra. Geheñs (1) is obscure. On [g]ñā see p. 394.

Lag-dgra has been noted above, p. 152; and it recurs in M.I. i, 14; iii, 7; and iv, 3; tal-bzen (us) recurs similarly. On "white" and "black" grain see p. 349. The expression "kind . . . heart" is found also in a similar connection in M.I. i, 14. On soggs, 'shoulder,' see infra, p. 400.

The syllable lu in A 1 began, no doubt, the expression lug-bzan-bzin-bzin-gis-gsol "petition by one mild as a slaughtered sheep", which occurs (bzan-lug?) in p. 401. Lo-g-yañ, which has been rendered as if it were log-yañ,

As will have been seen, the justification for treating the physician and the diviner together is the identity of the persons, the yul-sman "local physician", being also g-yan
 "luck", and often yul-lha "local divinity". To him application is made both for normal medicines and directions and for prognostications by means of the sheep shoulder-blades. Ordinary medicines and prescriptions are mentioned, as gifts or otherwise, in many letters; and in the literary MSS.
 from the Tun-huang library are a few, in some cases not inextensive, fragments of common-sense treatises (mainly, no doubt, of Indian inspiration) or collections of prescriptions relating to ordinary medicine and to horse doctoring. There are also pieces exemplifying the mo divination (by means of groups of circles), concerning which we may here be content to refer to the article by A. H. Francke in the Berlin Academy Sitzungsberichte, Phil.-Hist. Klasse, 1924, pp. 5 sqq.,

The phrase sko-gus-slam-la (cf. pp. 23, 20, 29, 75, B12, 79, where ago, "private," is read) is not quite clear. Khyi-mo-rtse ("Bitch's Peak") looks like a place name; but there might be a reference to some test with a bitch's head. Bśñad-ḥdogs-pa = "make malicious accusation". There being a remainder of punishment and the work done not being nearly equal to the cash expended, the penalty was heavily augmented. The order not having been obeyed, it was decided that, where the plastering (2a-la ?) had been done, the penalty should be three ounces (srañ) of gold and three loads (khal) of vegetables (sñon-mo) and that each man should receive fifteen lashes with a Chinese whip; where the plastering was in progress it was decided that a feast of one slaughtered sheep should be supplied.

That za-la (ial-la) here means "plasterer" and za-co "plaster-master" is far from certain; also the phrase byasub-yuñ-phoñ-mags-pa is obscure. 'Ab-dzi is perhaps Chinese hao-chih, (or, as Dr. L. Giles suggests, hao-tzu), 'mark.' The clan-names 'Yim ('Im), Li, Ha, and also the personal names are characteristic of the Ša-cu region: see supra, pp. 113 sqq. On the Bkañ-luñ see supra, p. 336.

The rtsig Lha-rtsa-skyes was mentioned above, p. 143, in connection with the King's Eye; and, as he appears elsewhere (e.g. in p. 304 : 46) also in legal concerns, his designation rtsig probably means "lawyer". In M.T. b. i, 0095 (p. 410), he has become himself "King's Eye".

(pp. 124, 150), misdemeanour (pp. 137-8), and damage (pp. 141-2, 144, 258), and also a number of attested agreements (pp. 46, 59-60, 179, etc.) in regard to debt, loan, and sale. In two cases (pp. 134, 151) there is indication of reference to a court (grwa-tus = parisad). The officials concerned with dispensation of justice (khrims-dpon, rgyal-gzigs, bal-ce-pa, bkañ-luh, etc.) have been noted supra.

The "ancient usage" and "old town law" (pp. 59, 67, 139, 140) sometimes mentioned were not necessarily written, and the same applies to the dharma, which the Kharoṣṭhī royal rescripts so frequently direct to be followed; even perhaps to the khyim-phugs-gyi-khrims "law of house-burglary", named in a document from Mirān (Mi. 0052). But in the case of an administration of Indian origin even in the earlier period some written law is probable; and the Tibetans themselves were certainly in possession of a code compiled by order of Sroñ-btsan Sgam-po, now understood to be the basis of the present-day procedure. From the hidden library of Tun-huang we have reported a fragment in Tibetan, embodying a part of a law of theft: see Zeitschrift für Vergleichende Rechtswissenschaft, vol. 50, pp. 275 sqq.

9. WRITING AND LETTERS

The document refers to writings (testimonials or commissions ?) executed for certain persons in gold or silver ink, such as may be seen in calligraphic MSS. obtained from Tibet.

Silver script and turquoise script, as mark of distinction, were mentioned above, p. 12, and elsewhere we have had reference to copper script and turquoise script distinguishing the records of different army brigades. M.I. i, 26, mentions silver, copper (zans), brass (ra-gan), large and small, and blue (shon?) writing. For sealings, and sometimes for headings and beginnings of paragraphs (e.g. supra, pp. 351 sqq.), red ink, now in most cases faded, was in use. "Large writing" (yi-ge-ched-po, mentioned again in M.I. i, 26a) seems also, from the mention of "lands of small letter" (supra, p. 350), to have been distinctively employed. Among the (later) fragments from the Etsingol sites (Mongol period) the interlinear comments in literary MSS. are often in very minute, but excellent, hands.

Bog-yul was, as we have seen (supra, p. 49) in the region of Lem-cu (Liang-chou), to which accordingly Ska-ba (p. 294) also belonged.

The situation seems to be that the package was despatched by Khri-gdas to be delivered to himself elsewhere; but other interpretations are possible. De-bdag can hardly be any other person than Khri-gdas; otherwise we might understand that some one had accepted (kha-bruñ) 15 srañ for conveying the parcel. Goal seems to come from hjal (gtsal might be from ḥtshol or stsol?); dbaṅ-rgya is probably = dpañ-rgya "witness signature"; sug-mdzug-gi-ḥchad seems to be identical with the sug-yig-tshad of pp. 45-6. "To the presence of the chief, Councillor Mañ-bāre: letter petition of Phyi-mthoñ. Having inquired by word of mouth of the runner and having heard that you are continuously happy and with helm high, I am very glad. I make prayer that for the future also you may be happy and that I may soon see your good countenance.

"The oil and wool have come; but, as the Great Eye has not reached the town and the Uncle-Councillors, occupied with the new year, have not met, I have still not got them. 'If one is not able, always offer inquiry as to health'—so it would be well to send a word. Your humble servant, with rations scarce and being old, has requested from the Khotani Na-mo-bud barley grain [to the amount] of one animal-load; so please take care to send a receipt for one animal-load. As the Uncle-Councillor's dāwān comes here, not wishing to disgrace [you?], I am handing over a receipt. Though he (Na-mo-bud?) does (or I do) not ask for return (or reply), he has still not come to town. The men on leave also now need a reminder. Fresh gossip we have not heard. I suggest that you inquire of Phu-tsab.

On the "Great Eye" see supra, p. 403. The phrases gdan-gtęgs (M.I. iii, 6), khor-žag "leave" (p. 436), bkañ-mchid "gossip" (p. 198), and bkaś-rma "question authoritatively" (p. 245), also occur elsewhere. Žabs-ždren = "bring shame upon".

The first endorsement (verso) of the letter was perhaps made by the recipient when passing it on "for action". The Khotani Na-mo-bud has a characteristic name; see p. 263.

"To the great Inner-Minister, Councillor Rma-b̄zer: letter-petition of Bcom-ldan-h̄das and Sde-ñā-legs . . . b̄rtan and Tshe-yañs. [You] having inquired by letter . . . there follows a mutilated passage containing expressions of dejection, etc. . . reflecting upon the natural impermanence of living beings and upon phenomenal existence (chos-ñid = dharma-tā), [our] dejection has been in part diminished; thank you. For the rest (or For the future), with prayer that you may be perpetually happy and that perhaps we may soon see your good countenance, we are asking after your health. To send your commands would be a favour. When, [you] not being able, the kind bkañ-luñ made inquiry after [our] health, we were glad. At present we are free from illness.

"Since we first took charge (ma-ma-gzññ) of Little Nob, the surpluses delivered are not . . . good so far. So we are deliberating who is to take charge here hereafter. As the holders of the different appointments do not comprehend, we are sending up to my lord on his estate (in his place?).

"Private petition of Bcom-ldan-h̄das: 'If not furnished with presents (or "Without adding a present"), send a letter of inquiry as to health'—did orders come to this effect or not? I am asking you to transmit, as a supplement to the winter provisions rations, some little harvest mustard. Can you attend to this?"

The communication is from some Buddhist clerics, who have been in authority, perhaps as a committee of inquiry, in Little Nob. They report that there is no surplus (snams) (in the revenues? p. 136, 352), and they are considering who should be put in charge (gzññ). Not trusting the wisdom of the holders of different commissions or appointments (phyag-rjed-rnams-pa), they refer to the minister.

also: I have previously sent a reminder to Bzer (or I have sent a reminder to the four leaders, sna-bzir). [B ll. 1-2] The wool sent to . . . by the pony-master's man, Pu-rig Guñ-legs . . . [B ll. 4-5] What hair of goats, male and female, has been obtained, cost (chad) about six srañ of oil: afterwards how much it cost will be reported. Subsequently also one animal-load of barley has been supplied. [B ll. 5-6, Please have made what rope (stō?) is possible by the city] man Gumpin, as far as he has leisure (lañ?).<sup>27</sup>

In this letter the imperfection of the text leaves many obscurities; but the general tenor, a report to officials by an agent collecting hair for rope-making, seems evident. The phrases sku-bla-gsol (A 3, p. 386), chibs-[d]pon (B 1, pp. 426, 445), thag-bar ("mid-rope", B 2, pp. 215: 46, 423) phyugs-k[h]al (B 3, 5, p. 411.8), bul-du-zugs (A 3, pp. 137.6, 157.1) have occurred supra. What follows gsol-ha (A 3) is possibly babs-su-bla-btshon-blañ, 'on opportunity fine (or high-priced) goods were obtained': the next words are rather clearly sol-rdo-ha-cañ-mchis, 'fuel-stone in abundance has come,' perhaps the sole reference in the documents to coal, which is known to have been mined in Turfan. Skyams-bekal (A 4) = skyamz-bsgal; chad = "paid" or "cost"; du-ru-lañ-byed-po = "as far as he has leisure"?

The surname Pu-rig (B 1) may refer to the so-named W. Himalayan district. The rope mentioned in the last sentence would be of hair or wool (supra, p. 388).

Tibetan Documents concerning Chinese Turkestan. VII: The Tibetan Army

- A. General Description; B. Documents (1, Services, departments and divisions; 2, Provisions, rations, pay; 3, Armature; 4, Grades and commissions; 5, Military instructions; 6, Incidents; 7, Personalalia; 8, List of Regiments)

A. GENERAL DESCRIPTION

UNDER the rule of Buddhist ecclesiastics, fostered originally by foreign (Mongol) suzerains, Tibet has not been a military power. Probably no religion is more potent than Buddhism in damping the fighting spirit; of which development Mongolia itself has in modern times afforded a signal example. The Tibetan people, though in some districts rough and turbulent, is not warlike: the brigand tribes of the north-east belong to a region which, since the overthrow (A.D. 1226) of the Tangut kingdom by Čingiz Khan, has been largely Mongolized, as even the geographical nomenclature proves, and which in native Tibetan times must have presented a quite different aspect. The Tibetan armies, when such are required, consist mainly of levies from the great monasteries; the creation of a small standing army in the most recent period has encountered prejudice.

In the regnal age of the Btsan-pas, when Tibet carried on during a hundred years and more a war, on the whole successful, with the great Chinese empire, when it annexed Chinese Turkestan and dominated states in the Pamir regions, fought with the Turks and Uigurs of the Tien-shan and Altai regions and even with the Arabs in Transoxiana,<sup>1</sup> a different spirit must have existed in the country and far heavier demands must have been made upon the (then larger) population. That forgotten era of Dukes and Barons and great commanders comes to light in the Lha-sa treaty edicts, published by Colonel Waddell<sup>1</sup>; and the Chinese notices extracted long before by Dr. Bushell<sup>2</sup> had represented the Tibetans as not merely rude, but also warlike; while a fragmentary chronicle affords evidence of an incessant military activity during c. one hundred and fourteen years (c. A.D. 650-763). But it is from a literary description (Vol. I, pp. 276 sqq.) that we have obtained the first substantial conception of the extent and organization of the armies.

On several occasions we have adverted to the fact that the Tibetan military system was territorial; for which reason the word for regiment (sde) has also the sense of administrative "district". But the passage in question has shown that the whole kingdom was demarked into a definite number of military areas, superimposed upon old tribal divisions, and that the regiments were named after those areas. The huge statistical totals<sup>3</sup> show that practically the whole male population of military age was liable, as was natural in a rude civilization, to be called up for service. The country was partitioned into four "horns" (ru) or "brigades", each of which consisted of an Upper and Lower "brigade-division" (ru-lag) with an army-commander (dmag-pon) and a second-in-command (syab). We do not in that passage hear of lower ranks; but there is mention of the divisional "records" or "secretariat" (yig-tshans, also in Chronicle, l. 77) and "record-keeper" (yig-tshans-pa) and of the selected colours of their ink; also of the divisional banner (dar, "silk") and ensign, and the characteristic fighting spirit of each division. Another passage affords a glimpse of a Tibetan army on the march; and a third describes a composite army, including auxiliaries, present on the occasion of a great battle with

Forts do not appear in these accounts; but, no doubt, they existed and were similar to the existing rdzon's, known often as "jongs") from modern descriptions, or to the forts of feudal Europe. We have mention of frontier toll-stations (so-kha or sva-kha); and the Chinese speak of high towers in the interior at intervals of 20 miles. The "smoke-fires", which the Chinese state (Bushell, p. 441) to have been lighted when the country was invaded, seem to be mentioned in the Chronicle (II, 8, 57) under the designation zug-loa(n), "fire-tidings [corps]".

In Chinese Turkestan the Tibetan armies have left evidence of their occupation in the shape of ruined mud forts, built, no doubt, and occupied by them. From two of these, excavated by Sir Aurel Stein, come most of the documents, the great majority inscribed on wooden slips, with which we have been dealing. The information which they afford is therefore for the most part incidental to administrative business; and naturally it includes many particulars relating to actual military life. Though scrappy and allusive (the wooden documents being in many cases mere labels or passes or lists or bills or name-cards) and seldom consecutively decipherable in the faded, erased, broken, palimpsest, and misspelled records, the information may be pieced together in such a way as to convey a modicum of definite, and indeed of vivid, fact, appertaining to a very obscure period.

Concerning the structure and arrangement of the forts themselves it suffices to refer to the full and precise descriptions given by Sir Aurel Stein in connection with his excavations.<sup>1</sup> They dominated the areas under their observation, whether these were administered by the native rulers or were actually governed from the fort. But, beside these strongholds, we have much evidence of occupation of commanding positions, "heights" (rtse), on a smaller scale; and no doubt there were numerous stations on the lines of communication with north-eastern Tibet (Mdo), the Tibetan capital, and so forth. Such positions would be under the control of the larger establishments and would depend upon these for supplies of men and provisions: which relation explains the very numerous wooden tablets from Mazār-Tāgh which record only the names of such places and amounts of wheat, barley, etc.

As the Tibetan armies lived upon the countries in their occupation, there was requisitioning of grain and other provisions and much correspondence in connection therewith. There were arrears and changes of assessment, assignments to individuals, arithmetical adjustments, threats of forcible pressure upon defaulters and so forth. A form of record especially common, as it seems, at Mirān points to another feature in the system. These contain particulars of lands, teams (dor) of yaks (?), and cultivators; and they would record the supply of yaks from the military headquarters for the tillage with a view to a stipulated portion of the produce. In modern Tibet also yaks are customarily hired, not owned, by the peasants.

With a view to clarity, however, it should be pointed out that much of the business transacted in the forts, at least in Mirān, was not of a military character. It includes civil administration of various kinds, carried on by officials having civil titles, such as nañ-rje-po "minister of internal affairs", councillors (blen) of various ranks, heads of Thousand-districts (ston-dpon), and so forth. As we know from the Lha-sa treaty inscriptions (for instance), the Tibetan government was organized in departments, and these will have been fully aware of their mutual limitations. What were their interrelations in Chinese Turkestan is matter for inference. Upon a survey of the exiguous evidences we may conclude (always with restriction to the several periods represented by the documents) as follows:—(1) Where the countries were left under their native rulers, the contributions of grain, etc., required for the Tibetan armies would be levied by those rulers and furnished to the Tibetan officials in bulk. A Śa-cu document has illustrated this operation ; the Tibetan officials are apparently civilians, while there is in the region a military commander who may, in an ultimate resort to force, be called in. In Khotan also we hear of the presence of a general, without, however, being able to ascertain whether he was ordinarily commandant of the fort of Śiñ-šan (Mazâr-Tāgh) : it seems most likely that the commandant of the fort would be a different person, of lower rank. The supplies of Khotan were furnished to Śiñ-šan upon a census ; whether the control was in that instance purely military or with a civil admixture (as the mention of a nañ-rje-po suggests) is not clear. (2) In the case of the Nob region the circumstances would seem to have been different. Certainly there was a general commander who had the region under his survey ; this was the Tshal-byi general, to whom we have a number of references. But the several districts and towns in this area had their civilian administrators, who bore for the most part Tibetan names. And we have documents regulating in detail the cultivation of the lands. Accordingly it is to be concluded that in this region the whole administration had been taken over by the Tibetans (on the lines of "British India") ; and we may connect with this the statement in the Chronicle (l. 190) to the effect that in the year A.D. 727 the Tibetan king went to the Ha-za country to take over the government (chab-srid-la). There would be garrisons in the fort or forts and also town-garrisons (mkhar-tsho, p. 432), available, under what regulations we can hardly expect to know, for the support of the civil administrators.

In view of these conditions we may, so far as the Tibetan army is concerned, dispense with any consideration of levies and supplies and general administration. Turning to strictly military matters, we must recognize, first, that we have actually but little evidence of different departments in the Tibetan army. No classification analogous to the Indian description of the "four-membered" army, consisting of elephants, chariots, cavalry, and infantry, or of feudatories, mercenaries, guild levies, and wild tribes, is here apparent. One passage refers to a "commandant of horse" (sta-dpon) and a "commandant of camels" (dni-dpon), in the Ha-ta kingdom; and a "commandant of riding horses" ([m]chibs-[d]pon) is mentioned both in a document and also in the Chronicle (l. 152), which speaks further of "four regiments of horse" (chibs-sde-bti, l. 218) and of a "troop of horse" (chibs-kyi-cha, l. 164). But there is little to dispel the impression that, in general, riders and footmen belonged to the same regiment (sde): in view of the abundance of ponies in Tibet and the great distances which had to be traversed it is likely that the Tibetan armies consisted largely of mounted men (Vol. I, p. 385). In one passage (p. 272), however, we have a description of a marching army with horsemen in the van, archers and "dagger-armed soothsayers" (probably the phur-myi of p. 174 and M. Tāgh. a, ii, 0089) in the middle, and mail-clad spearmen bringing up the rear.

The most abundant and important information contained in the documents consists in the names of regiments (sde). Their number is large, and with the aid of a literary statement it is possible to make a definite discrimination between those locally raised and those which belonged to Tibet proper. It is indeed highly interesting to read on the wooden or paper fragments from Chinese Turkestan the names of battalions which otherwise would be entirely unknown,<sup>1</sup> were they not also recorded in a literary text, itself previously unexamined by scholars outside Tibet. A historical deduction also is suggested. In the Mirān documents the regiments named are almost exclusively such as were connected with the adjacent districts, those of Rgod, Nag-śod, Hdzom, and

Kha-dro, while at Mazâr-Tâgh we have mention of many belonging to Tibet proper. This supports the conclusion that the Nob region, an earlier acquisition, was under peaceful local control, whereas in Khotan, a less accessible and more recently conquered kingdom, Tibetan armed forces were required. History is involved also in the mention of foreign-raised regiments, such as the Yarkand regiment and the "Good Hor (Turk)" regiment. In the appended list the units of the two classes are distinguished in detail.

Here also we should revert to the question of the Shuñs. That Shuñs was a tribal designation is, as we have seen, certain (pp. 52, 296-7). In connection with soldiers the Shuñs are not infrequently mentioned, but in such a way as to imply a distinction; and once or twice we read of persons or things being "handed over to the Shuñs" (Shuñs-la-blañ, infra, p. 446). It is to be inferred that the offices discharged were those of police, camp-servants, camp-followers, etc., and that the Shuñs were a people who had established an aptitude for such work.

Some particularity is involved, no doubt, in the expressions apun(f)-dmag (p. 148), "brother-army", and mun-dmag (pp. 270, 435, Chronicle, II 6, 51-2, 201), which have a probably accidental assonance. The designation dgyes-sde (infra, p. 456) can hardly, as we have already noted, contain the word dgyes, "rejoicing", more especially as it recurs in the place-name Stag-sras-dgyes-kyi-rtse "Tiger-son-dgyes-peak". It may have denoted some corps d'élite. An interesting feature is the existence of a separate ambulance corps, Mūald-pañi-sde (from mūel or gñel, "be sick") or Mñal-kphan-gyi-sde ("Fatigue-benefit corps").<sup>1</sup> That such was the purpose of the corps appears from the fact that it included a functionary designated "middle-rope" (thag-bar, pp. 215, 416, 431, 464): a frequently recurring (pp. 203, 216,

In connection with organization we may here refer also to a few other terms. The sense of augmenting or reinforcing is conveyed by the verb snon-pa (pp. 243, 432.3, and M.T. b, i, 0059), from which come benan "sent as reinforcement" (M.T. b, i, 0059), brnans-tsho "reinforcements" (p. 184), and the frequently (pp. 373, 433, and M.T. 0522; c. iii, 005) occurring rtis(gtān)-non "rear-guard (reserve?) man". The general term for a body of soldiers seems to be tsho, whence mikhar-tsho (p. 432 and M.T. a ii, 0076) "town-garrison" and so-tsho (pp. 432, 447: 44) "soldiery". A "troop" of cavalry is cha (pp. 273.A 2, 435). A small body detached for a special purpose is tshugs (pp. 232: 82, 249: 106); a dpuñ is a larger force, perhaps of indefinite size (since we have the expression ce-dpuñ (M.L. xvi, 0010) "large force"—but note dpuñ-dpuñ "commander of a dpuñ")—while an army is dmag.

The fort, sku-mkhar (or skun-khar), is properly "citadel": we have also (p. 184) dgra-zun "guard-house". The watch-tower, mthoñ-khyab (p. 446: 40 and M.L., xliii, 002, etc.) might either belong to a fort or have a separate existence. In the field a Tibetan army was known for its black tents (supra, p. 288): a day-time encampment was a ñin-ra (infra, pp. 447, 451); at night it would perhaps be a mishan-ra. A watch (eighth part of the 24-hour day) is thun, while mel(myel)-tsho, "watch" or "sentinel" (= mel-tsho-pa) is perhaps more technical (infra, p. 448). "Provisions" is brgyags (la-brgyags, "Khotan goods or provisions", p. 438 and ref.).

In regard to services and ranks we note first the general term for service as a soldier, so: the individual soldier is so or so-pa and often (perhaps if an officer or if marked out as a "brave") also stag "tiger", a term which is also an element in many proper names. For levying a force from a population and also for appointing to any office the regular verb is sko-ba (pp. 160, 206: 41, etc.; Chronicle, ll. 58-9, 62, etc.): the man "joins the soldiery or service" (so-la-sdu-ba, pp. 196, 454).<sup>1</sup> When excused on ground of health or for other reason, he may have a substitute skyin-pa (or debtor, p. 224); and bodies of men in forts or other employment may (like assessment lists, etc.) be changed (spo-ba) or relieved. He receives rations (tshal-ma, p. 245, etc.), generally of wheat or barley, and no doubt drink (skyems), for which he has a cup (skyems-ridzhu); sometimes meat also, and wages (gla). When sent out on a journey, he is authorized perhaps to levy his rations en route. For the soldier, as for the civilian, default of travel clothes (rad-gos) is a hardship; and some letters, perhaps from higher ranks, refer to thick overcoats. Some means of punishment for misconduct is termed ri-tu (p. 252): cowardice in face of an enemy is, naturally, punishable by death (infra, p. 453); to desert or run away is hbro (or lor)-ba.

Coming now to the matter of armament and weapons, we find mention of the sgyogs "catapult", perhaps a sort of war-engine such as the ancient Indians had in their sataghñis and so forth. Scales of leather armour have been recovered by Sir Aurel Stein (Ancient Khotan, i, p. 252, n. 9), and the documents speak of the ya-lad "helm-and-corslet" (in one piece?)<sup>2</sup> and of a Rgya-khrab "Chinese buckler or coat of mail" (infra, p. 442). We have also found the tub-chen (tub-can), "coat of mail," and the rkah-bkris "foot (leg)-wrapping", i.e. puttee. Among weapons of offence we have, of course, the sword (ral-gri), spear (mdub), and dagger (phur); but no doubt the bow (gön) and arrow (mdaḥ), sometimes a "poisoned reed-shaft" were the most usual, for which reason a list reproduced supra consists almost exclusively of archers (hphots) and their supports (dgon, p. 441, and M.I., vii, 88a).

<sup>2</sup> According to the Chinese (Bushell, J.R.A.S., 1880, p. 442) "The [Tibetan] armour and helmet are very strong and cover the whole body, with holes for the eyes only".

In one passage (infra, pp. 440-1) we have apparently an outfit for a dgon, consisting of breast-plate, two knives, scissors (?), bow, arrow, sling, pouch for arrow and knife.

The numerous terms denoting ranks or special functions are partly expressions of unmistakable meaning and partly prefixes which, not being recognizable as clan or other surnames, seem from their occurrence to have official application. Of the former kind are <sup>1</sup>—

dmag-dpon, "army commander" or "general" (pp. 33, 122, 124, 196, 455, and M.T., 0503 bis, a. v, 0017, etc.);

ru-dpon, "horn (or wing) commander," probably either on a major or on a minor scale (pp. 349, 445, and M.I., xliii, 002);

dpun-dpon, "commander of a corps, troop" (or perhaps of any considerable body of men: pp. 179, 273, 304, 445);

tshugs-dpon, "commander of a squad or small party of men (most often, four)" (pp. 128, 130, 156, 172, 229, and M.T. 0013, etc.);

hog-dpon, "subordinate commander," second to the tshugs-dpon (pp. 129, 256, 301, 403, and M.I., xiv, 0070, etc.);

mcchids-dpon, "commander of riding horses (cavalry ?)" (p. 445; Chronicle, l. 152);

byan-po, "cook," who, with his byan-g-yog, "cook's mate," (or "servant"), is frequently mentioned in connection with a tshugs or a regiment;

dar-(m)tshan, "silk(banner)-man," or standard-bearer (p. 70);

yig-tshans-po, "record-keeper" (supra, p. 418).

To the second group belong—

gyab (pp. 126, 444, and M.I., xiv, 37);
or egab (p. 418);

sñe-lo (p. 461);
sro (pp. 174, 444, 457);
atom-k(y)yañ (pp. 128, 160);
su-tu (p. 176).

The gyab or gab may perhaps be the gyab whom we have found mentioned as second to the army(or battalion)-commander. In the group bag-rñu, bag-(r)ñu-sñva, ce-rñu, ron-rñu, the syllables bag and ce may mean respectively "little" and "big", while ron might represent rom-po, "big," "massive," "deep" (of sound): hence it is possible that rñu is an old form of rñā "drum", so that the persons in question would be drummers, while the bag-rñu-sñva, who is once styled "left-hand" (g-yon), implying a "right-hand" confrère, may be a drummer officer. Bag-ra might mean "small enclosure" or "precaution enclosure"; but ra can also mean "first". On the analogy of chen-ched, zman-smad, etc., gšen (Bon-po Gšen?) might be = gšed "executioner". Concerning the remaining expressions conjecture seems idle. It is possible that some of them are not military, e.g. ra-saṅs (which with ra-saṅs-rje, "ra-saṅs chief," occurs in the Chronicle, ll. 19, 22), and g-yer-lo, which may be = ager-pa, "a private landholder" (ager-lo "private").

It seems that when a man was appointed to a special function he received a "hand-memorandum" (sug-rjed) or commission (pp. 246, 375, 443-4, 466). In p. 444 and M.T. a. ii, 0048 we have so-rjed.

Of peace-time operations the most important were the summer and winter assemblages (hdun or hdun-tsa, supra, pp. 190; 21, 338) of ministers and generals, constantly recorded in the Tibetan Chronicle. They were often preceded by levying of troops from particular populations or followed by official measures or warlike action. Their military aspect is represented by the reviews, rkaṅ-ton, which may be rkaṅ-hdon "giving out of bundles" (but rkaṅ also = "foot"), and in part by the rtsis-mgo "census", which, however, would have mainly a civil bearing: see pp. 200-1. More staple duties were, of course, the garrisoning of the forts and towns (the citadel of Khotan, p. 184) and the building, maintaining and supplying of out-stations, as shown in numerous documents from Mazār-Tāgh. On one occasion we hear (at Mirān, supra, p. 29) of soldiers being sent to protect the peasants engaged upon the harvest. A preoccupation which appears rather plentifully in the documents is that of communications. We do not, indeed, hear of the towers at distance of about 20 miles or the arrangements for smoke-signalling. But we have examples of missives dispatched by various authorities, sometimes with insistence upon prompt forwarding, "day-time or night-time," and denunciation of penalties in the event of straying or delay. There are circular communications (sometimes from parties in distress), to be acted upon or passed forward; and, similarly, parcels are sent on from stage to stage. The wooden tablet, byan or byan-bu, when conveyed by the soldier, is so-byan (pp. 252, 260, 463, and M.L. xiv, 0019, 126), while a "soldier pass" seems to be so-hphar-ma (p. 202 and M.T. b, ii, 0052). When it is a matter of relays (so-res, pp. 208, 224, 408, 436, and M.T. a, ii, 0054; or so-rims, pp. 260), the so-byan becomes so-res-byan, sometimes so-ris-byan (p. 436). For the longer and more important communications the folded paper letter may usually have been preferred: or the soldier may have a verbal or secret message.<sup>1</sup> When dispatched on secret service the soldier is so-ñul (pp. 224, 448, and M.T. 0257, 0380; a, iii, 0039); in one instance (p. 205), where the expression is so-rdsu-ñul (also in M. Tāgh 0439) "soldier-disguise-secret," a party has been absent for nearly a year and has covered a great distance. If the word sya-sa (p. 437 and M.T. a, iii, 0067) means "spy", it is a borrowing from the Prakrit of an earlier period, since it occurs in the Kharoṣṭhi documents (syaśa, Index).

An art of war is naturally professed among all peoples. The Tibetans, during their long and intense struggle with China (not to mention other powers), must have developed conceptions of strategy and tactics. In the Lha-sa inscriptions the general Klu-khoñ is versed in the "expedients of the war-god" (dgra-lha-thabs, JRAS., 1910, p. 1277, ll. 28-9). The battles recorded year by year in the Tibetan Chronicle and the great victories (g-yul-balog-chen-po) mentioned in a text concerning the wars with China, the Drug, and the Hjañ, must have educated the Tibetan warriors and caused them to appreciate, as in a passage cited above, the various fighting qualities of different populations. In the Turkestan documents, however, there are no references to important military events (dgra-thabs "fighting" or "army", pp. 233, 432, 434, and M.T. 0273): the incidents brought to light are nothing more than a man-capturing (myi-hdzin, pp. 273, 435) expedition into the Dru-gu country, a hostile raid upon the town of Ka-dag, a Kirghiz attack upon an official party in Kan-su. But we have one or two fragments of tactical instructions, addressed to parties sent out on hostile errands or where an encounter with an enemy might be apprehended.

Naturally there are divers personalia mentioned in the documents, purchases, loans, legal agreements, punishments, complaints of failure of rations, appeals for interviews, friendly gossip, deaths. Along with most of the topics discussed above such matters have appeared incidentally in the previous articles. We may now prefix to the list of regiments some further pièces justificatives in relation to these as well as to the more general subjects. It is probable that to the populations of the cities and kingdoms in Chinese Turkestan, with their relatively old civilizations, the Tibetan invaders appeared rude even in comparison with their earlier conquerors, the Hiung-nu, Ephthalites, and Turks. It was not a century since the Tibetans had made the first advances out of their original barbarism, and the nobles had taken to Chinese silk in place of their native homespun. There was, no doubt, as has been suggested (Vol. I, p. 243, n. 5), some malice in the parable which made the Tibetan soldiers to be reincarnations of cattle. In the forts Sir Aurel Stein has exhumed a still active redolence (Serindia, pp. 459-60). The devastations of Buddhist shrines in the first Tibetan invasions of Khotan are lamented in the Prophecy of Vimalaprabhā. But Asiatic barbarians who have lived in the vicinity of great civilized empires such as that of China are not obtuse or innocent or unreceptive of civilized arts. They take quickly to literary and other culture and develope the formalities and graces of society. The encampments of the Hsiung-nu, the Ephthalites, and the Turks are described by Chinese visitors as exhibiting much splendour<sup>1</sup>; and the same was certainly the case with the Tibetan courts. At a somewhat later time a passage which we have quoted (Vol. I, p. 275) is eloquent on the prosperity of the kingdom, the "rule of virtue and goodness", the "state-law of five divisions", "justice with its five procedures", safe frontiers, foreign conquests, "god's law, man's law both flourishing and prosperous". In Chinese Turkestan writing appears to have been in very general use among the military, as well as the civil, classes of Tibetans; and in both cases the epistolary correspondence is characterized by politenesses of expression and action<sup>2</sup>: these matters, however, being not specially military, have been exemplified in another connection.

"Written by Khri-māes(?), name-record of the men who have eaten pieces of ox-flesh. (The names follow.) To these men have been paid four small handfuls each."

For references to hshul-ma "rations" see supra, pp. 51, 208; 43.2, 241.5, 245-8, and infra, p. 454; 53, A 2, B 1 and 3. In case of civilians (travelling agents, etc.) rations and reckonings of pay are subject of such frequent mention and the reckonings so exclusively in terms of barley, millet, etc., that the single reference (M.T. a. iii, 0011) to zāns-gla-don-tse, "wages in copper don-tse," is highly exceptional. Soldiers' pay in money of any kind is not instanced; but the ransom of the regimental Khotanī of p. 251 is stated as 4500 don-tse; and in civil life the luckless pony-man of p. 258 incurs losses of "three srah of copper" and of "seven to", and the shirking plasterers of p. 405 are fined "three srah of gold" along with "three loads of vegetables".

Appeals from travelling parties of soldiers are seen in pp. 203, 205; and in pp. 51-2 a company of emissaries is empowered to levy from stores en route "circular-order-flour" up to 800 srah.

What was signified by the expression par-ša-ris-ma (p. 201 : 34, dehi-tsal-ma-ni-par-ša-ris-ma-lustsogpa-sha-mas-litshald, "His rations, par-ša-ris-ma, etc., were sent before," or "at first") is not apparent. Like the rations, it was a requisite for the return journey of a messenger, but it need not have been of the same nature as the rations. In M. Tāgh, a.vi.0056 (fragmentary) it is asked "Has par-ša-re-ši-ma been received?" The expression is not Tibetan: and since in p. 201 : 34 the messenger in question was a Khotanī, it is possible that he was not serving as a soldier and that par-ša-ris-ma denoted something requisite for non-military Khotanī persons and was an expression in Saka-Khotanī language.

Note

Ya-lad is given in the dictionary with the meaning "helmet and corslet", "coat of mail" (perhaps in one piece): stod, "upper," in this connection may mean "outer", as in stod-gos, "overcoat," or "for the upper part of the body". From the document it is evident that such protective armature was usual, at least for persons of rank and "Tigers" "braves" ?; cf. Forsyth, A Mission to Yarkund, p. 13).

Notes

This document is interesting as illustrating the case of a monk—for such the “eminent Lha-skyes of De” (on which see p. 106) clearly is—acting as a dgon or archer’s comrade, a relation which we have had a previous occasion for noting. Secondly, it exhibits probably the complete outfit of a dgon. In several points the reading or meaning is doubtful: thus hchan “scissors” is not certain, though probable, and the reading of the last syllable as khod and its interpretation as khud, “wrapper,” or khud-pa, “pouch,” are somewhat conjectural; but there is no difficulty in gyu-ma and gyu-bea = yu-med and yu-beas, while gyi and gye can both mean “bag”, and hurdo (hur-rdo) is certainly “sling”. In M.L., xiv, 006, p. 127, we have mdah, gzu . . . bchan, “arrow, bow, scissors (?).”

25. M.I., xiv, 39 (wood, c. 20.5 × 1.5 × .75 cm., complete; hole for string at l.; ll. 2 of cursive dbu-can script, faint and partly erased).

Notes

The meaning of co-ga ("lark": in pp. 393, 398, cog or tsog) is not known: ris, for which the rendering "bundle" is suggested, usually means "figure", "outline", "quarter" res, "time" (i.e. "allowance") may have been intended.

"Your humble servant, when appointed in succession to a duty, did not receive a sroh (nit = "bit" f) of commission. Down to the present time he has not got a commission. If ratification was kindly intended, please trouble to send orders that the minor ru-nā of the Upper Hdzom regiment, who at present, after going about roaming the country, is returned and is on the spot, should send my commission."

Notes

A 1, Juhet-tu, "in succession." Does this mean "in due course of promotion" or "in succession" to another?

sug-rjed, "hand-memorandum," is given in the dictionaries as meaning "a mark of honour as a reward"; but here and again (infra, p. 466) it evidently corresponds to what we understand by a "commission" or formal appointment to a function. See p. 428.

A 2, hkañ-driñ-yan-cha[d.d]u : This might mean "to ratify the kindness"; but hkañ-driñ seems sometimes to be used adverbially. Is hchaid from hchel "desire" or hchol "appoint"?

B 1, Hdzom-stod-kyi-sde: Concerning this regiment see p. 460.

ro-ña-cuñ: Cf. p. 336. Since the term ro-ña occurs elsewhere p. 445 : 38) as a military title, this should be likewise.

Notes

The incident is one in which a squad, with a sergeant and corporal, encounters difficulties, its encampment being fired and the horses scared away. spyan-gis-dbyoñs : "interview with sight." On dbyoñs, from lbyon-pa, see p. 22.

dkyigs : This is perhaps the word dkrig, given in S. C. Das' dictionary as meaning "personally".

Rkub-bead, which in Sanskrit would perhaps be pāyu-ccheda, is perhaps some surgical operation : since the request comes from the person concerned, it can hardly be disciplinary.

8. List of Regiments (sde)

"To the Gad-sram regiment sent [by] Myes-stshab: Hbroñu-gzigs executed . . ." Also in a. iii, 0019, infra, p. 458.

- * Gcom-pa-hi-sde (Beom-pa, a Thousand-district of Cog-ro in E. Tibet: see Vol. I, p. 279).

Mentioned in M. Tāgh. a. ii, 0096, quoted pp. 170-2.

Glañ-šan-sde

Mentioned in M. Tāgh. a. i, 0021 (fragmentary).

Gom-pa-hi-sde (apparently different from the Grom(Hgrom)-pa regiment).

62. M. Tāgh. a. iv, 0037 (wood, c. 12 × 2 cm., complete; hole for string at r.; l. 1 of cursive dbu-can script).

Khyun and Skyañ-po are, like Hbro, tribal designations (noted supra). Hbro . . . kh—n is perhaps = Hbrom-khoñ, and Ga-sram is the Gad-sram recorded in this list. Dgro is perhaps the Sgro Thousand-district of Tibet (Vol. I, p. 277).

Mentioned p. 175.

* Hbroñ-mtshams-kyi-sde (= Hbrin (sic)-mtshams of Vol. I, p. 279 n. 4).

67. M. Tāgh. a. vi, 0019 (wood, c. 12-12.5 × 2 cm., complete; hole for string at r.; l. 1 of cursive dbu-can script).
